A Papal Flying Field.
Russia's Slave Labor.
Safe From Volcanoes.
Mr. Shaw, He Scorns Us.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MANY THINGS have been done by the popes important to human beings everywhere. They have encouraged the arts, and the world owes to them its greatest pictures, statues, buildings. They established Europe's first universities and sent missionaries exploring and civilizing among Indians of our Great Lakes and the Chinese in Asia.

THE PRESENT Pope now appears as a friend and promoter of aviation, and in a most important direction.

Within the limited Vatican City territory allotted to the papacy, by Mussolini, there is not room for a full-sized aviation field. The Pope, therefore, will encourage development of the helicopter, that rises and lands perpendicularly, and will have a small helicopter airport.

THIS IS important to scientific aviation, and will enable the Pope at any time to leave papal territory for any destination without entering upon territory that may become hostile.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS Labor Bureau gives information about labor conditions in Russia. All jobs are obtained through government agencies. Any workman can quit by giving seven days notice.

But if he does quit, he is called an industrial "deserter" and for six months after he quits, although he may be a highly skilled man, the government gives him nothing to do but manual labor. Then he is reinstated.

THIS IS RUSSIA'S much talked of "slave labor." It certainly is not "free labor," as the western world understands it.

However, Russia considers industrial success a matter of life and death, as western nations consider military success a matter of life and death.

In a military crisis we sent 3,000,000 men to Europe without asking their permission, and if one deserted, the punishment was something worse than a job at manual labor. It was DEATH.

Russia considers industrial triumph as important as military triumph.

Russian labor conditions horrify us, because they are new. We take it for granted that a boy of 18, tired, exhausted by a long march and going to sleep on sentry duty, should be put to death. It's all a matter of custom.

WE SHOULD be humbly thankful for a country free from volcanic activity.

It is difficult to imagine the horror of a recent eruption in Java that killed 15 natives at work in the fields. Imagine a stream of red hot lava, 600 feet wide, 70 feet high, rolling down upon you, filling valleys, covering villages.

OR IMAGINE the sight that met the eyes of terrified villagers, the volcanic peak covered with a heavy black cloud, intense flashes of lightning shooting through it.

THE LAVA flow changed fertile fields to desert. Do you wonder that nature frightened men in the early days, causing them to invent tormenting devils, and strange gods indifferent to their welfare.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW says Americans like to be ridiculed.

"I am careful never to say a civil word to them, and they adore me," says he.

Mr. Shaw does not thoroughly understand the American character. If he went to the monkey house in any American zoological garden, he would see back of the bars little creatures with whiskers not unlike his own.

Americans on their side of the bars would be amused by the Simian grimaces, and comic gnashing of teeth.

It is difficult for one who goes through life in a perpetual state of Narcissus adoration to understand Americans, largely engaged in real work.

WHAT WILL our best minds say of the latest utterances by Senator Borah? He wants the United States to lend money to Russia to help her industrial development and promote trade with the United States.

Senator Borah says that in Russia "the greatest undeveloped market in the world waits us, if we are bold enough to seize it."

But, he doesn't expect the government to be bold enough to defy the financial "best minds" that at present control it.

IN NEW YORK, where this is written, in early editions of afternoon newspapers, you read about these things:

A dead body of a man, taken for a ride, is found in a deserted automobile. No longer news.

A woman, respectable, swears that she was arrested and a magistrate, included in a blackmailing gang, refused to listen to the story of her innocence. That is a regular trade in New York, and apparently is nobody's concern.

ANOTHER MAGISTRATE is indicted with his wife, accused of buying his job on the bench, and a doctor is indicted with him for taking $2,000 to get the indorsement of the "Steuben Society."

A NEW "RACKET" consists in getting up fraudulent charity balls and sending around strong arm salesmen to force small shop keepers to buy, with blackmailing threats.

And so it goes in our civilization.

BANK HOLDUP QUIZ SEEKS 3D GIRL

Two Other Young Women Fail To Give Up Clues; Verona Youth Seized in Killing

Questioning of two girls by city detectives today had yielded them no clue in their search for the North Side bank bandits and a search was launched for a third girl from whom the sleuths hoped to determine the identity of the robbers.

The two held by detectives are Betty Miller, 22, of Tripoli street, and Peggy Shields, 22, also of the North Side.

VERONA SUSPECT TAKEN

Another step in the roundup of bandit suspects was the detention of Charles Forney, 23, of Avonmore, near Verona, in connection with the holdup December 6 of the Allegheny Valley Trust Company, Verona, in which Charles N. McFarland, cashier, was slain.

Forney was identified as resembling the bank bandit by two employes of the bank, according to Constable William Thomas, who with Detective Robert Ellwood, of Washington County, arrested him as he slept at the home of an aunt in Gallatin yesterday. Constable Thomas said Detective Ellwood had turned Forney over to Chief of Police William Kipp, of Verona.

Chief Kipp professed ignorance of the arrest, but County Detective Samuel Whisner declared Forney was being held.

LETTER INTERCEPTED

After learning that a letter in the Monongahela postoffice awaited Forney, Constable Thomas and Detective Ellwood, according to Thomas, arrested Forney and took him to the postoffice.

Forney, Thomas said, opened the letter in their presence. The missive advised him, it was said that Verona police were looking for him. The writer, a relative living near Verona, suggested Forney flee to West Virginia, Thomas asserted.

BELIEVE HOLDUPS FOILED

When City Detectives Edward McEntee and Clarence Raeder arrested Robert K. Flathe, 26, rooming in Fifth avenue, near Congress street, they say they believe

Snow, Cold Make Highways Slippery

Highways throughout the city, county and outlying districts were reported slippery this morning, due to the light snow and freezing of last night. Motorists had trouble negotiating grades, but no serious accident was reported.

In suburban boroughs and townships trucks were out early spreading ashes over steep grades.

Temperatures of 20 to 25 degrees are forecast for tonight, with more snow tomorrow.

CARD PLAYERS' PURSES STOLEN

Oakland police today were searching for a sneak thief who broke up a bridge party in the first-floor apartment of Mrs. Eva Lubovsky, at 3450 Ward street, last night.

The man jimmied a window of a room adjoining the one in which eight women were playing, and stole three purses, one of which was recovered, empty, in the neighborhood by a policeman.

While the game was in progress in the living room, Miss Bess Goldblum, 19, of 1710 Bedford avenue, attracted by a noise, walked into the adjoining room and saw the intruder climbing out the window. She fainted, but was revived by Miss Ann Chawenson, of 1625 Center avenue, and other players. The thief stole the purse of Miss Goldblum, containing $20.80, keys to her home and safe deposit vault; Miss Chawenson's bag, which contained $30, and the purse of Mrs. Harry Schlensky, who also lives in the apartment.

Priest Likens Stage Today To Old-Time Saloon

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—The stage today is in a position similar to that of the saloons before prohibition, the Rev. James M. Gillis, editor of the Catholic World, told a meeting of the Catholic Actors' Guild.

Just as the saloons brought on national prohibition, he asserted, a decadent stage is bringing on national censorship.

Father Gillis was guest of honor at the Guild's monthly meeting in the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, and he devoted his talk to a gathering of 300 actors to the "morality of the stage and the imminence of censorship. He asserted.

"Not only the so-called Puritans and the churches, but also newspaper editors galore are agreed, and even people on the stage are saying what they said about the brewing business, one, two and three years before prohibition.

"Even brewers in those days were sending out the word, 'behave, or you'll bring down upon us national prohibition.' But in spite of the warning the saloons still sold to soldiers in uniform. The result was that national prohibition was brought down upon us all."

Father Gillis produced a sheaf of newspaper clippings discussing censorship in the theater, and first among them he read a recent editorial by William Randolph Hearst warning the stage to adopt voluntary censorship before it is forced upon the theaters.

NYE TO REVEAL DAVIS-BROWN FUND DATA

Disclosures Will Follow Investigator's Secret Journey to Pittsburgh

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Details of Davis-Brown election expenses uncovered by the Nye investigating committee on its recent trip to Pennsylvania, including a reported secret visit to Pittsburgh, were to be revealed today.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, announced that the total involved is over $1,150,000 and that his committee would hear the details of the case at a meeting today.

WILL ITEMIZE COSTS

The first hour of the meeting was to be given over to testimony of Chairman Robert Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee. After that Senator Nye said he expected to put committee investigators on the stand to itemize expenditures found in Pennsylvania.

Pending formal submission of the investigators' reports, the committee chairman declined to make public the added expenditures found. He said simply that the evidence to be developed would "speak for itself."

FOLLOWS UP EARLY CLAIMS

The admission by Nye that the total involved in the campaign in behalf of Senator James J. Davis and Francis Shunk Brown, is $1,150,000, is in keeping with statements made by him ever since the credentials of the junior Pennsylvania senator were challenged at the opening of the session. He pointed out he has contended for some days that the

Relief Funds Implored for This and That

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Now that President Hoover has powers plenitpotentiary to distribute that relief plunder we would like to plug our town.

But we would like $17,500,621 to make it wider.

And about $23,000,000 to deepen the river.

The river ain't any good to nobody. But it's cheaper to deepen it than to fill it in.

We could just about use up $56,546,989 for another postoffice.

The postmaster is tired of living in a hollow tree and pushing letters through a knothole.

EXTRA SESSION FEARED ON COURT

G. O. P. Agitated by Rumor Of Hoover Plan to Force League Action in Senate

By FRASER EDWARDS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Republican leaders were in a state of apoplectic agitation today after apparently authentic reports reached them that President Hoover intends to call a special session of the Senate in the spring to jam through the League Court.

Not only were Republican foes of the court angered by the reports circuited about the Senate, but Republican friends of the court were apprehensive for the future of their party if the President follows such a course.

FEAR FELT FOR PARTY

Already shaken and rent by smashing Democratic gains in the November elections, Republican leaders fear their party could not withstand the shock that would come with the revolt of G. O. P. stalwarts should the President carry out the reported program.

Republican leaders, friends and foes of the League Court alike, are agreed upon one point—that the Republican party has enough trouble on its hands in dealing with the domestic depression without dipping into the political controversies of revolution-ridden Europe.

Consequently, they are all striving for the same end—to avoid an extra session of Congress. In keeping with that determination, the Republican friends and foes of the League Court on the Foreign Relations Committee voted to pack the protocols in cold storage for another year, at least.

BIG STICK AGAIN

For, the Republican leadership in the Senate realizes that once the League Court reaches the floor, the fight is on and party lines will be shot to pieces. They wish to stay that dreadful day as long as possible.

The President, however, is reported to have been irked by the action of the Foreign Relations Committee, despite the fact that Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee and an ardent friend of the court, voted to postpone action for a year.

Mr. Hoover, having had some success in brandishing the "big stick" over Congress on the relief legislation, is reported to be determined to disregard the advice of his party leaders at the Capitol on the special Senate session, just as he did in sending up the court at the present session.

MRS. HOLLAND WINS DIVORCE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Florence Jennings Holland, of Darien, Conn., today had won a divorce decree on charges of desertion.

The charge revolved about the husband's ordering her from their Darien, Conn., home, given them by Dr. W. J. Holland, of Pittsburgh, his father. Dr. Holland is director emeritus of Carnegie Museum and chancellor emeritus of the University of Pittsburgh.

The suicide of Bobbie Storie, chorus girl, in the Manhattan apartment of the husband, F. Raymond Holland, was entered as testimony in the case.

The couple were married in 1911 and separated in 1924. Mrs. Holland told Judge A. C. Baldwin her husband asked her to divorce him in 1925 because he said he loved someone else.

Regarding the Storie suicide, Holland told the court he had given the girl shelter because she was despondent.

LINER SINKS QUICKLY IN FOG

Three Vessels Comb Sea For Possible Survivors In Danish Coast Tragedy

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Forty-five of the passengers and crew abroad the Finnish liner Oberon are believed to have perished in the Cattegat off Laso Island last night when the Oberon collided with the Finnish steamer Arcturus in a heavy fog.

Today the steamer Svenskund, which brought Andree's remains out of the Arctic, broke through the fog seeking additional survivors. The Arcturus, with a hole in her bow, proceeded to port.

The famous British cricketer, J. W. H. T. Douglas, and his father, were believed to have been among those lost. There was a report that Eris Hjelt, commander of the Oberon, had been saved by his brother, Osai Hjelt, the skipper of the Arcturus.

Among the passengers rescued was the English girl, Phyllis Tipping, a secretary at the American consulate at Helsingfors, who telegraphed her father in Surrey, England, that the Oberon had gone down in four minutes.

The Danish steamer Garm picked up several bodies in the vicinity of the crash and was bringing them here. The steamer Hengist, which rescued four of the Oberon's crew, reported that the captain of the foundered vessel had been taken aboard his brother's ship with his first and second mates.

Plot to Bomb Politician Foiled

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Stamping out the blazing fuses on three sticks of dynamite, James Corey, Republican politician of the Third Ward here, prevented the bombing of his home early today.

The bomb was planted, Corey believes, by Philadelphia racketeers, who threatened him after he frustrated their plans for opening gambling establishments in his ward a few weeks ago.

The explosives were discovered by relatives as they were leaving Corey's home shortly after midnight. Notified of the discovery, Corey hurriedly stamped the fuses out and kicked the explosives into the street. Only his prompt action, police said, saved his home from damage and possible injuries to members of his family and relatives.

28 Americans Enter Priesthood in Rome

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Twenty-eight students of the American College were ordained to the priesthood today in the basilica of St. John Lateran by Msgr. Pallica, vice regent of Rome.

Among those ordained were Philip Curram, Altoona, Pa.; Benjamin Farrell, Wheeling, W. Va., and Philip Herrmann, Erie, Pa.

MOTORMAN DIES AT CONTROLS

James Pow, 63, of 1443 Chislett street, operator of a one-man Sharpsburg street car, slumped over dead while his car, outbound, was crossing the Sharpsburg Bridge early today.

When his hand fell from the controller, emergency brakes were automatically applied, bringing the car to an instant stop. One passenger was on the car at the time, E. G. Cooke, of 6101 Butler street, employed at the West Penn Hospital. He hailed Albert Hengler, also a trolley operator, who was on a car that had stopped at a wait signal.

At the morgue it was said Pow probably had died from heart failure. He had returned to work on an early run after having been off duty several days on account of illness. He was the oldest employe in point of service at the Butler street barns, having been a motorman 43 years.

Smoot Urges All Give Meal a Week to Poor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Senator Smoot has an idea: Those who have meals to eat should eat one meal less a week and give the cost of the meal to the poor. When he made the suggestion in debate, Senator Conally, of Texas, took a look and opined that one of Senator Smoot's meals would do the poor very, very little good.

Charge Adele Ryan Broke Up Wedded Dance Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Miss Adele Ryan, granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan and part heir to his $120,000,000 estate, is being sued for $500,000 on the ground she broke up a wedded song and-dance team.

The action was disclosed when Miss Muriel Johnston, night club entertainer, petitioned the state Supreme Court for a preliminary examination of Miss Ryan to support her charges that the heiress stole the affections of Robert Johnston, her partner in matrimony and music. Decision was reserved.

Over a period of four years, the complaint avers, Miss Ryan sought to lure Johnston from his wife, showering him with gifts of books, perfume, liquor and money. She succeeded, it is charged, and he now has a "luxurious apartment" on the fringe of Greenwich Village.

Miss Ryan met the Johnstons in 1926 on the French Riviera, the complaint recites, and followed them to London. The heiress "ingratiated" herself with Johnston, it is claimed, by writing and telephoning and never missing an appearance of the dance team.

SHEPARD MURDER CASE READY FOR SUBMISSION TO JURY

STATE CALLS ARMY MAN FIEND

Major Branded as Diabolical Poisoner; Affair With Stenographer Reviewed

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—A jury of Kansans, all men with families, assembled today to hear final arguments before being charged by the court with the task of attempting to decide whether Maj. Charles A. Shepard murdered his wife by the use of poison.

Attorneys planned to complete summarization of their evidence to permit the case to go to the jury early this afternoon. Three verdicts are possible: Acquittal; guilty with no recommendation, making death sentence mandatory; and guilty without capital punishment.

CALLED DIABOLICAL

Contrasting pictures of the 50-year-old Army officer were drawn yesterday as counsel began arguments in the case, which has consumed three weeks.

L. E. Wyman, assistant district attorney, painted Maj. Shepard as a diabolical poisoner who coolly took his wife's life to be free to pursue a love affair with Miss Grace Brandon, blonde young stenographer, of San Antonio, Tex.

C. L. Gagey, Beloit, Kan., former United States minister to Finland, told the jury that the defendant was a victim of a chain of circumstantial evidence cleverly contrived by government agents. He said the major had been "trapped" by Miss Brandon, whom he characterized as an "Army post flapper."

TESTIMONY REVIEWED

The government reviewed a mass of testimony which it had introduced in an attempt to show that Maj. Shepard fell in love with Miss Brandon before the death of his wife and that her death was due to poisoning.

Defense countered with the assertion that no one knew what was the matter with Mrs. Shepard and that the government had failed to establish the crime which it alleged.

100 FIGHT GAS GUSHER FIRE

WEWOKA, Okla., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—A fiery column roared from a wild gas well on the edge of town today as approximately 100 men prepared to snuff out the blaze by means of a nitroglycerine blast.

The asbestos-clad well tamers hoped to complete preparations for their tilt with the flaming gasser by Sunday or Monday.

Fed by approximately 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, the impromptu furnace shot a tongue of fire 150 feet skyward last night and lighted the countryside for miles around.

Guarded by a large metal sheet upon which was sprayed a steady stream of cold water, men garbed in asbestos suits removed the derrick of a twin well yesterday as a precaution against spread of the fire.

Dread of Prison Death Wins Pardon

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—John Poe, 80, didn't want to die in prison, he wrote Curt C. Lindauer, assistant state's attorney of St. Clair County.

Lindauer, impressed by the plea, recommended a pardon, and it was granted yesterday. Poe was serving one to 11 years for theft of barber supplies.

Coolidge Urges Care In Regulating Industry

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 20.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Calvin Coolidge

It is an axiomatic policy of our government that it be conducted for the general benefit of the people. As those with the larger resources can care for themselves the government is more particularly solicitous for the welfare of the less fortunate.

The question always is how this best can be done. More and more our people are becoming interdependent. A few are practically independent but the mass are connected with large producing organizations. Their welfare depends not only on their own efforts and skill, but on the ability and success of the management of some large concern. Only if the concern prospers are they secure.

That is why the government encourages industry. It is difficult to assist the wage earner directly, but he can be benefitted by making it profitable to employ him.

Many of our public service companies and industries feel they are so much restricted by legislation and regulation that they cannot operate profitably and so cannot employ wage earners. Such complaints merit careful consideration. Certain regulation is necessary, but a wise administration of regulatory laws increases greatly the employing power of the nation.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

JOB RELIEF BILL UP FOR PASSAGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—With House and Senate eager to get away for the Christmas holidays, administration leaders hoped to complete President Hoover's emergency relief program in Congress today by enactment of the $116,000,000 public works bill.

The President's drought relief bill, authorizing $45,000,000 for feed, seed, fertilizer and gasoline loans to farmers, was set down in ornate form and sent to the White House for Mr. Hoover's signature.

The final compromise, while eliminating specific authority for food loans, to which the President objected, included a broad provision, under which the Secretary of Agriculture may make food or clothing loans to destitute farmers, thus salving either side.

Administration leaders were hopeful of gaining prompt Senate approval of the compromise public works bill.

The $150,000,000 Federal Farm Board bill, authorizing new funds for that body's campaign to stabilize farm product prices, may be l t in shuffle. A group of senators, led by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, demanded a full explanation be given on the board's program. Unless that explanation is forthcoming and satisfactory, the bill may be sidetracked until the new year.

All three measures were merely authorization acts. None carried any money. Consequently, the administration forces must enact three separate appropriation bills, or one containing all three sums, before any of the legislation takes effect.

The Christmas vacation, if it starts tonight, will continue until January 5. If a filibuster against the second relief bill develops the vacation will be postponed and Congress will be held in session until it is enacted.

Fur Thieves Loot Club as Women Play Bridge

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 20.—Thieves raided the women's locker rooms of the East Liverpool Country Club during the Christmas dinner bridge party last night and escaped with fur coats valued at $5,000, police said.

Twelve coats, selected from 50 in the cloak room, were taken. The robbers forced an outside door to enter the basement floor of the clubhouse.

While one or two men garnered the loot, another sat at the wheel of an automobile in which the thieves escaped.

Two investigators for the committee recently spent more than a week in Pennsylvania, checking over records of expenditures listed with the Secretary of State at Harrisburg.

VISIT HERE REPORTED

They also were reported to have gone to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in their inquiry. Their full findings, however, have not been made public. What bearing the investigators' summary will have on the committee's ultimate recommendation regarding Senator Davis' seat is a matter of speculation, of course, but the indications are that a minority report, at least, will be filed recommending that he be required to vacate.

DAVIS MAY ATTEND

Senator Davis himself was expected to be on hand when the committee meets today to take up the Pennsylvania contest further, although he has not been summoned and will not be called on, for the time being, to testify. It had been the intention of the Nye committee to receive the Pennsylvania report yesterday, but the press of other matters forced it over until today.

Quiz of Lucas to Air Alleged Attack on Norris

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, appeared before the Nye committee today to answer charges that he used undercover efforts to defeat Senator George Norris Rep.), of Nebraska, in the November elections.

Testifying before the Nye committee, Charles I. Stengle, former New York congressman, charged Lucas paid him $665 for printing Klan literature linking Norris with such Democrats as Al Smith and John J. Raskob.

According to Stengle, Lucas asked that his name be held in confidence as the source of these funds. Stengle volunteered his testimony.

Senator Nye immediately announced Lucas would be subpenaed.

According to Stengle, Lucas gave him the order for the literature on or about October 18.

The printed literature included an alleged appeal from the "1932 Democratic Victory Scouts, New York City," asking Nebraska voters to re-elect Norris because his help was needed in 1932.

EXTRA SESSION FEARED

cic at friends, the President is determined to drive this one pet policy—the League Court—at all costs. But the Republican leade at the Capitol are unwilling to pay the price that will be exacted from the party organization.

One Republican leader declared:

"Some of the best soldiers in the Republican ranks will be off the reservation—to stay—if the President carries out this unfortunate and inopportune plan. I wish with all my heart that these reports are untrue and that the President will say so."

Because of the President's success in jamming the London Naval Treaty through a reluctant Senate last summer, Republican senators were inclined to place more than usual credence in the reports that started cloakrooms to buzzing.

In an effort to avoid this trap, the foes of the Court on the Foreign Relations Committee voted for a year's postponement. They won by the narrow margin of 10 to 9, with the aid of the procourters, who voted the way they did because of the anxiety to avert an extra session of Congress, which the injection of the League Court would surely precipitate.

STALIN'S 'STEEL FIST' FALLS ON RYKOF

Head of Premier Drops as Punishment for Opposing Soviet Dictator's Views

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

MOSCOW, Dec. 20.—Josef Stalin, Soviet Russia's "man of steel" and its virtual dictator, today had rendered impotent the last of the formerly strong "right wingers" through relieving from office his outspoken opponent, Alexei I. Rykof, president of the People's Council of Commissars.

In other countries this office corresponds to that of premier.

Viacheslav Molotov, Stalin's right hand man, was appointed to succeed Rykof. It was believed the latter will be dismissed also from the powerful political bureau, thus exiling him from further influence in the Soviet political affairs.

MOVE WAS EXPECTED

Although it was officially announced that M. Rykof was relieved of his office by his own request, his withdrawal in the face on Stalin's power was long considered imminent. Several times his dismissal was rumored and vigorously denied by Soviet authorities.

Rykof's dominant position in the affairs of the Soviet dates back to Nicolai Lenin's time, succeeding the latter to his post in 1924 after Lenin's death. The rise of Stalin and divergent political views, which eventually resulted in an open split, foredoomed Rykof's political extinction.

His authority was whisked from him just after he returned from a "vacation." His absence from the reviewing stand during an important military parade staged in Moscow on October 12 to celebrate the thirteenth anniversary of the Red revolt gave rise to reports that he had already been ousted from office, but this was denied and supplemented with information that the premier was on "vacation."

FOUGHT FIVE-YEAR PLAN

When Stalin determined upon the execution as rapidly as possible of Russia's five-year industrialization plan and the collectivization of her farmlands, the so-called "conservative" Communist leaders rallied about Rykoff, who boldly marched into Stalin's path.

A stormy period ensued, culminating in a recanting of their "heresies" and a temporary truce with Stalin. Some of those who had championed Rykof's views were taken back into the fold, but although the premier apparently had been forgiven, it was generally understood that his days of power were numbered.

HOME TOWNERS FETE PINCHOT

MILFORD, Pa., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot was the guest of honor at a banquet last night—the closing feature of "Pinchot Day," in which nearly 1,000 Pike County residents took part.

Pinchot dedicated an 18-foot Colorado spruce tree planted on the grounds of the Community House, which he donated to the town several years ago. The celebration was under the auspices of the Pike County Historical Society and the Milford Chamber of Commerce.

BERENGUER TO QUIT IN SPAIN

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—Gen. Damaso Berenguer, the Spanish premier, declares that he will resign office and return to duty in the army as soon as parliamentary elections have been held throughout Spain, according to a Madrid dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph.

The Premier is quoted in the telegraph as saying:

"The only object of my government was to re-establish a constitutional regime. Once the election is through I will resign and return to my duties as a professional soldier."

Berenguer is further quoted as saying that he regards the revolt movement now suppressed as far as the army is concerned, but admitting that it will probably continue among Communists and Syndicalists.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that appeared over Western Ontario yesterday morning is now in the far Northeast and high pressure overlies the Gulf states and the plateau section. The skies are still overcast over most of the northern states and light snow is still falling at scattered places. The snowfall over this section was very light, except over the mountains of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where the depth ranges from three to four inches. Temperature changes were slight over the Atlantic Coast states and as far west as TOhio, but toward colder at most places. In the Southern and Central Plains states it is slightly warmer, while over Northern Indiana, Northern Illinois, Eastern Iowa and Wisconsin, there was a fall of from 8 to 12 degrees. In the Canadian Northwest there was little change.

River Conditions.

VETS AWAIT PERSHING'S MEMOIRS

Many Messages Received by General from Ex-Service Men Show High Interest

By REX COLLIER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The world has evidenced its pleasurable anticipation of Gen. Pershing's forthcoming memoirs on the World War, but no group of the General's admirers has manifested keener curiosity than the scattered remnants of the valorous army which was the A. E. F.

Announcement of arrangements for publication of Gen. Pershing's story of the war in the associated newspapers of the North American Newspaper Alliance and in a few other selected newspapers prompted a flood of congratulatory messages, among them a fund of characteristic comment from former doughboys.

CHORUS OF APPROBATION

From hospital cots, from business offices, from varied fields of trade and industry and from remote farming sections has come a chorus of approbation.

The General, reflecting reminiscently upon the interesting response of those whom he commanded in France more than a decade ago, has come to realize that his responsibility to the men of the armies did not end with the Armistice. Recently he said:

"These fellows have made me feel my responsibility in a big way. It seems they are depending on me to corroborate everything they have told their wives or children or sweethearts and friends concerning their part in the war."

It was plain from the General's attitude that he is far more deeply concerned with this responsibility to the rank and file than he is to officialdom or to the public at large.

TRIED TO PLEASE ADMIRERS

He disclosed, as a matter of fact, that but for the insistant clamoring of those who fought under him in the dark days of 1918 he might not have completed his literary undertaking. He explained:

"Many times I was tempted to leave the job undone, but each time I was forced to reconsider and go back to the story under the pressure of friends. They made me see it was an impersonal duty I had to perform—an obligation to the public I could not well evade."

Gen. Pershing is disinclined to reveal the number of messages he has received since announcement of completion of his memoirs, or to disclose their contents or the names of the senders. A War Department attache, however, said they came by radio, wire and mail from every corner of the United States and from numerous points abroad.

BOYLIKE INTEREST

Seated in his secluded but spacious office in the old State, War and Navy Building, Gen. Pershing examined the accumulation of messages with boylike interest, and personally answered them with his thanks.

The Pershing story of the world conflict is being awaited eagerly in French, British and German circles, where conjecture is spirited as to the American general's treatment of disputed phases of Allied strategy.

Pershing's version of his successful effort to maintain an autonomous American front on the battlefield in the face of opposition in the Allied high command is expected to prove of particular interest abroad.

RESERVING COMMENT

Apparently official Europe is reserving its comment until the story has been made public. A large number of Americans living across the Atlantic have sent Gen. Pershing cables or letters telling of the interest abroad in the "American account of the war."

The Pershing articles are generally regarded as tantamount to an official record view not alone of their authorship but also of the fact that they are based on the General's day-to-day diary of his wartime activities.

He speaks plainly in them, but as he is convinced that he has spoken nothing but the truth, he entertains no misgivings. The story will start in The Sun-Telegraph Monday, January 12.

Safety Inspection Delays Opening of Showboat

Capt. Menke's Golden Rod showboat, moored for several days at the Stanwix street wharf on the Allegheny River, was dark again last night and indications today were it would be again tonight unless Public Safety Director James M. Clark ruled otherwise.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, in whose hands was placed the fate of stage productions on the Golden Rod, because of the management's failure to comply with certain city regulations on leases, yesterday declared he was through with the matter.

Lang said the question was turned over to Clark after a conference with Mayor Kline and Clark was instructed to order his building inspectors to examine the boat, and to determine whether measures had been taken by the management to insure safety of patrons. The investigation had not been completed in time for last night's performance.

Although Menke secured a Department of Public Safety permit several days ago, the action by the same department has added to holding up the opening. When Menke displayed his permit to Lang, he was informed a permit from Lang's department was also needed and would be granted after he complied with certain formalities. Opening now hinges on the building bureau's inspection.

PUPILS TO FORM SCHOOL GOVERNMENTS

Abbe Dimnet Denounces Divorce as 'Free Love' Step

ROOMS TO BE 'CITY' AND 'STATE'

Students to Learn at First Hand How to Perform Civic Duties Properly

Every child in the public schools of Pittsburgh will learn at first hand the duties of a citizen from a new form of school government to be introduced by Supt. Ben G. Graham. Parochial school authorities have announced that they will carry out a similar program.

This was disclosed last night by A. Leo Weil, president of the Committee for Education in Citizenship, in a report before that body at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. The committee is a non-political organization seeking to promote a greater interest in voting and in the performance of civic duties.

New courses in citizenship have been started in the public schools. Eventually it is planned to make every school child a school citizen. It is the aim to organize the schoolroom along the same lines as the city, all, of course, under the authority of principals and teachers.

TO BE "OFFICIALS"

Student bodies in the higher grades will be arranged according to state and national government. The duties of president, congress, governors, legislators, mayor and council will be taught to the pupils through actual experience.

Committees of the school citizens will be appointed to consider city problems, such as keeping the streets clean, avoiding traffic congestion and improving housing conditions. In the first six grades there will be object lessons in the construction of miniature cities.

Courses in the social studies such as civics, history, geography, sociology and economics are being revised by committees appointed by Dr. Graham. It is pointed out that the schools in Pennsylvania and in many other states were originally established for the purpose of telling the citizen his duties to the state and nation.

SUPPORT ASSURED

The parochial schools, in charge of the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, will plan a program similar to that introduced in the public schools. Dr. Campbell and other prominent pastors have assured the committee of hearty support.

New courses in citizenship are to be introduced in the higher educational institutions. At the University of Pittsburgh it is planned to consider various civic problems in the new Falk experimental school. Carnegie Institute of Technology, Duquesne University and Pennsylvania College for Women are also co-operating.

The Allegheny County Sabbath School Association has outlined a program to help the good citizenship movement. Surveys are to be made to determine the number of persons in various churches who registered and voted.

OTHERS TO HELP

A number of social workers have been consulted, and as soon as the program in the schools is started, certain phases of citizenship work will be taken up by many organizations. These will include the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. and W. H. A., the Boy Scouts and various settlement houses.

A feature of the citizenship campaign which will be given consideration in the future will be the organization of the industrial workers of Pittsburgh. Leading business executives have been interviewed and have given their approval to the idea of asking all employes to vote. The use of the ballot would thus be made one of the qualifications for employment.

Mr Weil points out that the citizenship committee wants the movement which they are sponsoring to be strictly a Pittsburgh undertaking. He says that success will win the attention of every other large city in America.

RE-MARRIAGE MISNOMER, HE SAYS

Canon Holds Unions Entered With Idea of Dissolution Nullify Marital Tradition

An interview with the Abbe Ernest Dimnet, canon of the Cathedral of Cambrai, the sixth of a series in an unusual discussion of divorce laws, is published today. It presents the view of the Abbe as it has taken form during his many years of service in the church.

By THE ABBE ERNEST DIMNET.

Divorce is the first step toward free love.

The two words, marriage and divorce, used to be contradictory. Today they no longer seem to be so. People, accustomed to divorce, speak of other people's repeated ventures as re-marriage.

It is a misuse of words and, as happens not infrequently, it appears the vocabulary gets adulterated by the customs.

TRADITION NULLIFIED

When a man and woman marry, with the possibility clear in their minds that sooner or later they may dissolve the association, they nullify the traditional idea of marriage. It is also evident that when they do so, they cast a heavy cloud on the nature and intensity of their sentiment. People who are really, honestly and simply in love never harbor any doubts about the duration of that love.

The question, of course, immediately arises, "What is love?" What is to be in love?

But this question is only asked by the very people who have either been, unfortunate in wedlock or who, as I said before, are thinking of a loophole of escape.

MORALIST'S ADVICE

One of the things I admire most in America is that, in spite of so many divorces, the average American boy and girl are perfectly clear about the characteristics of conjugal love. I have never seen one show the least surprise at hearing the well known piece of advice given to men by one of the French moralists:

"Never marry the woman who could not be your friend if she were a man."

These average American boys and girls include all the substantial characteristics of friendship in their definition of love. And whoever does so cannot think of divorce when he marries.

ROUSSEAU CONTRADICTED

If the manners of people could keep with their philosophy, divorce would seem antiquated. The individualistic standpoint of the eighteenth century, as expounded by Jean Jacques Rousseau, has been for quite a long time, contradicted by a more positive view.

The nucleus of society seems to be, not the individual guarding himself as much as he can in Jeffersonian way, against the commonwealth, but the family. Whatever we may think of our individual rights, the family exists and works, and its existence cannot be disregarded.

This unusual series will be continued next week. On Monday the views of Mrs. Olive Scott Gabriel, president of the American Association of Women Lawyers, will be presented.

PROBE OHIOAN'S DEATH POTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Analysis was planned today of a white sediment found in a glass in the hotel room of Victor Hilgers, 37, after his wife, Betty, broke in the door to discover her husband dead. Police said he drank poison.

Mrs. Hilgers, police reported, became alarmed when Hilgers failed to join her at a railway station and, returning to his room, found the body, fully dressed, on the floor. They had planned to return yesterday to their home town, Youngstown, O.

A note found in the room said:

"Goodbye, dear, take care of insurance and the money. Carl, it is all my fault, so do the right thing by Betty and see that she gets all the clothing, rings and the fur coat, as I owe it all to her. She has been my soulmate and I love her more than words can express. Goodbye, mother, Goodby, Vic. I cannot go on and this is the only way out."

Police said Hilgers, manager of an automobile company, had been here two months.

LINDY UNMOVED BY PLANE FIRE

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Fire which broke out in the plane of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in Baltimore yesterday was made light of by the noted flier after his arrival here, airport officials said today.

The colonel was en route here from Washington where he attended the National Air Uniformity Conference when flames were discovered in his ship. He doused the fire with a hand extinguisher and damage done was slight, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh resuming their flight shortly afterward.

A motor backfire was believed to have cause the fire.

ITALIANS UNITE AIR FLEET

CARTAGENA, Spain, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—In two squadrons of three each, the six Italian seaplanes, forced to descend off the Balearic Islands on the first leg of a projected flight to South America, arrived here this afternoon. One machine was piloted by Italian Air Minister Italo Balbo.

The planes joined the eight others which reached Cartagena in a non-stop jump from Ortebello, Italy, starting place of the expedition. The entire squadron will leave for Kientra, Morocco, as soon as weather conditions are favorable.

Two machines are supply planes, and will turn back to Italy after the African coast has been reached. The remaining 12 are to fly in formation to Rio de Janiero.

Vanderbilt Writes Of Honeymoon Tour

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—William K. Vanderbilt is an author. It has been possible for a limited number to purchase some of the 500 copies of "Taking One's Own Ship Around the World" for $100 each. In 264 pages and 29 color plates he tells of the realization of an ambition.

The book begins:

"For years I had waited and toiled for the moment when as captain of my own ship I would be able to undertake a voyage rarely accomplished—the circumnavigation of the globe."

It was a honeymoon trip on the 213-foot yacht Ara.

Plan Ship to Shore Telephone Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—All boats in New York harbor, including pilot boats, tugs and barges, today were promised ship-to-shore radio telephone service if the Federal Radio Commission grants the application of the telephone company to build a 400-watt wireless station in the harbor. Need for the service was indicated, a survey of the American Railway Association said. It was held it would save time and money to shippers.

Expert Explains Babies' Table Manners

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—If the baby eats with his fingers and fists, or even spills a bowl of porridge over his head, don't fret. This was the advice given Chicago members of the American Chemical Society by Dr. Clara M. Davis.

It's only natural for the baby to have such table manners, according to Dr. Davis, who is in the fifth year of an experiment in letting children eat what and how much they please from an assortment of simple foods. The experiment, begun in a Cleveland hospital, is being continued in a nursery here.

PENNSY TRAINS REROUTED

Pennsylvania Railroad officials, in an effort to prevent congestion in the Pennsylvania terminal, last night rerouted seven of its crack through trains outside the main station. They were routed over a track along the Allegheny River from the Federal Street Station over the Brilliant cut-off to the main line at a point beyond East Liberty.

Special arrangements were made to transport passengers boarding and leaving the trains between the North Side and downtown stations.

INDIAN VICEROY REMOVED

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Bearing out expectations, the post of viceroy and governor general of India changed hands today with official announcement that Viscount Willingdon, present governor general of Canada, had been appointed to succeed Lord Irwin.

The change came in the midst of the India round-table conference, in session here for some weeks in efforts to formulate a new constitution for India.

Ordinarily Lord Irwin's tenure of office would not expire until April, 1931, when he would have completed his five years as viceroy.

Viscount Willingdon has served as Canadian representative of King George since 1926, and under ordinary circumstances would not have been relieved for 10 months more.

Reports were current that Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, of South Africa, was under consideration for the Canadian post.

200 Communists Die As Stronghold Falls

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Chinese press dispatches received here today said 200 Communists were killed when Nationalist government forces captured the Red stronghold of Pingkiang, in Northeastern Hunan Province.

CITIZEN KILLED IN THUG CHASE

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Two bandits who fought a running gun battle with police in which Robert S. Wallace, prominent architect, was shot and killed, were being hunted here today.

Wallace unwittingly drove his automobile into the line of fire of the two gunmen while they were shooting at a purruing police squad.

Police overtook the bandits in their stolen automobile after three holdups they had committed were reported to the squad on the police radio. The bandits eluded their pursuers after Wallace was shot.

Eight robbers have been killed by citizens and police during the past week.

2 TIE SHERIFF, DEPUTY, FLEE

RUSTON, La., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—North Louisiana was aroused today by the daring of two prisoners who handcuffed and tied to a tree a sheriff, his deputy and a third prisoner, and then escaped in the officers' automobile.

The prisoners, in the custody of the officers, were en route to Monroe, La., from Farmersville, La., where as O. C. Edwards and Jim Yarrell, they had been arraigned for the recent robbery of a Farmersville bank. They had been brought from Silver Springs, N. M.

One of the captives pulled a pistol from his sock and held up Sheriff Pat Murphy and Deputy Sheriff Edwards. Then seizing the officers' guns and keys the two men transferred their handcuffs to the wrists of the officers. Mike Eskew, another suspect, who refused to break for liberty, also was tied up.

Edwards finally freed himself and unlocked the sheriff's handcuffs with an extra key.

The officers later received word that the men had abandoned the first motor car because of mechanical difficulties and had commandeered another. A search was started.

HIT-RUN DRIVER BEING SOUGHT

A hit-and-run motorist who struck Mrs. Louise Lenk, 51, of 3322 Juliet street, while she was crossing the Boulevard of the Allies near Ward street last night was being sought by police today. Mrs. Lenk, suffering concussion of the brain and body bruises, is in the Magee Hospital.

Andrew Dacko, 16, of 246 Second avenue, Homestead, was cut and bruised when struck by an automobile on Brown's Hill. He was taken to Homestead Hospital by George H. Metcalf, of 4132 Saline street, driver of the machine. Metcalf reported the accident to police at the Squirrel Hill Station.

OWL HITS AUTO, SCARES DRIVER

Overbrook police today were wondering if a charge of reckless flying or flying without lights oughts to be placed against an owl which shortly after midnight collided with the automobile of Thomas Woodward, of McKeesport, on Maytide street, Carrick, and gave Woodward a scare he didn't get over for an hour.

There was a crash against the windshield, and Woodward was sure he was being held up. He recited the story to the police and a squad scoured the neighborhood with flashlights. Then they found the owl along the street, dazed, but apparently not otherwise injured.

It was taken to the police station and placed in a cell while police wondered what ought to be done.

League Organized To Fight 'Rackets'

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—An immediate drive in the attempt to end racketeering will be launched by the Anti-Gang Rule League of America, Inc., it was announced today.

The league plans to amalgamate law-abiding forces throughout the nation to press law and citizenry into a war on gangsters. Headquarters are to be maintained here and in Chicago.

Council Ponders Problem Of Policed Traffic Lights

A problem that paraphrases the age-old question of "which came first, the chicken or the egg," appears to have developed in City Council in its dissertations on the efficiency of traffic lights, with policemen as assistants.

Discussing budget plans at a meeting yesterday, Councilman Alderdice said:

"The use of policemen at corners downtown where traffic lights have been installed, appears to be a gross waste of money if the lights are serving their purpose."

President John S. Herron interposed:

"Well, traffic is increasing. A lot of motorists don't pay any attention to traffic signals. The officers see to it that the rules are obeyed."

Alderdice parried:

"The Better Traffic Committee told us when the lights were installed, officers could be relieved from duty on corners and transferred to beats where they were needed. So far they haven't been able to accomplish it. I can't see why both police and the lights are needed. As I understand it, more officers are being added."

Herron then said:

"Well, it appears to be a difficult proposition. Let's call a conference with the Mayor and the Director of Public Safety and see how they feel about it."

This was agreed to, with the question still unsolved.

Auto Crash Ruins Officer's Peace And Porch

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—It was quiet as Policeman Thomas O'Hern sat at his dinner table last night, enjoying life after a hard day on the beat.

Then there was a crash. It was terrific. The little bungalow shook. Dishes were hurled to the floor.

"It's a bomb," shouted his wife.

Seizing his pistol, the officer hurried toward the front porch, but it was gone. In its place was the wreckage of a motor car.

Said a timid voice:

"Don't shoot."

Then John F. Boylan extricated himself from the debris and explained that it all happened because another car got in his way.

SPECIAL MUSIC WILL FEATURE PROGRAMS

Significance of Season To Be Portrayed in Songs, Pageantry and Dramas

Christmas will be observed in song and story tomorrow in many churches of Pittsburgh and vicinity. Pageantry and cantatas will bring the story of the nativity to many congregations, while the singing of carols will feature in others.

"The Story of Christmas," a cantata, will be sung tomorrow night in the Knoxville Presbyterian Church, Knox avenue and Jucunda street. Mrs. Regina S. Linn, soprano, will sing the "Annunciation" and "From the Eastern Mountain."

TO PRESENT DRAMA

A dramatization of "Why the Chimes Rang" will be presented tomorrow night by the young people of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center and Liberty avenues. At the morning service the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day will speak on "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

A pageant "At His Throne" will be presented tomorrow night in the First Methodist Protestant Church, Aiken avenue and Home street. The Rev. J. W. Hawley will speak at the morning service on "Christmas Music."

Special music will feature both services tomorrow in the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street. Frederick Lotz, organist and director, will be in charge.

PAGEANT ARRANGED

"A Mystery for Christmas," a musical religious pageant based upon a Fifteenth Century Scriptural play, will be presented tomorrow night in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Bellefield avenue, by a cast of 25 persons and a chorus of 20 voices. A special musical service will also be held in the morning.

"The Significance of Christmas" will be the morning subject of the Rev. J. K. McDivitt, of the Manchester Presbyterian Church, Chateau and North Franklin streets, North Side. At the evening service a cantata will be given.

A drama, "The Pageant of the Kings," will feature the evening service tomorrow in the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Perrysville avenue and Burgess street, North Side. At the morning service the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart will speak on "Incarnation—What Happened at Bethlehem 1930 Years Ago?"

The Rev. Dr. William T. Lytle, of the Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church, will speak tomorrow morning on "The Heart of Christmas." Special music will feature the service.

STUDENT GIVES ORGAN RECITAL

William Alter Hazlett, of Oakmont, organist at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., will present an organ recital at 4 o'clock vesper services tomorrow in North End Methodist Episcopal Church, Bonvue street, North Side.

Hazlett is a junior at the university and the first student organist in the history of the school. He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha, honorary music fraternity, accompanist for the Glee Club of the institution, and has appeared on several radio programs. At the morning service the Rev. James Allen Kestle, pastor, will speak on "There Sat a Soldier."

Miss Snow Makes Bow At Tea

An outstanding event of the afternoon is the debut of Carolyn-Clare Snow, daughter of the L. Blaine Snows, of Kinsman road, who is being presented at a tea this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club by her aunt, Mrs. William D. Hamilton. The ballroom is banked with pines, with poinsettias colorful against their dark background.

The debutante is wearing a gown of one of fashion's favorite colors and materials, turquoise blue chiffon velvet, moulded to the figure to the knee and then flared. Puff sleeves of turquoise blue net and a yoke of the same material add a touch of quaintness, completed by the off-shoulder neckline so much in favor generations ago. And the bud's hat matches her gown and her flowers are pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Hamilton is wearing black velvet and lace with a hat to match, and Mrs. Snow has selected a flowered gold lame gown with kolinsky as the only trimming, and a hat to match. Both have corsages of orchids.

Receive Guests

Assisting the debutante, who arrived home Wednesday night from Miss Dow's School, Briarcliff Manor, are sister buds.

Mrs. Hamilton has asked to be her aides Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Mrs. William J. Holland, Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. Frank J. Kier, Mrs. J. Kennedy Moorhead, Mrs. Henry C. McEldowney, Mrs. James E. Umbstaetter, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Edward H. Brainard, Mrs. Henry Phipps Hunter, Mrs. Wallace Hurtle Rowe, Miss Margaret Barnett, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Mrs. T. Coleman Ward, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Miss Carolyn Penney Haney, Mrs. Archibald H. Hamilton, Mrs. Eugene C. Gary and Miss Harriet Alexander.

Laura Collord, home from the Sarah Lawrence School, Bronxville, N. Y., made her bow last night at one of the largest balls of the season, given by her father and mother, the George L. Collords, in the Pittsburgh Club. Gayly lighted and bedecked Christmas trees decorated the clubhouse. Covers were laid for 400 guests, and the tables were covered with cloth of silver and centered with miniature Christmas trees.

Presented At Ball

Before the ball the G Harton Singers entertained in the Pittsburgh Golf Club with a dinner in honor of Hester Harton Browne, debutante daughter of the Richard Hollyday Semples, of Sewickley Heights and Louisville, Ky. The guest of honor wore turquoise blue chiffon, fashioned with a cowl neck-line and having rhinestones as the only decoration. Mrs. Singer wore cricket green velvet. Dinner was served at small tables, covered with green cloths and centered with crystal bowls holding Calla lilies.

Mrs. Taylor Allderdice entertained at a luncheon in her home yesterday in honor of her granddaughter, Jane Travers, who is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Edward S. Travers, of St. Louis, and who is spending Christmas with her grandparents. Guests included the classmates of the guest of honor, a student at the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., this year. Jane wore a charming frock of French blue wool and silver, and Mrs. Allderdice chose midnight blue chiffon with touches of French blue. Christmas decorations were a feature of the luncheon

Honoring Sub-Deb

And still another entertainment for a member of the school set has been planned. This time the honor guest will be Mary Alice Sharp, of Steubenville, O., who will be feted at a dinner in the Twentieth Century Club the evening of December 27, preceding the Yale Glee Club concert, by Sarah Jane and Scottie Jean McKeown, daughters of Mrs. Scott Alexander McKeown, of the Hotel Schenley. Mary Alice and Sarah Jane are classmates at the Spence School, in New York, and Scottie Jean is a student at the Winchester School, and of course, Mary Alice is to be the house guest of the McKeowns for some time.

Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, of Fifth avenue, will give their annual New Year's Day tea, from 4 until 7 o'clock in their home. They, and their daughter, Katherine Edwards, have been in Lexington, Ky., since early fall, and are expected home tomorrow. The Harkness Edwardses and their two children, of Donerail, Ky., will arrive here the first of the week for the holidays.

New Year's Day Tea

Another Yuletide social affair will be an informal supper-dance Dr. and Mrs. Harry S. Nicholson, of Shady avenue, will give Christmas night in the Pittsburgh Country Club. Their daughter, Janet Schuyler Nicholson, who returned last evening from Sweet Briar, Va., will be the honor guest. And the guests will include classmates of the guest of honor.

Harold Ney Prothero, Jr., will give a dinner-dance in the University Club the evening of December 27 in honor of his sister, Louise Glennavee Prothero. Louise spent two months during the last summer traveling abroad with her brother and their parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. Ney Prothero.

Additional patronesses for the Williams College Cap and Bells production, "The Blue and the Gray," to be presented the evening of December 29 in the Twentieth Century Club at 8:30 o'clock, have been announced.

Mrs. G. P. Bassett, Jr., is lending her support, as are Mrs. F. B. Bell, Mrs. M. L. Benedum, Mrs. C. S. Bradley, Mrs. T. C. Clifford, Mrs. Clarence William Close, Mrs. Samuel Comly, Mrs. Glendon Elder Curry, Mrs. Theodore G. Daub, Mrs. A. N. Diehl, Mrs. T. C. Donovan, Mrs. B. K. Elliott, Mrs. John D. Evans, Mrs. William W. Ford, Mrs. Kirtland C. Gardner, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary and Mrs. R. F. Gove. Also, Mrs. Charles J. Graham, Mrs. S. E. Hackett, Mrs. William G. Hawkins, Jr., Mrs. Adam M. R. Jacobs, Mrs. T. C. Jenkins, Mrs. John J. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Harper Lyle, Mrs. J. E. MacCloskey, Mrs. Elder W. Marshall, Mrs. Samuel McClay, Mrs. John F. Miller and Mrs. George B. Moreland and Mrs. A. T. Morgan.

Others on the list include Mrs. John A. Murtland, Mrs. O. M. Ott, Mrs. Robert M. Repp, Jr., Mrs. William F. Robeson, Mrs. William M. Robinson, Mrs. Robert A. Rundle, Mrs. Andrew E. Sloan, Mrs. George Snow, Mrs. W. Denning Stewart, Mrs. John F. Tim, Mrs. Thomas Turnbull, Jr., Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. James O. Wallace and Mrs. J. Merrill Wright.

The annual breakfast given by the Smith College Club for the undergraduates home for the holidays will be given in the Twentieth Century Club on Saturday, December 27, at 11:30 o'clock. In addition to the musical program, Dean M. Helen Marks, of the Pennsylvania College for Women, will give a brief talk, and Miss Caroline Bixler, who spent her junior year in France under the auspices of Smith College, will tell of her experiences there.

College Breakfast

The following undergraduates are expected to be present: Elsie B. Barnhart, Betty Baum, Elizabeth E. Bell, Helen E. Bixler, Mary H. Boardman, Jean L. Crannell, Mary E. Creighton, Mary Louise Dicken, Elizabeth R. Fisher, Louise C. Gardner, Jean B. Hamilton, Margaret Hamilton, Grace Hertz, Mary W Knox, Helen G. Long, Celia M. Long, Eleanor R. MacKenzie, Mary J. Magee, Gladys Mase, Caroline Murray, Gwendoline Niemann, Isabelle Pendleton, Alice R. Rust, Jean S. Scott, Elizabeth Stieren, Elizabeth O. Stout, Elinor H. Tucker, Frances Wooldridge and Margaret B. Zimmerman.

The officers of the club for this year are: Mrs. K. W. Todd, president; Mrs J H. Bowman, vice president; Mrs. J. T. Brown, secretary; Mrs. Charles Raisig, treasurer, and Miss Helen Marks, councilor.

Like the traditional Christmas fruit cake, the Yule season is full of a countless variety of new and amazing things. There are always unexpected betrothals, and exciting news of wedding dates

Today I am going to tell you of the most recent engagement of which I've just learned.

The William Booth Millers, of Pine road, Sewickley, announce the engagement of their debutante daughter, Elizabeth Booth Miller to Kirtland Cutter Gardner, Jr., son of the Kirtland Cutter Gardners, of Springbank, Coraopolis Heights.

Elizabeth attended the Masters School in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and the Erskine School in Boston. Her fiance is a graduate of Williams College.

On Monday evening Miss Mary Overholt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scott Overholt, of Crafton Heights, will become the bride of Clarence Taylor Van Meter, son of Mrs. Clarence M. Van Meter, of East Liverpool, O., in the Crafton Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Frank J. Sparling officiating.

To Marry Monday

Mrs. Carl John Thye, of St. Louis, Mo., will be the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Miriam Peters and Miss Gertrude Van Meter, sister of the bridegroom-elect. James F. Fortner, of East Liverpool, will serve as best man and the ushers will include the bride-elect's brother, Joseph Edward Overholt, and Theron Van Meter, brother of the bridegroom-elect. There will be a reception in the home of the bride. After a wedding trip Mr. Van Meter and his bride will make their home in Crafton Heights.

HOME CHILDREN GIVE PLAY

A cast of 50 children last night presented "The Toy Shop," the eighth annual Christmas musical entertainment at the Industrial Home for Crippled Children in Carnegie Music Hall, under the direction of Miss Frances E. Shirley, superintendent of the home.

The programs for the play were printed by the boys of the school, while the girls made the costumes. They were directed by Miss Margaret A. Frew, principal, and Miss Ruth Davis, Miss Lois Vinton and Miss Margaret Ward, teachers.

Sunday Services At Salvation Army

"The Birth of the Saviour" will be the subject for both morning and evening services tomorrow in the Salvation Army Headquarters, Second avenue. Adjt. George Brooks will speak at both services.

"God's Christmas Gift to Earth" will be the subject of the Sunday School lesson at 2 p. m., and "The Gift of Love" will be the subject of the Young People's Legion meeting. Both vocal and instrumental music will feature all services.

YulePageant Given at Congress

A series of colorful tableaux and dances to lines of poetic beauty. This was the Christmas pageant, "Thus It Is Written," which Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, drama chairman, composed for the Congress of Clubs and which was presented yesterday to a crowded house. Through the three episodes were shown the journey and arrival of the Three Wise Men, the worship of an humble family at the Manger, and the Past, the Present and the Future seeking the blessing of the Christ.

Rosemary Haugh made a lovely Mary; Frances Schreiner Weber portrayed Joseph; Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, Mrs. F. W. Flaccus and Mrs. Allan D. Kirk added much to the richness of the pictures as the Wise Men; Mrs. Harry Dixon and Mrs. J. D. S. Truxell depicted the shepherds, and the humble family was made up of Miss Helen V. Irwin, Mrs. W. F. Fish, Mrs. George E. Morcroft and little Marian Snyder.

Others who had speaking parts were Mrs. Lula M. Giese, Mrs. G. H. Heimitsh, Mrs. Harry A. Silverman, Mrs. Jo Vogel and Mrs. J. H. Dickson, while the Congress choral, attired as angels and directed by Elsie Breese Mitchell, sang carols.

Under Helen Bennett's direction, students of the dancing classes presented atmospheric dances as details in the pageant.

Both the auditorium and the Outlook Alliance room were crowded for the beautifully appointed luncheon which preceded the program. At a board meeting earlier in the day the directors presentd Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston with a handsome taffeta purse with an exquisite lace handkerchief inside.

Mrs. Johnston announced the regular quarterly meeting for January 9.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" will be the suject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches. The golden text will be "Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God; which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth forever."

Christmas Themes At Ingram Church

The Rev. Dr. Charles C. Cribbs, of the First Presbyterian Church, Ingram, will speak tomorrow morning on "God's Christmas Gift." At the evening service his subject will be "The Christmas Spirit."

SCARFS FEATURED WITH THE NEW EVENING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—With its ends fluttering in the evening breeze the scarf begins another phase of its triumphant career. Many evening frocks of light material are featuring matching scarfs that are created to be an integral part of the costume, not just something to be worn and then conveniently mislaid. The scarf is to be found with frocks of lace, of chiffon, of georgette and of tulle and is most likely to be present when the material is of a pastel hue. Such a frock with scarf is certainly most light and youthful in effect and so has found a ready welcome from the majority of women who seek something that will create an illusion of youth without being too insipid and deliberately youthful. The frock-and-scarf ensemble is being shown by nearly every house and so of course every designer is claiming credit for it, but most women are usually indifferent as to the origin of a style provided that it is of a style provided that it is of use to them.

CENTER TO GIVE PLAYLETS

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement will tomorrow night sponsor a community entertainment in the Theresa L. Kaufmann auditorium to commemorate the struggle of the Maccabees against the Syrian King Antiochus.

Included in the program will be a Yiddish musical phantasy, "Hammerel" and a scene, "In Alten Beth Hamedrosh." A third Yiddish playlet will be the "Chassidim Bild." These three acts will be presented by the Jewish Dramatic Studio of the Settlement. In addition there will be a dramatic reading by Norman Arluck in Yiddish of "Mein Erster Deposit." Bernard Sigal will present several violin solos. The final feature of the program will be a one-act play, "His Children," which will be presented in English.

Pastors to Speak At Church Dedication

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—Formal dedication of the new church building erected by the Second Presbyterian congregation of Washington will be observed in services throughout the week beginning with Sunday, December 28.

Nationally-known speakers will be heard during the week's program, including the Rev. Dr. Donald M. Kenzie, of the Western Theological Seminary; the Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, moderator of the General Assembly; the Rev. Dr. C. E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and other prominent divines.

Christmas Program At Trafford Church

"The Challenge of Christmas" will be discussed tomorrow morning by the Rev. T. Murray Brown, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Trafford. At the evening services a Christmas program will feature.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Are the Men Turning Into Clinging Vines?

Once Papa was the Big, Bold Boss who thrust out his chest and cried, "No, No! It's my place to do that!" whenever the Little Woman showed signs of independence. But that was when Woman's Place Was in the Home.

Is man changing now? Is he content to "Let Jane Do It" while he snoozes in the shade? And is he in danger of losing his place in the scheme of things by being like that?

John Green thinks he is. "If they keep on the way they're going," says he, "they'll be clinging vines within the next generation!"

Tune in on his broadcast. It'll be good for what ails you—even if you don't believe it.

"Dear Miss Martin:

Men Becoming Lazy

"I think they are. And it would be no surprise to me to have them turn into actual clinging vines within the next generation. The reason is the same that makes fish become eyeless when they live in perpetual darkness . . . . . the same one that bleaches celery . . . . . and that makes flabby milk-sops of the bed-ridden.

"Since women have come out of the home and begun to work, the men are becoming willing to let them do all the work while they loaf. It may listen lovely to Lazy Larry to have someone take on his load . . . but what's it going to do to him? Plenty!

"Men have gradually become poor providers and lazy specimens who are strong on resting and enjoying themselves, but weak on family maintenance. Little wonder that women have gone to work for themselves. Little wonder that they refuse to submit to living a life of impoverished, incubating slavery, with inevitable drudgery, fatigue and premature aging over worrying about stretching Papa's Pay Check over the family budget. And when she is aroused, the female of the species is deadlier than the male!

More Extravagance

"Of course the 'good old-fashioned American home' is on the skids. What we'll have to take its place I don't know. But there isn't any question about its decline. Girls of today are less capable of making a comfortable home . . . less accomplished in entertaining . . . less skillful as cooks . . . and needle-work is becoming a lost art with them. The tasty dishes of grandmother's day have been traded for a model 1930 can opener.

"And of course there is more extravagance now than in grandmother's day. The Sweet Young Things of 1930 just can't stand the smell of honest sweat. And as for washing overalls—phooey! And 'parking a burden' is out. 'John, dear, why don't you get a job like Mr. Jones? I think he looks so nice when he steps down the walk to his office!'

"So there you have it—the 50-50 living of the present day. Wife must have a car, a radio, a nice diamond 'as big as Gertrude's.' They must dance, stay up as late as the Smiths, and have an apartment with all the modern conveniences. They must play golf like the Browns. And where is the money coming from?

"Well, Jane can work! And when she begins to work, John all too often lays down on the job. Why should he put himself out when someone will do for him? That is just plain human nature working.

"And I have a strong suspicion that it was the same old human nature, working the same way, that lost the good ladies their ancient matriarchies.

"So, brothers, you'd better look out! Because I have a suspicion that thousands of years ago, when the Big Girls were stepping on your necks so hard that you got up (like the girls themselves are now) and objected, and insisted on your right to do real work and run a few things for yourselves, the girls said, 'All right! If George wants to do it, let him!' And then they settled back to enjoy a little leisure. And first thing they knew, they were locked up in harems and you were running things and telling them they didn't have strength or sense enough to manage their own affairs.

Sounds Warning

"They thought they were being smart by leaning, just as a lot of modern men think they're smart. And look what it did to them!

"So men had better watch their step! Because it looks to me like the Matriarchal social and industrial Dim Dawn is pinking the horizon of this twentieth century, and will be going strong before we know it. Zounds!

"It's all right for the girls to work if they want to. A 50-50 world is a fine ideal. . . but let's work with them, and not play into the cussedness of human nature by laying down on the job and letting them do it all.

"JOHN GREEN."

Pretty lurid picture, isn't it? But supposing it's true? What then?

Think it over, boys. Then—say your say!

Usually the public is captivated by some popular person everyone can understand.

But in the case of Dr. Albert Einstein it is just the opposite. The renowned scientist has captivated the public because it is said only six of the greatest scientific minds can completely comprehend his theories.

Yet the public speaks as familiarly of Dr. Einstein as if he had just mastered a new curve ball for a world series.

If he had just landed from a lone flight into space he couldn't be received more enthusiastically.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Party Rushes to Outspeed Veritzen to Farmhouse

"We'd cop the booby prize all right—all but you, Lil," Harry Underwood told his wife when she had pointed out that Philip Veritzen was doubtless still in the lobby, and that our going out of the hotel equipped for a motor drive would have aroused his suspicions concerning our errand. "But thanks to your hindsight—it was too late to be called anything else" — he grinned at her mischievously, "there hasn't been any harm done. Lil, if you'll get my driving things and some blankets together, I'll get busy on this telephone."

Lillian hurried into the other room, and Dicky helped me into my heavy motor coat and put on his own, the while we both listened to Mr. Underwood's crisp words on the telephone.

"Purnell! Pay attention, boy, and keep your voice to a whisper. Is Mr. Veritzen still in the lobby? Yes? All right, answer the rest of these questions by 'yes' or 'no' and I'll repeat. Is he waiting for somebody? Yes? I thought so. Do you know who it is? His chauffeur? Has he ordered his car? Yes? Do you know for what kind of a drive? Yes? A long one? Yes? Plenty of oil and gas and all the rest, eh? Yes? Do you know how many minutes he's given the chauffeur before starting, don't name them, just answer 'yes' or 'no.' More than fifteen? No? More than ten? No? Just ten? Yes? All right. Now listen. You put somebody else on that switchboard and you go into the booth in the drug store, call my garage and tell them all hell will break loose if they don't have that car of mine all serviced ready for a long journey, and outside their door in seven minutes from now. Then call a taxi to be ready outside the basement entrance of the hotel, the one that opens on the other street—as soon as he can get here. Tell the manager or whoever's on, that we're coming down the service elevator and don't want any interruption. You run the service elevator up here yourself as soon as you've telephoned. We'll be waiting. Got everything? Good boy! You'll not be sorry."

He turned to us with eyes hard above the infectious grin which always marks the beginning of any strenuous task for him.

"With any luck at all, we'll beat old Phil out," he said. "Lil, you won't have outdoor things on, so you mosey down to the service elevator in about five minutes and when Purnell appears, run back and tell us. We'll be waiting, and in that way you can see if the coast is clear. It isn't the pleasantest assignment in the world, that service elevator isn't exactly a perfume shop, but——"

I think I shall be able to survive the ordeal," his wife told him dryly, putting down the things which she had brought from the other room.

"Where can I rustle some pillows?" Dicky asked suddenly. "I have an idea that Madge could get quite a comfortable sleep, if I packed enough pillows and blankets around us and made myself into a sort of chaise lounge."

"You mean you have an idea that you can cop off 40 winks or so," Mr. Underwood gibed. "If you have not your head on your frau's shoulder, snoring your life away within 15 minutes after we start, I miss my guess. But I don't care. I don't crave front-seat conversation any more than I do backseat driving tonight. Just so you keep your mouths shut and you are ready to lend a hand with a tire, I'm satisfied."

"There's just one thing I crave," Lillian said decidedly. "I won't expect any message until you've left the farm, for, of course you'll be busy every second. But you have Katrina phone us the minute you start."

"If she hasn't fainted with exhaustion after carrying out your instructions," Dicky said, and then Mr. Underwood looked at his watch.

"Better get to the service elevator, old dear, and look out for Purnell," he told Lillian.

She picked up a waste basket, crammed some paper into it and crossed to the door.

"Camouflage," she said, looking back over her shoulder with a grin. "Half the old ladies on this floor trot down to that elevator at night with the remains of their surreptitiously cooked dinners in their waste-baskets. I'll come a-running as soon as I sight Purnell."

We gathered our things together, the men loading themselves down with pillows and blankets, and I took Mary into my arms.

"Try to be sensible, dearest, and get some sleep," I whispered. "Mrs. Bickett will telephone as soon as we leave there, and—you see we are getting started ahead of Mr. Veritzen, so there will be no chance of his seeing Noel. You know what a demon-driver Mr. Underwood is."

"That's just it," she whispered back. "I shall be so worried until I see you again."

"By 'demon' I also mean 'uncannily clever' I told her. "After all, he was an ambulance driver during the war, you know, and —I'll promise you we won't drive so fast, coming back with Noel."

She was ashamed of the look of relief which flashed into her eyes. I knew that and pretended not to see it as I kissed her. And then Harry Underwood, watching the corridor through a crack in the door, said in an undertone:

"Lil's skimming down the hall. Here's where we go over the top!"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Invitation to a Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a member of the cast that is going to give a play, and the director of the play is giving a party. Each one is given the privilege of inviting a friend. How would you write an invitation stating this?

A READER.

The note might be something like this:

Dear Bob—The director of the play in which I have been rehearsing at school is planning a party for the cast, and he is so kind as to suggest to each member of the cast may invite a guest to the party. The party is to be given on Friday evening, the seventh of March, in the Town Hall, at 8 o'clock. Can you go with me? I shall be so happy if you can.

Best wishes to you and high hopes for the seventh.

Cordially yours,

MARY CAMBRIDGE.

Matron of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me whether it is proper for my sister, who is a widow for three years, to be a matron-of-honor at my wedding.

ANGEL.

An Unnecessary Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A girl friend of mine who is to be married next month is being given a dinner in her honor by a friend. My husband and I are invited, and I am in doubt as to whether to bring the guest of honor a gift. If so, what would you suggest, and should I bring it with me on this evening?

I am under the impression that in this case the guest of honor should be given a gift, but I want to be absolutely sure.

A READER.

I see no reason why you should take a present to the guest of honor of the party. Such a party is merely given in honor of the bride-to-be—and it would seem to me ridiculous to bring presents, too. I think that you are being generous in your budget for the bride's wedding present, and I would let that suffice for the present.

A Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am expecting a dear friend back from a trip to Europe and would like to know the proper way to arrange for a reception at their own home.

A. E. D.

I wonder if you should make such an arrangement? Does the returning traveler know that you are planning such a party? It might be more or less (although I think less) appropriate if the reception were to be at someone else's home. Usually people are tired with traveling and with passing through the customs and so forth and they do not wish to have a party so soon. And certainly not at their own homes. However, if you really think that it is the best of taste to give the party, then arrange to have it as you would any other reception. Issue cards or written notes.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Foresight May Protect Children From Illness

Recently the Diphtheria Commission of the Department of Health of New York City issued an uncomfortable statement. It is to the effect that diphtheria will probably be more prevalent this winter than it has been for several years.

DR. COPELAND

This warning should be sufficient to prevent such a calamity. Diphtheria is a terrible disease, as anyone who has come in contact with it can bear witness. But it is preventable, and there is no reason why every child should not be protected against it.

Although diphtheria is extremely contagious, some people will never take it. They are safe, no matter how often they may be exposed. Such persons are said to be "immune." This immunity increase with age, so that only a small proportion of the adult population is in danger of contagion.

But with small children the case is different. Very few of them are naturally immune, but fortunately all of them can be made so. The risk of infection is so great, and the consequences so serious, that every child should be tested to find out whether he is susceptible. If he is, he should be given the treatment necessary to overcome the condition.

The procedure for finding out whether there is immunity is simple. It is known as the "Schick test," and consists of injecting into the outer layer of the skin a tiny drop of toxin.

If there is no reaction, the person is immune. But if the spot turns red and stays red for a week or so, looking rather like a mosquito bite, it means that the person is not immune. In that event he should be given injections of toxin-antitoxin to create immunity.

The toxin-antitoxin treatment is easy and harmless. Three injections are given, a week apart, and within six months complete immunity develops. There are no serious after-effects to be feared—no excuse why any child should not be treated.

Sometimes, the immunizing injections are given at once. In this case, the preliminary Schick test is avoided.

The toxin-antitoxin treatment in diphtheria was one of the great achievements of modern medicine. By its use the toll of the disease was cut down to one-third of the former figure. Its universal use would within a few years wipe out diphtheria entirely.

Whether this result can be achieved depends on what can be done with the very young children. The disease is most deadly among those less than five years old—the pre-school age. They should be immunized as soon after the age of six months as possible.

But whether this desirable end can be reached depends almost entirely on the parents. The Department of Health of the City of New York has made it as easy as possible for every child to be given the proper attention, yet less than a quarter of the children under 10 years of age have been immunized. Until every child in every community is reached, we should not rest content.

Answers to Health Queries

J. R. Q.—What causes cold hands and feet?

A.—This is usually due to poor circulation. Build up the general health and your circulation will improve.

J. T. I. Q.—What is the cause of premature gray hairs? I am only 19 years old.

A.—Heredity, shock or severe illness will often cause premature grayness.

Mrs. N. S. N. Q.—What should a woman of 46, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 162 pounds. When I give these figures you will understand I am speaking about the average person. If these show you are a few pounds under or a few pounds above this weight you must not feel that fact has any particular significance. The figures, as I have said, indicate merely the average weight as discovered by the examination of a large number of persons.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Here's a trick way of growing your mouth into a Cupid's bow. Anoint the upper lip with a heavy massage cream, one thick enough to offer resistance. Place the first finger in the center of the lip, thumb at one end, second finger at the other end. Keep first finger stationary, draw up thumb and second finger. Mouth takes on a beautiful pucker. Try it.

Stimulating the skin all over the body is one way of getting rid of enlarged pores and an oily complexion. An excellent stimulant is the salt glow. Moisten a cupful of ordinary table salt. Friction it into the skin. The crystals will stir the functions of glands and blood vessels. Turn on the cold spray. Dry with a coarse towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience.

Every woman of thirty should take out an insurance against wrinkles by watching facial expression, keeping the skin surfaces well oiled, watching the diet so that the soft under padding of the skin does not lose tone and resiliency. There is no reason why years should bring wrinkles and cutaneous gullies. A healthy woman should be ashamed of them. With the right start, and the early start, they can be avoided. Cure of facial pleatings is difficult; prevention is easy.

Fur collars should be cleaned several times a season. They gather atmospheric dust and grind it into chin, cheeks and neck forming blackheads. Between the neck and coat collars of coarse fabric a scarf of soft material should be worn to avoid a rash that often results from friction and constant irritation of the cutaneous surface.

Self-consciousness is overcome by the cultivation of a little healthy conceit. Shy girls who hang around the edges of the party and never get any place socially should hand themselves a little applesauce, jump into the midst of things. They are probably as pretty and as attractive as other gals, but haven't learned the trick of putting themselves over. Some of these great little mouses land grand husbands.

That girl who fancies that she can tear around to parties every night, get to bed at dawn and still stay young and pretty is woofing up the wrong tree. The human nervous system can stand so much and no more. When it gets to the end of its endurance, it makes reprisals, draws dark circles around the eyes, puts creepy lines in the face, changes a healthy skin to a horrid pallor. There are laws of hygiene, having to do with regular sleep, regular meals, regular hours. Break them and soon or late, you pay.

Household Hints

Drain the fried bacon on a piece of brown paper before placing it on the heated platter. Then it will never appear at the table swimming in fat.

There will be no marks on your wall paper from collected dust on the backs of pictures if each frame has two rubber-headed tacks on the back, thus holding the frame away from the paper. However, in these times of few pictures, it takes very little more time to include picture cleaning when doing the room. Then you know there can be no soil from the frames.

When the stove polishing brush wears out, tack a piece of old velvet over the worn out bristles; it will polish as well as ever. Replace velvet when worn out.

Take a look at the tops of your bureau and dressing table and see if they have too many things on them, presenting a cluttered appearance. Too many articles, no matter how handsome, will spoil the effect of the room by making it appear cluttered and upset. Besides, it's not fashionable.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

The nerve of some people's sons! It is astounding.

A Detroit wife writes that after happy years of marriage in which she and her husband seemed to be perfectly mated, he suddenly went kafloofy, and told her he would like to have her leave. But on going he wished her to leave their baby girl to HIM. Fancy that! He said she couldn't make enough to support the baby and he could, so she must leave the child.

"Imagine," says the sensible wife—I know she's that by the long letter in which she told her story—"Imagine leaving your only child!"

Quite right, and why should you? Don't you leave. Stay where you are and keep the home things for yourself and your daughter. If he must have a separation let him get out himself. He's asking it, not you.

For the life of me I can't see the justice of running a woman out of her home anyway and taking her only child from her at the same time is an insane idea.

He can't take your child legally. He has no right. He can't run you out of your home. If you leave he can divorce you. That's probably what he wants. Stand your ground. His brother is right. It's certainly not your move.

If he is that determined there is probably an interest elsewhere. And if so he will recover and you may yet save your home. If not, at least you won't have to blame yourself for running out on him and the child. He has a crazy idea and you are acting very sensibly in standing by and waiting to see what it's all about.

Whatever you do, Mrs. Detroit, I'm certain you won't make a fool of yourself or of him. Usually I dislike long letters and sigh when I have to read them, but yours held my interest every minute. You have a level head and now is the time to use it.

You didn't inclose an envelope and you didn't give an adequate address. I am, therefore, trying to answer you the best way I know how. I hope you see this. I had other mail first, but somehow yours seems more important so I skipped them all to tell you how glad I am that you aren't hopping, skipping and jumping all over the place, but are taking long walks with your child, getting your husband good meals, keeping your home attractive and doing your whole duty.

Too bad there aren't more women who act that way in a crisis. There would be more happy endings.

Horoscopes

Sunday, December 21.

Sunday's horoscope holds promise of very lively situations but many that may be deemed unfavorable or unprofitable. There are many signs of hazard and disagreements in practical affairs, so the injunction is to attend to mystical and cultural activities exclusively.

Those whose birthday it is are apprised of a year of probable frustration and disappointment, with many impediments to progress and adverse conditions generally prevailing. There may be much activity and change.

A child born on this day should be quick and clever and also industrious and dependable, but it should be given an excellent education to fit it to overcome many obstacles and trials in life.

Monday, December 22.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a preponderance of interest in the affairs of the heart and home rather than business activities. These will engage the attention of those businesses concerned in these departments of life. However, employment is under benefic auspices and the personal popularity and influence may be instrumental in winning honors, preferment or some promotion.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of much social, domestic or romantic activity and prosperity.

A child born on this day should be kindly, amiable, gracious and friendly and should win popularity in social life and in employment, mainly through these humane qualities and talents. It should be artistic and cultured.

How would you like to lose 19 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

That's just what one western woman did—How happy she is.

How would you like to lose a load of unhealthy fat that you don't need and won't want and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts, which will last you for 4 weeks. Take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—eat what you need—take the exercise which Kruschen will induce—persist in this method every morning and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you can laugh at the people who pay hundreds of dollars to lose a few pounds of fat—now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 vitalizing salts of Kruschen (Salts that your blood, nerves and glands must have to function properly)—have presented you with glorious health.

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts.

COUNCIL VOTES FUND INCREASE TO CITY HOME

Larger Appropriation Due To 'Hard Times,' Other Welfare Items Approved

With salary increases totaling $17,000 approved, City Council yesterday passed tentatively on the budget estimate for the City Hospital and Home at Mayview for the fiscal year of 1931. At the same time the entire estimates for the Department of Welfare, headed by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, were given tentative official sanction.

Total appropriations for Mayview are $970,250, of which amount $463,500 is for salaries. A large portion of the money will be used in housing the greatly increased population at the City Home as the result of the industrial depression, it was said.

OFFICE FUNDS APPROVED

Other appropriations tentatively approved for the Welfare Department are: General office expenses, $73,464; mental health clinic, $8,980; bureau for the handicapped, $8,8394 and Mayview coal mine, $16,406.

Last year the appropriation for Mayview was $934,200. The increase for 1931 is due, it was asserted, to greater activities predicted for the 12 months to come.

Among other departments and sub-divisions of the city government whose budget estimates were approved, were the division of housing and sanitary inspection, $80,215; bureau of food inspection, $12,301; division of dairy inspection, $33,646, and division of milk, $35,099.

FIRE ESTIMATES APPROVED

Bureau of fire estimates were approved. The total $2,930,000, an increase of about $100,000 over the current year, due to the salary requirements for the full year. Some cuts have already been made in connection with proposals to build new or reconstruct existing engine houses.

Although the first of the year is near, much work remains to be done on the budget. Indications are it will be several weeks before the job is completed.

The budget committee will resume work Monday at 10 a. m. Decisions are yet to be made in regard to increasing the police force and funds for unemployment relief.

Accident Helps First Aid Practice

Members of the first aid team of Hose Company No. 2 of the Stowe Township Volunteer Fire Department were given practical training last night when their weekly practice was interrupted by an accident. John Sondaw, of Neville street, Stowe Township, suffered lacerations of the head when he fell on the sidewalk. He was carried into the engine house and given first aid treatment by members of the team.

Woe in Medix Run! Nimrods Bag No Bucks

DUBOIS, Pa., Dec. 26.—The most startling item of the recent deer season is that not a single buck was killed by a Medix Run resident.

That little hamlet is regarded as the capital of the buck country. Special trains are operated from Pittsburgh to the point every buck season. Its 23 able-bodied men all serve as guides for hunting parties. In other years they have parked off their own bucks in their own back lots after doing their day's work as guides.

But this year they found no bucks at home, and few on the chase. With most of the visiting hunters gone, the natives banded together for a hunt on the final day of the season, Monday. But they returned home without a buck. To a man the Medix Run hunters blame the situation upon the doe season that preceded the buck season.

Stricken Woman Remains in Coma

Mrs. S. L. Norton, 33, of New York, found unconscious Thursday night in her room in the Fort Pitt Hotel, was still in a coma in the Homeopathic Hospital last night, it was reported.

Hospital authorities said they were informed by a relative that Mrs. Norton suffered from a similar malady several years ago.

Announcing his belief in preparedness, Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, today announced appointment of four extra plainclothesmen in the borough. The burgess, as chairman of the public safety committee, appointed the men and ordered them to patrol the business streets.

The burgess announced John Kostnick, patrol driver of the police department, had been appointed a plainclothesman. He fills the position of James Conry, who has been off duty several weeks.

More mothers each year.. check Colds

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids the constant "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

2 WAYS at once!

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN AFTER JANUARY 1

Gradual Business Upturn In Prospect, Especially Following First Quarter

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Before the recent technical stock market rally, Wall street sentiment was scarcely typical of that of the country as a whole.

From such alleged distressed areas as Iowa and Nebraska, for example, come messages asking why there is so much blueness at the financial center. The viewpoint out there is that the liquidation and deflation in their region came much earlier, while Wall street was still having its inflationary fling. Out there, it is felt that the readjustment has been completed, and that competent managers have adjusted themselves to the new realities. These statements from the field are corroborated by the ledger experience of New York manufacturers and jobbers, who report better sales from that region.

Mr. Rukeyser

CONDITIONS EXAGGERATED

The truth is that conditions are never as good as emotional speculators think at the top, and never nearly so bad as they fearfully believe at or near the bottom.

With commodity and security prices deflated, if not overdeflated, opportunities will abound for the courageous and the inventive next year, for the risks of carrying things will henceforth be minimized.

Losses have been too farreaching to expect brilliant prosperity in 1931, but the prospects are for gradual improvement, especially after the first quarter. The stock market has already discounted a hard winter, and also unfavorable annual reports for this year. The slaughtering of security values has left the market at a level where it should be sensitive to any constructive developments when and if they materialize.

UNLOADING ABSURD

The throwing overboard of railroad stocks has been carried on to absurd extremities. The obvious drawbacks to railroad investments, such as close public regulation of rates, have been overdiscounted at the marketplace. Twenty-eight of the leading railroad common stocks, at this week's low prices, were offering an average yield of 7.9 per cent. The same rails were selling 11.1 times estimated 1930 earnings, which in my opinion are distinctly subnormal. Bangor and Aroostook, which is the only important railroad to show an actual increase in profits in 1930, has recently been selling for less than six times estimated 1930 earnings.

If American prosperity returns, railroad earnings will at least in part reflect better times. One drawback is that the rails share only partially in prosperity, but participate fully in depression.

Rail Merger Plan May Bar Taplin Line

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FORMATION OF THE new trunk line from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard proposed by the Taplin interests may be blocked if the Interstate Commerce Commission takes a favorable view towards the railroad merger plan understood to have been adopted by the four leading eastern systems.

The Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and the Van Sweringen lines are believed to have agreed on a four system rail merger plan. Full details are not known but it is quite certain that no provision has been made for any fifth system in the East. This might bar the merger of the roads necessary for the completion of the Taplin system.

The Taplin line would include the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Western Maryland. It would form a new direct route from the Middle West through Pittsburgh to Baltimore.

Rail Interests Conflict

THE PITTSBURGH AND WEST VIRGINIA is controlled by the Pennroad Corporation, an organization formed by Pennsylvania Railroad. The Western Maryland is dominated by the Baltimore and Ohio. Control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie is owned by the Van Sweringen interests, but is voted by a trustee who holds the stock under an Interstate Commerce Commission order.

The three roads have not been mentioned among the carriers which are to be traded by the four railroad giants. It is quite likely that each of the systems will want to retain its interests in these lines.

Favored by Commission

THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION has favored the formation of the Taplin system. It granted permission for the construction of the extension of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia to connect with the Western Maryland at Connellsville which made the formation of the line physically possible. It allotted all three roads to the Wabash, making the Taplin line a part of a fifth system.

The only opposition which the commission has shown to the Pittsburgh and West Virginia has arisen from objections to the control of the line by the Pennsylvania. The last time the road appeared before the commission with an application for permission to take over the Wheeling and Lake Erie, an attempt was made to satisfy this objection with the presentation of arguments that the close affiliation of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Pennroad Corporation no longer existed. The Taplins also asserted that they were willing to buy control of the line back from Pennroad.

First General Plan

IF THE FOUR principal Eastern trunk lines appear before the commission with a general plan, it will be the first time such a joint proposition has been made. Individual lines have presented plans in the past but the carriers have never before been able to settle their differences among themselves.

While the new plan provides for only four systems and does not coincide with the commission's five-system scheme, the proposal is likely to be given serious official consideration since it views the problem as a whole instead of from the standpoint of a few lines. Until the publication of its own merger plan the commission would not approve individual mergers since the transportation act required the adoption of a general scheme of rail mergers as a first step.

Brass Fabricators May Form Institute

Shields Extends Marginable Stocks

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Shields & Co. are permitting clients to carry on margin stocks selling for $7 a share or more, because of the large number of stocks which have declined below $10 a share, the former minimum price requirement. On stocks which will be carried on margin, a minimum margin of $4 a share will be required.

Gain Recorded in Engineering Awards

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Engineering construction contracts awarded throughout the country in the past week recorded gains in every branch of engineering except industrial buildings, Engineering News Record reports. Advancing to $55,483,000 for the period, lettings compared with a total of $47,222,000 in the preceding week and $48,841,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Denies Acceptance Of Republic Post

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 20.—I. M. Scott, former president of the Wheeling Steel Corporation has denied that he intended to accept the presidency or any other office of the Republic Steel Corporation at Youngstown, as rumored.

BUSINESS INDEX TAKES DROP

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—As we draw nearer the end of this year there are a few faint signs that business is beginning to pull itself together in preparation for an effort to turn the tide when the next one begins. Resistance to further decline has stiffened slightly, as the wave of liquidation has become heavier, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

Although the index of business activity fell somewhat further, from 77.5 per cent of normal to 76.3 per cent for the week ending December 13, steel production held up against the usual seasonal down trend, electrical power production was fairly well sustained, merchandise car loadings were somewhat higher than the seasonal expectation, and the volume of commercial loans and currency in circulation continued to expand. A year ago this week the index stood at 99.9 per cent. Firmness in steel prices is being maintained, and both security and commodity markets give encouraging indications of reaction to excessive liquidation under more deliberate support.

Unimpaired Freight Cars Reported Up

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Class I railroads on November 30 had 580,498 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced today. This was an increase of 47,053 cars compared with November 22, at which time there were 533,445 surplus freight cars.

Volume of Construction

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Computations of the volume of long-term state, municipal and improvement district bond issues voted for in the November elections indicate that a total of approximately $400,000,000 of such issues were authorized and that there will be a record volume of certain classes of public construction work during 1931, according to a statistical analysis prepared by the Associated General Contractors of America and appearing in the forthcoming issue of the Constructor, the association's official publication.

The Constructor foresees a considerable increase in state and federal aid highway work, in sewerage and water works systems, in grade crossing and main artery highway construction and in other types of public works for which bonds are issued, but views the outlook for private construction as distinctly unfavorable.

The outlook for the entire construction industry in 1931 may be considered the reverse of optimistic. For road and highway maintenance and construction in cities, townships, villages and counties the prospects are poor. For private work in all classes of private building construction the prospects are certainly not bright. For public works, state highways, public buildings and all classes of state and federal work there will undoubtedly be a decided increase.

Figures quotd from the F. W. Dodge Corporation show that the total of contract awards for the 11 months of 1930, ending with November, was $1,162,323,800 below that for the corresponding period last year, or a decrease of 21½ per cent, whereas the charts of the Constructor show that the volume of construction performed during this period, as indicated by shipments of basic construction materials, declined only 15 per cent. The difference between the percentages of decline in contract awards and the volume of construction performed is accounted for by holdover work from the previous year, a factor in which 1931 will be at a distinct disadvantage as compared with the present year.

LOCAL EXHIBIT HELPS HOME PLANNERS

Architects and Builders' Display Imparts Ideas To Many Home Owners

The Architects and Builders' Exhibit, 514 Seventh avenue, is rendering the people of Pittsburgh a valuable service. The service was installed for the purpose of giving ideas about building and architecture, free of charge, to people who are planning to build their own homes.

At the architects and builders' exhibit may be found floor space devoted to displays of various building materials and household appliances. Guides, who will explain the various exhibits, give ideas of types of construction and give literature about any product which may prove of interest.

The exhibit has been open since January, 1929, and many visitors have made their selections of materials and appliances from an inspection of the exhibit on the floor. The exhibit is free to the public during ordinary business hours. The local exhibit is one of 20 of its kind in the United States and each week sees something new and different in modern construction. Any one contemplating building or remodeling can make very profitable use of the exhibit.

Indorsement of the exhibit has been given by the Pittsburgh chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

INSTITUTE'S OIL PLAN O. K.'D

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Formation of a Pennsylvania-Delaware state section of the American Petroleum Institute's division of marketing has been approved by the general committee in a vote by mail.

R. D. Leonard, Philadelphia, Pa., state chairman of the Pennsylvani-Delaware code committee, has been asked to call an organization meeting of members of the institute enrolled in the division of marketing and residing within the states of Pennsylvania and Delaware. At this meeting the chairman, one or more vice chairmen, secretary, treasurer and a state committee will be elected.

Upon this election, the code committee automatically ceases to exist and its functions are taken over by the officers and state committee of the state section. This is the second state section for the division of marketing, the first having been formed by Maryland-District of Columbia members.

STEEL OUTPUT IN SEASONAL DECLINE

Roads' Tardiness Causes Small Rail Tonnage; Production Trend Off

By B. E. LUTY.

Production and shipments of finished steel products have been decreasing at no more than the usual seasonal rate, perhaps less. The showing is vastly more favorable than in September and October when tonnage was decreasing at a time when there should be marked seasonal increase. While it is unsafe to draw positive conclusions, the inference is that general trade was slipping at that time and is not slipping now but moving only in ordinary seasonal manner.

At this particular time of year steel ingot production is not a close measure of steel demand for the reason that producers endeavor to curtail their stocks of ingots and semi-fiqished, while the detached finishing mills do the same with their semi-finished, all in anticipation of January 1 inventory. Ingot production in the last week of November was at about a 40 per cent rate and finished steel production in the past week has been in keeping with approximately a 37 per cent ingot rate, but it may be that actual production of ingots is running less. There is no occasion to revise the estimate made a week ago of 7,000,000 tons ingot production in the quarter now ending, and a total of 40,000,000 tons for the year, of which 24,000,000 tons was made in the first half.

PENNSY ORDER

In each of the last three years the Pennsylvania Railroad system bought its rails for the new year in October. In 1927 it ordered 200,000 tons, it being understood that options were taken on 50 per cent additional, and in 1928 it laid 237,664 tons. Then in 1928 it bought 159,600 tons with an additional option, and laid 205,815 tons in 1929. The purchase in October, 1929, was different, as it was stated that the 310,000 tons mentioned was all firm, no option. It is not yet known how many rails are being laid this year, but various roads have not taken out all the rails they bought in the last buying movement. It is understood that the inquiry put out this week is for 150,000 tons firm, plus 50,000 tons optional.

AVERAGE LOWER

Rail buying in the seasonal movement to date totals around 400,000 tons, against 1,400,000 tons at this date last year, and 1,000,000 tons two years ago. The smallness of the present tonnage is due chiefly to railroads being slower to act this year, the Pennsylvania and New York Central being examples. Roads that have bought have averaged less than in recent years, but rather little less say no more than 20 or 25 per cent less at the outside. Next year's steel production will be correspondingly helped. In the last two months of last year there was no little rail production against orders nominally for 1930 delivery, while this year there is practically no production in anticipation of 1931, although rail production has increased materially in the last few weeks through belated releases on orders placed originally for delivery in the fore part of this year. For several years the annual buying movement has totaled between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 tons, and this buying movement, although sluggish so far, may total not far from 1,500,000 tons.

The steel business may be taken as subject to seasonal influence, tapering off towards the close of a year and then regularly increasing during about the first three months of the new year, improvement beginning immediately or almost immediately after January 1.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

ROADS BUREAU USES MODERN METHODS

County's Broken Topography Necessitates Unusually Heavy Excavations, Fills

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Secretary, Allegheny County Planning Commission.

Leading all the counties of the United States in its line of work, and with a construction record within the past three years of approximately 88 miles of heavy improved highway, the Allegheny County Bureau of Roads has adhered to the highest standards, its specifications actually calling for heavier construction than those of the state of Pennsylvania.

The most modern methods are employed and on every road a rigid series of tests is carried out to determine not only quality and quantity of material but the actual durability of the completed road. The broken topography of Allegheny County necessitated unusually heavy excavations and fills, in order to get proper grades and eliminate dangerous curves in the construction of county highways.

The endeavor of the road construction division to give the maximum of efficiency and economy has resulted in the use of the most up-to-date methods, for instance in the contractors being persuaded to use movable steel forms for concrete walls on the Ohio River boulevard, with the result of better alignment, smoother and more impervious surface, the saving of time in actual work, and cheaper construction costs.

The county's standards for pavements calls for roadways, 20, 30 and 40 feet in width and the 20-foot width is being used only on roads of secondary importance and compares favorably with the 18-foot roadways used by other communities and the state in such highways. The rights of way are secured of such widths as will permit the widening of all these roads at a later date if needed to care for increased traffic demands. All concrete road plans call for eight inches of concrete in the center, increasing in thickness to 10 inches at the shoulders. All traffic lanes are 10 feet wide instead of the customary 8.5 feet.

During 1930 the road construction division had 18 major highways under construction totaling 40 miles in length and costing approximately $8,500,000. Thirteen of these highways have been completed and the others far advanced in construction.

During 1929, 36.28 miles were completed at a cost of approximately $7,000,000 and during 1928 about 12 miles were finished at a cost of approximately $1,100,000, making a total mileage of approximately 88 miles for the three years and costing approximately $16,600,000.

Braddock Postal Head Renominated

Arthur J. Argall, postmaster at Braddock, has been nominated for another term by President Hoover, according to dispatches from Washington. Argall has been connected with the Braddock office for 13 years, most of the time assistant postmaster, and is just completing his first term as postmaster.

Real Estate

Sallie M. Hinkle has deeded to G. A. Givens a brick house at 323 Fisk street for $7,000. The lot is 20x125 feet. The Gribbin Company, represented by John J. McKenna, were the brokers.

A six-family brick apartment building in Mexico street, North Side, has been traded by Margaret A. Munsch to Francis P. Anton, who conveyed in part payment a modern brick house in South Aiken avenue. Roessler & Mueller, completed the trade and have been appointed renting agents for the apartment.

Grover C. Miller has sold to Thomas Glendenning an improved property in West Fifth avenue, McKeesport, for $5,865. The lot measures 37x135 feet.

A tract of land 43x585 in Avenue "A," Forest Hills, has been sold by the Interborough Improvement Company to Philip H. Kepner for $7,175.

The United Improvement Company has sold to August Pavliak 40x120 feet in Greensburg pike, North Versailles Township. Another lot in the same township, 50x340 feet, has been conveyed by Michael Kerin to Allegheny County.

An improved property in Madison avenue, Bellevue has been transferred by Martha Rights to Mary Maude Rights. The lot is 55x115 feet.

In Bell avenue North Braddock, the Rev. H. C. Boyle has sold a lot 29x100 feet to E. L. Palaszynski for $3,975.

Twentieth Ward—H. C. and A. M. Maxwell, frame extension, 1201 Stanhope street, $1,500.

Twenty-seventh Ward—L. Eiseman, concrete block garage, 959 Stafford road, $400.

Retailer Can't Get Supplies; Significant?

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

"I CANNOT get an order filled with any kind of merchandise except after unusually long delay."

Thus writes Frank Riese, watch maker, jeweler and radio supplies merchant of Bloomington, Wis. He adds:

"Other merchants along the street are in the same fix and have come to the conclusion that manufacturers have laid off men and have nothing on hand at all but a catalogue. Figuring on getting an order FIRST and then making it up some way. Looks to me that the safety first idea is carried to extremes. Everyone seems to be OUT of what you want. I have come to the conclusion that very few of them have anything. Business is not so good that stocks are depleted from the heavy buying. My experience and my neighbors' is that WE JUST CAN'T GET ANYTHING."

Does this condition rule in many parts of the country? If it does, we may witness a very sharp increase in manufacturing almost any day. I know that New York shoppers have repeatedly complained about the meagerness of stocks. You cannot sell goods you have not got. Trying to sell from samples will kill any merchant's trade.

THIS IS encouraging. Martin L. Davey, president of the Davey Tree Expert Company, of Kent, O., tells me that, notwithstanding the tendency this year to postpone spending money for tree surgery, through their increasing their advertising and by more aggressive sales effort, the business has been maintained slightly ahead of last year's volume.

"We are well satisfied with the outcome, inasmuch as no employe has been dropped and our regular dividends have been paid," says Mr. Davey, "although net income will not quite equal last year's. We believe that the worst is over and we are prepared to go ahead under full steam next year."

CHARLES PIEZ, head of the nationally-known Link-Belt Company, gives less favorable comparisons with last year. Substantial decreases are shown by his company. The best that Mr. Piez feels that he can conscientiously say is:

"There is no sign of an improvement on the horizon, and in our opinion, improvement in our line will not begin until several months of the new year have elapsed."

PRESIDENT H. W. SCANDRETT, of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, commenting on a speech by the writer, says:

"I believe with you that there is now a wonderful opportunity for the investor who acts with courage and discrimination. He may not buy at the very bottom—few if any are able to do this—but he will buy at bargain prices. It would seem to follow from this that now is the time for industry in general to be preparing for the better days which are surely ahead of us."

PRESIDENT PAUL W. SEILER, of General Motors Truck Corporation, after frankly admitting that business has been bad during recent months, observes:

"But we look forward to a splendid year in 1931 as general conditions, we feel, will turn. There is a lot of stored up business for our industry that we feel is bound to break in the early part of next year."

BRITTON I. BUDD, outstanding Chicago business man, offers this column an interesting suggestion. Thus:

"The economic conditions of the country as a whole do not justify the present all-prevading forebodings and miasma of fear.

"In each and every past financial crisis some constructive leadership came into action; some man or group of men rose to the situation and formed a rally-point about which business men and financiers could make a stand. In this depression we have had neither political nor financial leadership, and consequently lack of confidence has turned a temporary economic defeat into a more or less complete rout.

"I believe, however, that the country is on the way to recovery.

"IF THE GOVERNMENT COULD CREATE A REVOLVING FUND FOR HOME BUILDING on a 15-year payment plan, under proper administration, it would not only help materially the recovery of business, but it would more than take care of the interest on the money invested."

RALPH W. SMITH, vice president of the National Surety Company, decrying the fact that "all courage and optimism seem to have left the American people," remarks:

"I cannot help believing, however, that we are not really going into the 'sewer,' but that, on th contrary, the United States will still retain a place on the map of the world."

RETAIL TRADE VOLUME GROWS

However, Increased Volume Still Under Year Ago; Oil Production Gains

With holiday buying quite active, retail trade is in considerably larger volume than it has been lately, although still below the volume of a year ago, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Distribution at wholesale continues light, although colder weather has stimulated the demand for wearing apparel. What buying there is of jobbers is almost entirely for filling-in purposes and trade continues below the seasonal average with most wholesalers.

Demand for furniture and household goods is rather quiet but there has been a moderate improvement in radio sales with the demand for the smaller sets. Demand for jewelry has picked up materially, but the volume of sales for the year will be materially below normal. Hardware trade is in moderate volume, with toys moving fairly well. No improvement is noted in the demand for lumber and other building materials.

COLLECTIONS SLOW

There has been some improvement in the demand for electrical merchandise for the holiday trade, but electrical equipment as a whole is in rather slow demand. Movement of sanitary and heating equipment continues at a low rate, although some advances in prices have been reported to retailers.

A moderate increase in the output of crude oil is noted, although demand for refined products is at a lower rate. Not much change is noted in the production of bituminous coal and while demand for domestic purposes shows a slight increase, industrial users continue to be light buyers. There has been but little improvement in the collection situation here, the average continuing rather slow.

WINTER WHEAT ACREAGE LESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Fall sowings of winter wheat this year were announced by the Department of Agriculture to be 42,042,000 acres, or 1.1 per cent less than the acreage sown last fall, while rye sowings are 4,158,000 acres, or 4.1 per cent more than last year.

The condition of winter wheat on December 1, was 86.3 per cent of a normal as compared with 86.0 a year ago, and 83.2, the 10-year December 1, average.

The condition of rye was 82.6 per cent of a normal, compared with 87.2 a year ago and 87.8, the 10-year December 1, average.

The abandonment of winter wheat acreage in 1930 was 9.2 per cent of the acreage sown, compared with 6.2 per cent last year and the average in the 10 years, 1919-28 was 11.7 per cent.

BOTT DESIGN GETS PRIZE

Announcement of prizes awarded by Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company in their competition for architects in designing new bathrooms was made today by E. J. Hartman, Pittsburgh manager. The list includes: Paul M. Bott, $100; C. J. Palmgreen and G. P. McKinney, $50; Bronson B. Luty, $50; $25 to each of the following: Victor G. Tillbrook, Jared E. Tillotson, C. W. Gardner, Jr., Frederick Giffin, W. H. Grant, Edward J. Hergenroeder, Lake & Davison, Thomas C. Pratt, T. E. Critchlow and Rody Patterson.

The committee of award was composed of the following architects: William H. Beers, New York City; Gen. Allison Owen, New Orleans; Addison B. LeBoutillier, Boston; Louis C. Mullgardt, San Francisco and Eugene H. Kleber, Chicago. The contest was international in scope. Nearly $30,000 was awarded in prizes.

Increase in Gold Held by Canada

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The Dominion statement of circulation and specie for October 31 shows that the minister of finance held $107,196,000 in gold on that date as compared with $62,697,000 a year ago, according to advices received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Lynn W. Meekins, Ottawa. The total circulation of Dominion notes on October 31, last, was $142,129,000, of which $99,000,000 was in legal tender notes for the use of the banks only; $22,700,000 of these were outstanding against accrued securities under the provisions of the finance act of 1923; a year ago the total against such securities was $90,150,000.

ELECTED REALTY BOARD OFFICERS

ROY R. CAPPE — ROBERT F. MORRIS, JR. — FRED J. HETTLING

Three of the six officers Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. elected by the Mr. Cappe is president, Mr. Morris secretary, and Mr. Hettling treasurer. All are active realtors.

GERMAN SLUMP COMPLICATED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—German business in mid-December is preparing to face what is expected to be a most trying winter, according to a radiogram received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache H. Lawrence Groves. It is admitted that the actual decline of production and consumption is not seriously greater than in former periods of business depression, but the present situation is complicated by the psychological attitude of the public which to a greater extent than formerly participates in discussions of economic problems and finds it difficult to maintain business morale under the stress of successive disappointments. It is already clear that the Christmas buying pick-up will fall below last year and probably will not be sufficient to prevent a steady though small increase in unemployment figures during December. The peak of unemployment is expected in February, doubtless exceeding 4,000,000. Favorable factors include a satisfactory harvest, a measurable gain in exports during October and a conviction that the process of liquidating merchandise stocks cannot go much further without stimulating a new demand at the present low prices.

Agreement Near on Rail Delivery Policy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Representatives of the trunk line railroads and members of the Atlantic States Shippers Board in session here, are nearing an agreement in the latter's attempt to compel the railroads to adopt a policy of store-door delivery and pick-up service by means of trucks in connection with car loadings. The plan has the sanction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a report read to the delegates said.

Census Reveals Gain in Motion Picture Trade

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The Bureau of the Census announces that, according to data collected in the biennial census taken in 1930, the cost of work done in 1929 by organizations in the United States engaged primarily in the production of motion pictures and in the development and printing of motion-picture films amounted to $180,864,319, an increase of 34.6 per cent as compared with $134,343,360 reported for 1927, the last preceding census year. The theatrical negatives produced in 1929 numbered 2,543, valued at $118,692,733, and were divided as follows: Sound, 344, valued at $34,186,010; dialogue, 689, $67,719,427; silent, 1,510, $16,787,296.

The motion picture industry, as constituted for census purposes, embraces all studio and laboratory activities connected with the production of motion pictures and the preparation of motion-picture films for use.

PARK NEARS COMPLETION

Allegheny County Memorial Park, in the December issue of its house organ, Memorial Chimes, reports satisfactory progress in the development of the park and in the sales campaign during the past year.

Of the actual physical improvements to the property, exclusive of buildings, according to reports made by contractors and engineers, 54.6 per cent have been completed. Several parts of the work have been entirely completed.

REALTORS PICK 6 OFFICERS

Six officers have been elected by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at an organization meeting of the board of governors to serve for 1931.

Mr. Liggett

All those elected to serve the board have been prominent in the city's industrial life for many years.

President Cappe is real estate officer in charge of sales of the Fidelity Trust Company. He was a member of the board of governors for a number of years and first vice president for two years.

Mr. Mackintosh

R. T. Mackintosh, first vice president, is a South Hills broker. Prior to the World War he served as executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

Second Vice President Liggett for 20 years has been engaged in handling industrial properties and appraisal work.

Mr. Walsh

John L. Walsh has had 35 years' experience in the real estate business, and is president of the Real Estate Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

Secretary Robert F. Morris, Jr., is secretary of the Commonwealth Real Estate Company, and Fred J. Hettling, treasurer, has held that office for three years.

Orders Swamp Doll Lady, 'Tickletoes' Still Available

Dear Little Girls:

Yesterday was the busiest day of all. My doll headquarters was thronged from early morning until closing time with little girls and their parents, who had come in to get the big, adorable "Tickletoes" they had earned.

My "Tickletoes" offer is still open to all little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity, but the demand for dolls has been so tremendously big that it isn't a really sure thing that I can take any new requests for delivery before Christmas.

However, if you have not written to me and want to take a chance of getting a "Tickletoes" before the holidays, it is all right to send in your coupon today and I will lose no time in writing to you, explaining just what you will have to do for me to get lovable "Tickletoes" for your playmate.

If you are a newcomer and we can't give you your dolly before Christmas, you will surely get her before the new year. I have plenty of "Tickletoes" on hand to supply the demand for many weeks to come.

With a big force of assistants, I am working day and night to deliver every doll that has been earned and from the way things are going, I am assured that there will be no disappointments.

Yesterday we began to send dolls to little girls in the country. Many of the little girls who have earned a "Tickletoes" are unable to come to Pittsburgh, owing to the distance, but I expect to have every doll for out of town orders in the parcel post mail before next Wednesday.

I must acknowledge that I am swamped, but I like it because it makes so many little girls so very, very happy.

If you want a "Tickletoes," it isn't at all too late to write and tell me so. Here are the names of some of the little girls who have mailed the coupon, and they'll all get letters from me:

In closing today I want to tell you that "Tickletoes" is the biggest most beautiful doll you ever saw—you'll fall right in love with her. She's 20 inches tall, has a beautiful face, sparkling eyes that open and close, is unbreakable, has rubber arms and legs, cries like a real baby, and is gorgeously dressed in organdy, and, all in all, will make a wonderful playmate for you.

Merry Christmas!

New York Central slipped back ½.

BANK DEBITS TAKE DROP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—For the week ended December 13, 1930, bank debits showed declines from both the preceding week and the corresponding period in 1929. Total loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks remained at fractionally the same level as for the three preceding weeks. In comparison with the same period in 1929, however, a decline occurred. Interest rates for time money were lower than a week ago while call rates showed no change. Both rates were lower than a year ago. Prices for representative stocks and bonds declined from both comparative periods. The ratio of total Federal reserves to deposit and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined, while declining slightly from a week ago was considerably higher than in 1929.

Wholesale prices as measured by the composite index showed but a fractional decline from the preceding week. The price of wheat at Kansas City increased over the preceding period, while middling cotton at New York declined. Both prices were under their 1929 levels. The receipts of wheat at important centers were greater than the preceding week, while cotton receipts declined. Both movements were lower than a year ago.

Operators Maintain Crude Oil Program

Members of the oil conservation board of the Pennsylvania grade crude field agreed at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel yesterday to keep in effect the present system of production curtailment and if possible to decrease the output to a greater degree. Nothing definite was done, however, looking to further curtailment.

Late last month the board met here and invoked a previous proration program celling for a 50 per cent cut in production in the Bradford-Allegany field and 30 per cent in the other areas, which include Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Antilla Sugar Company reports for year ended September 30 net loss of $1,346,750, after interest, depreciation and amortization, against net loss of $315,147 in the preceding year. Net loss of $315,147 in the preceding year was transferred to the Punta Alegre Sugar Company.

Chesapeake and Ohio Railway November net income was $2,856,000, after taxes, charges and sinking fund appropriations, a decrease of $223,879 from November, 1929. Eleven months' net totals $31,707,610, a decrease of $1,738,830.

Cudahy Packing Company reports for year to November 1, net profit of $2,930,318, after depreciation, interest and federal taxes, equal, after dividends on 6 per cent and 7 per cent preferred stock, to $5.03 a share on 467,489 shares of common, against $2,512,850, or $4.13 a common share in the year ended November 2, 1929.

American Ice Company November profit was $174,077 after interest, but before federal taxes and depreciation, against $250,045 in November, 1929. Eleven months' profit totaled $5,609,097 compared with $5,528,475 in the 1929 period.

United Electric Coal Companies report for quarter ended October 31 net profit of only $10,880 after depreciation, depletion, interest, federal taxes and other deductions, comparing to $105,855 earned in the like quarter of 1929.

Colombia Plans New Petroleum Legislation

BOTOGA, Colombia, Dec. 20.—A new draft oil law, which modifies royalties and regulations under which American companies and others operate in Colombia, will be presented to Congress shortly.

Under the text, completed royalties paid by the companies will be lower, graduating from 11 to 2 per cent, according to the distance from the port of embarkation as compared with a graduation of 10 to 6 per cent for the same distance last year. It provides, however, that the companies must pay transportation charges on the government's share of the oil produced and this, it is expected, will amount virtually to an increase in the tax.

Adams Express Profits Estimated Equal to $2 Per Share

Estimates indicate that Adams Express will show approximately $2 a share on its common stock this year. Considering the condition of the security markets, such a result would be satisfactory. It is said that security holdings will provide income from dividends and interest which should be equivalent to at least $1.25 a share on the common, while profits on securities which have been disposed of should add another 75 cents to the earnings.

With so much selling in rails recently, comments on individual stocks in that group seldom are heard. However, some interests are talking optimistically about Norfolk and Western, the assumption being that the stock is on an attractive earnings and yield basis. A good margin of safety over dividend requirements exists, and several interests have been recommending scale purchases of the issue on any further reaction.

Rumors concerning a banking pool in the stock market are discredited in reliable quarters, but a report persists that some of the institutions have prepared for greater activity in the bond market. Because such action would be logical, many believe the latest report. Greater stability in bonds, particularly those which have suffered severely from forced liquidation, would be important as a factor in the stock market.

Official reports of building permits issued in 587 leading cities and towns shows that although falling off in proposed building and construction activities continued during November, declines were less pronounced than during the preceding month. November building permits showed a decline of 12 per cent as compared with October, as against the usual normal decline of 8.9 per cent. October, however, had shown a loss of 10 per cent from September, contrasted with a normal expectancy of a 5 per cent increase.

This week's condition statement of local member banks in the reserve reveals some interesting changes. Among other things it is indicated that local banks continued to sell bonds during the period covered inasmuch as a further reduction of $53,000,000 is shown in holdings of securities other than governments. This brings the total reduction in three weeks to $157,000,000, the past week, however, the banks also reduced the volume of government securities held by $35,000,000, bringing the net increase in such holdings for the three weeks' period to but $33,000,000, while loans of these institutions to brokers' were cut by $85,000,000 total advances against security collateral were cut by only $62,000,000. Total loans and investments showed a shrinkage of $277,000,000 of which $87,000,000 was accounted for in reduced holdings of investments for their own account. The reduction in total loans, of $190,000,000 corresponds exactly with the reduction which would have been effected by exclusion of the $190,000,000 loans and investments of bank of United States.

The tide of the gold movement which ran strongly in favor of the Dominion of Canada for several months through last summer and early fall has evidently turned in our direction again, coincident with the seasonal move in the Canadian dollar to a discount in the exchange market. From the beginning of July until a month or two back Canada drew gold rather steadily from New York in the form of the proceeds of the bond issue floated here at that time. In all some $36,000,000 in gold was exported to the Dominion. Over the last fortnight, however, due to the shift in conditions normal at this season of the year, Canada has been sending the metal this way, with about $14,000,000, including the shipment of $3,000,000 announced yesterday having found its way back thus far.

Steamship Services Make Rate Cuts

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—A wholesale reduction in rates was announced by five of the great trans-Atlantic steamship services. Reductions range from 7½ to as high as 52 per cent.

POLICE SEEKING THIRD GIRL IN BANK HOLDUP

Verona Youth Arrested as Suspect in Robbery and Killing at Trust Company

they unwittingly foiled holdup of the office of the Pittsburgh Hospital. Flathe is said to have admitted he had received a "tip" that the hospital would have a large amount of money last night.

Flathe, who, detectives said, has a police record in Washington, D. C., was boarding a street car at Federal and Larock streets when he was arrested last night. Detectives reported finding in his possession a loaded automatic pistol and extra shells. He was charged with being a suspicious person.

SAY PICTURES DESTROYED

In connection with the search for the North Side bank robbers, detectives said today they had learned that one of the two girls being questioned had destroyed six pictures of the gang, but the sleuths still hoped to determine the robbers' identity by finding the third girl, who, it is said, the men had known only two weeks.

A threatening letter sent to the Miller girl prompted Inspector Charles Faulkner and two of his plainclothesmen to hurry to Columbus, O., in search of the bank robbers. Faulkner's departure for the Ohio capital without the knowledge of his superiors was said to have irritated them.

MOTORISTS ROBBED

While repairing a flat tire on their car, Lawrence Hilliard, of Wilson avenue, Cheswick, and Harry Palmer, of Acme street, Acmetonia, were held up by two armed men in the Russelton road, near Acmetonia. Hilliard was robbed of $25 and Palmer of $24. The bandits escaped in an automobile, Hilliard told Springdale police.

A Negro held Mrs. Abe Simon at bay by covering her with a revolver while he robbed the cash register of her general store in the Freeport road, Harmarville, and escaped with $6.

August Gliniceki, of 1516 Geyer avenue, North Side, driver for a bakery, was held up and robbed of $8 by two Negroes while delivering bread in the rear of 210 Smithfield street, he reported to police.

Wounded First, Dry Raid Slayer Says

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 20.—(INS.)—The federal authorities were trying to determine today if James N. Wood, state dry agent, was killed before members of his raiding party shot Randolph Cox, 29, Negro. Cox, at whose farm at Warsaw the raid was made yesterday, is being held in county jail on a charge of killing the agent.

He told the authorities he did not shoot at the raiders until they had wounded him. He barricaded himself in his farmhouse for quite some time before a posse of citizens urged him to surrender.

Mexico Negotiating $50,000,000 Loan

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—A federal finance ministry official admitted today that a loan of from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 is under negotiation by the Mexican government through Thomas Lamont of Morgan & Co.

The ministry spokesman declined to further discuss the proposed loan, however.

Variety of 'Relief' Asked

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

could use on the railroad. Our town is 500 miles from the main line of the Northwestern and Chiropractic R. R.

We're on a spur that pays quartlet dividends in rust. But we would like to four-track that spur.

If there's any left over we would like a harbor. We ain't near the ocean. And we're further away at low tide. But it would make the other towns jealous.

Think it over, Herbert. You saved Belgium once and not one of those birds voted for you.

They say the king can do no wrong.

That's because he always has a brother-in-law on the grand jury.

Let's concede the king can do no wrong. And also add a postscript in favor of the same dignitary when he's crown prince.

We don't know what it's all about. All we know is that Carol, of Rumania, is paying off on the dotted line. And every dot is 18 karats.

There's Mme. Lupescu and Mme. Lambrino, of suburban Europe, who knew Carol when the only crown he had was on his derby.

They seem to have divided up plenty of glorious plunder and some very permanent real estate between them.

They sent the wrong guy back to school.

Mike was King of Rumania while Papa Carol was seeing if the guide-books were right about Paris.

Is that fair to a 9-year-old lad whose career has never been touched by the scorching flame of scandal?

If Dame Rumor has it correctly by the ears, Mme. Lupescu grabbed a chateau in Transylvania and a bale of diplomatic alimony.

Lambrino also snatched a villa in France and a wagonload of certified shopping coupons.

All of which makes Carol a good boy again. Now, he's King and not supposed to fall in love without first notifying the cabinet.

Royalty never has to replace its divots.

But, in view of all these carryings-on in Bucharest, do you think Rumania is a nice place for our young diplomats?

VOTE MACHINES SNAG AGAIN

Another complication has developed in the proposed installation of voting machines. According to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong there are about 100 voting places in the county where the stairways or doors leading to the polling places are too small to admit the machines which are shaped like extra large upright pianos.

A survey which has been made by county engineers has disclosed the condition and Armstrong yesterday wrote a letter to Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court advising him that petitions will be filed asking for changes of the polling places.

Portable voting places on hillsides are another difficulty which will necessitate changing the locations. It is impossible, Armstrong said, to carry the huge mechanical vote tabulators up the long flights of narrow stairs leading to some places.

The redistricting commission now working on the changes necessary for use of machines will also have to work out the most suitable locations for places where the machines can be carried in and out without taking them apart.

SCIENTIST, AIDE DIE IN VOLCANO

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Prof. Werner Borchardt, 30-year-old tropical scientist of the Hamburg Institute, and one of his European assistants fell to their death in the boiling lava of the Merapi volcano crater on the Island of Sumatra, it was learned here today in dispatches from the Dutch East Indies.

The tragedy occurred while Prof. Borchardt was conducting climatological investigations, climbing by rope into the Merapi crater, which had not been in violent eruption for 40 years.

According to the dispatches, the eruption which killed the two scientists and 105 natives took place just as Prof. Borchardt reached bottom to test heat emanations. The belching lava masses quickly swallowed the scientists in a lake of molten fire.

The lava flow obliterated village after village. The volcano is still active, according to reports.

$1,050,000 Airport Bond Issue Approved

HARRISBURG, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—The Secretary of Internal Affairs yesterday approved a $1,050,000 bond issue for completing improvements to land acquired for an airport for Allegheny County. Another approved was for $20,000 for alterations and improvements to the Burgettstown, Washington County school.

McDonald Miner, Injured, Dies Here

William Bauner, 60, of McDonald, died in Mercy Hospital early today from shock and injuries suffered in an accident in Montour Mine No. 9 at McDonald yesterday morning, according to a report to the coroner's office. The nature of the accident was not known to the coroner.

Goods Rushed Here From New York

Transportation of express between New York and Pittsburgh stores during the holiday rush has been made by the Pennsylvania Railroad. Parcels are picked up at New York stores at 4 p. m. and delivered to stores here the following morning.

1,000 Carpet Workers To Get Yule Bonus

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—All employes of the Magee Carpet Company will receive 1 per cent of their yearly wages as a Christmas bonus, the company announced yesterday. There are about 1,000 men on the payroll.

TWO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Trapped in bed when fire swept their home following a gas explosion two children were burned to death early today and their mother, Mrs. Irving Israelson, suffered probable fatal injuries.

The victims were Homer and Jerome Israelson, 4 and 5 years old. Other residents of the building dragged the mother from the flames by the hair.

A violent explosion, supposedly caused by gas, blew the front of the structure out and transformed the building into a blazing mass.

Mrs. Israelson found herself trapped in the bedroom with her two children when the fire broke out. The explosion had jarred the door in such a way that she was unable to open it. She was dragged through a window by neighbors who later found the bodies of the two children.

TREES LIGHTED IN SEWICKLEY

Colored lights in celebration of the Yuletide season were lighted for the first time this year in Beaver and Broad streets, Sewickley, last night. The decorations include a Christmas tree in front of each business establishment in the two streets, and a large electrically lighted community tree at Thorn and Broad streets.

The American Legion post will give candy to children and carols will be sung at the community tree Christmas Eve, it was announced today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ella B. Kirk.

Mrs. Ella Boyce Kirk, first woman superintendent of schools in the United States, and leader in social and welfare circles, who died yesterday, will be buried Monday following services to be held in the Moreland funeral home at 11 a. m. She was the wife of David Kirk.

Born in Bangor, Me., Mrs. Kirk taught voice for several years, and went to Bradford, Pa., where she was made superintendent of schools. She was a charter member of the Twentieth Century Club and chairman of its lecture committee for several years.

With Miss Beulah Kennard, she organized the children's playgrounds here and for a time was treasurer of the Children's Hospital. She also organized and was the first president of the New England Society, and later organized the Story and Play Society and the Drama Reading Class.

Martin Funeral.

Funeral services for Abraham Martin, who died yesterday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Henrietta Kravetz, of 6952 Kelly street, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Kravetz home. He had lived in Pittsburgh his entire lifetime, and for many years was in business in Homewood. Besides Mrs. Kravetz he leaves his widow, another daughter, Mrs. Bertha Jenkins, of Philadelphia, and five sisters, Mrs. Fannie Fotterman, Mrs. Sarah Bloom, Mrs. Jennie Goldman, Mrs. Rebecca Kelsky and Mrs. Rae Smulo, all of Pittsburgh.

AGENT SLAYER STILL ON DUTY

SONOMA, Cal., Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—Although half a dozen witnesses testified that Federal Prohibition Agent Michael J. Buckley had been partaking freely of liquor before he shot and killed Ygulmo Prasso in a gun battle on a lonely road, he was still on duty here today.

"He will not be suspended," said Acting Prohibition Administrator George Seaver, last night, "until I have had time to examine the transcript of the evidence, and perhaps not then."

The details of the drinking bout in which Buckley participated were revealed at an inquest over Prasso's body conducted Thursday by Coroner Fred Young, of Sonoma County. August William Morgue, another federal agent, testified that Buckley was so drunk that he was unfit to drive an automobile, and Morgue walked four miles into Sonoma rather than ride with him in his car.

Authorities of Napa County took no action in the shooting. District Attorney Wallace Rutherford said he was looking into the case carefully, but intimated Buckley's alleged drunkenness would have no bearing on the case if it were shown that the agent was acting in line of duty and in self-defense.

JOHNSON FLAYS COURT TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—Senator Hiram Johnson will deliver a telling blast against American adherence to the League Court in a nation-wide radio address tonight.

His speech, in answer to Senator Capper, who upheld the Court in a radio talk last week, will be delivered over the Columbia Broadcasting System beginning at 9:30 o'clock.

Johnson has been opposed to American adherence to the Court ever since the question has been raised. He fought it before the Senate four years ago because the Court is a creature of the League of Nations, and entrance by the United States into the Court would be a back-door entrance into the League.

It is believed that millions of persons will listen to his speech because he is recognized as one of the most eloquent and at the same time one of the hardest hitting debaters in Congress.

Fifth Avenue Fire Loss Set at $1,000

Fire on the first floor of the umbrella factory of Cooper and Sussman Company, 711 Fifth avenue, early today gave downtown firemen a two-hour battle. Due to heavy smoke, they were forced to wear gas masks when entering the building. Battalion Chief George Spear estimated the damage at $1,000.

Noted Men Named To Rockefeller Board

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—A cabinet officer, a course dean and a parking magnate have been added to the General Education Board, a Rockefeller project for the promotion of education.

They are Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior; Prof. Edwin Mims, head of the department of English, at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and Harold Higgins Swift, vice president of Swift & Co., Chicago.

GIRL WHO SHOT MAN CONVICTED

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Mary McClyment, 19, today awaited sentence on a manslaughter charge. She was found guilty last night by a jury of five men and seven women in the fatal shooting of Edward Nicholson after a drinking party in a farmhouse at Blenheim, N. J., October 9. Date of sentence was not set.

The maximum penalty for manslaughter is 10 years but the girl was expected to receive a shorter term, as the jury recommended mercy.

Miss McClyment admitted she fired a pistol during a quarrel but said she had done it to frighten Nicholson.

POWER REPORT GIVEN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(Universal.)—A network of enormous superpower systems honeycombing the country, pooling their energy for factories and homes across state lines like the waters of so many rivers, was revealed in a new Federal Trade Commission report to the Senate.

This report represents the commission's final study of the interstate movement of electric power. It will be made the groundwork of an attempt to set up federal regulation, supplementary to present state regulation, under the Couzens bill.

Interstate movements are largely unregulated, the power systems wholesaling energy to one another, or to themselves under different corporate names, at what prices they please. These prices influence directly the retail prices charged to consumers.

Master Painters Elect Delegates

President John B. Dewar, at a meeting of the Pittsburgh branch of the Master Painters' and Decorators' Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night, named delegates to the national convention in Reading next month. They are Herman Werner, Julius Gulden, F. D. Vinson, P. A. Freyvogel, A. E. Jones, P. J. Garver, George B. Miller and Louis C. Titzel. The delegation will be headed by President Dewar.

SEEK MORGANZA BOYS, 1 TAKEN

Police today were searching for four of five boys who escaped from the Industrial Training School at Morganza last night. The fifth youth was captured after an automobile crash near Van Emmonan's Station.

Three of the fugitives were said by police to have stolen the car of Edward Purnell, in McNary street, Canonsburg, but wrecked the machine soon afterward.

School authorities told Allegheny County authorities the two who escaped after the accident were Clifford Mason, 19, and Henry Kuzma, 18. They reported Clark Luke, 18, was returned to the school.

Later, two other youths escaped, but their names were not given out, according to a police report.

YARR AMONG MANY STARS OVERLOOKED

TWICE IN SUCCESSION Ben Ticknor, of Harvard, has been picked as all-America center. He is one star snapperback who has received his share of public attention and recognition. But how many other great centers have been overlooked entirely? A whole flock of them whom you've never heard even mentioned. Yet they had as much to do with the success of their teams as the playing mates who got all the glory. A thankless job, is that of the snapperback. His position is the hardest on the club, both mentally and physically, and he takes the worst beating, but hardly anybody notices that he is in the game. The only mention he ever gets is that he made a bad pass.

Ben Ticknor

A case at Northwestern shows how the worth of a great center may pass unnoticed. Wade Woodworth, guard, was the most widely advertised lineman in the Big Ten Conference. All because he was spectacular. A red-headed giant, playing without headgear or stockings, and aggressive to such a degree that hardly a game passed in which he did not figure in some argument on the field, he was easily observed and identified. Frank Baker, an excellent end, also was repeatedly praised. But when the Northwestern coaches and players voted on the most valuable player of the year it was neither Woodworth nor Baker, but Clark, the center, who received the award. The players knew.

AND CLARK WASN'T the only star of 1930 in that position to be passed up. A letter to The Sun-Telegraph from Al Carlos, of New Bethlehem, brings to mind the fact that if there was one player on Notre Dame's great team who did not receive the credit due him for the important part he had in that eleven's sensational record, that player was Tom Yarr, the center. Many fans will concur in the opinion expressed by Mr. Carlos that Yarr was one of the best centers of the year.

It is surprising that Yarr received so little mention in connection with many all-America selections, in some cases none at all. Yet he was one of the greatest players and one of the main cogs in the machine that was admittedly the mightiest of the season and the best that Knute Rockne ever turned out. His passing was consistently perfect and he never missed a trick on either offense or defense. The dazzling runs of Marchy Schwartz, Bucky O'Connor and the rest never would have been made if the pass had been bad. But a center is not supposed to make any bad passes, nor to fail in any of his other duties, so Yarr, like many other great centers, wasn't given a tumble. He was just a player. Besides, it isn't easy for one star to stand out on an all-star team.

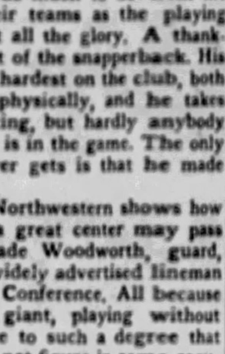
THE SHIFTING OF Freddie Lindstrom from third base to the outfield in the Giant lineup has not been decided upon definitely. It all depends upon the way Johnny Vergez, the Pacific Coast League recruit, shows up at the hot corner on the spring training trip.

Manager John McGraw himself is authority for the statement that Lindstrom will go to the outfield only if Vergez makes good at third. If Vergez does not come through Lindstrom will remain at his old place in the infield.



Freddie Lindstrom

M'GRAW SAYS HE has about given up the idea of trying Eddie Marshall at third if Vergez fails, and that the whole problem hinges on the rookie from the coast. The Giant leader also makes it known that Lindstrom himself requested the shift and that Freddie for a long time has been eager to switch to the outfield. Such a desire on the part of an established third baseman is not without precedent, and it won't be the first instance of success, either, if Lindstrom makes good in the gardens. Tommy Leach often expressed a similar wish as a Pirate until he finally became an outfield fixture in 1909.

LINDSTROM HAS BEEN rated as Pie Traynor's closest rival for the third-class leadership, but McGraw says he has some serious faults. "For one thing he doesn't start for a ball as quickly as he should," the New York manager remarks "and therefore balls are hit through him that he most certainly should get.

"Lindstrom also fails to field bunts that should be easy for him, sometimes allowing even so clumsy a fielder as Carl Hubbell to come over for them when they are right in Freddie's alley. Lindstrom's assets, on the other hand, are his dead sureness of hand when he gets to a ball and his accurate throwing even though he may be off balance when he lets the ball go."

Erwin Rudolph

ERWIN RUDOLPH, new world pocket billiard king, discussing with J. P. Allen his second rise to the heights, said he had found practice to be the thing that separates the high-class title winner from the near champion.

That is held to explain why Rudolph, Ralph Greenleaf and one or two others ran away from the rest of the eight contestants in the title tournament that ended Thursday. The few practice regularly. The others, though having as much native talent, do not. Even Frank Taberski and Bennie Allen, former champions, have failed to keep themselves on edge.

THAT PRACTICE MAKES perfect applies to any sport, but it is particularly true of billiards. Greenleaf agrees with Rudolph that the championship is to be gained only through hours and hours of drudgery. There is no easy road to the title. The reason why there are not more men at the top in cue sports is that many will not devote themselves to downright, serious preparation. They have a natural aptitude for the game but stop there. They become king pins in their own districts, but cease to practice, with the result that when they get into a championship tournament they are quickly left in the lurch.

WILLIE HOPPE stands out as a model for other cueists. He owed his long reign as a world beater to the fact that he never departed from the two rules laid down for him by his father at the beginning of his career. One of these rules was a four-mile hike out in the open every day. The other was four hours of practice daily at the billiard table.

Willie worked like a Trojan at all times. On some of his trips he even carried with him a professional trainer. He kept himself in the best of condition and on the keenest playing edge at all times, and that was one reason why his competitors never had a chance against him in his heyday. Even in his exhibitions Hoppe always was thorough and gave the crowds his best. There was never a disappointment. Rudolph and Greenleaf say that is another lesson some of the moderns have yet to learn. They flash poor games at a club exhibition, with the result that the committee feels it has been stung when it comes to paying the fee and does not re-engage the performer.

THE QUESTION HAVING been raised as to how the Notre Dame football team came to be knicknamed "The Fighting Irish," the explanation that comes from the university itself is that the term grew out of a remark addressed by one of the South Bend eleven's own players to his mates in a tone of rebuke.

When things were going badly in a game against Michigan at Ann Arbor on November 6, 1909, one week after Notre Dame had

GAMES TONIGHT.
Pittsburgh at Cleveland.
Syracuse at Buffalo.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jacket puckmen will write finis to the toughest stretch of "away" games on their season schedule at Cleveland tonight when they meet the robust and pugnacious Indians in a battle in which third place in the International League standings is the prize.

Tonight's game marks the local skaters' fifth consecutive fray in enemy territory. Since their last home appearance, almost two weeks ago, the Jackets have annexed one victory and one tie, and absorbed two defeats. They need a win over the Clevelanders, therefore, to show an even break on their long tour.

SCHOOLEY TO ATTEND

When it is considered that Duke McCurry and Gordy Fraser, two of the Pittsburgh aces, have been on the shelf with injuries, the locals' showing on the road appears creditable. Duke and Gordy are just about ready to return to action, and if no more names are added to the hospital list tonight the canary-shirted skaters will be set to "make hay" with a home stand of four straight games.

Although Coach Charles Reid generally directs the Jackets in games abroad, Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, is so eager to see his team vault past several rivals in the standings that he has arranged to journey to Cleveland and personally direct the Jackets in tonight's "crucial" fray.

PREVIOUS GAMES CLOSE

Two previous Pittsburgh-Cleveland meetings resulted in a tie and an overtime defeat for the locals. The squad is to depart for the Forest City late this afternoon. The probable lineup:

| Pittsburgh. | | Cleveland. |
|---|---|---|
| Cox | G. | Baxter |
| Berlett | D. | Young |
| Reise | D. | Frew |
| Fields | C. | Gray |
| Proudlock | W. | Brophy |
| Gregg | W. | Doraty |

WINDSOR VICTOR

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—The Windsor Bulldogs are still in second place in the International League, but they are one game up in their series with the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons, as a result of stopping the Roach aggregation here last night, 3-2. The lineup:

| Buffalo—2. | | Windsor—3 |
|---|---|---|
| Taugher | G. | Benedict |
| Lederman | D. | Brown |
| Murray | D. | Arbour |
| Voss | C. | Duguid |
| Gross | W. | Northcott |
| Martin | W. | Bat Phillips |

Spares: Buffalo—Huard, Godin, Bogardis, Cahill, Roth, Jackson. Windsor—Robinson, Lever, Duncan, Bellemer, Moore.
Referee—Jerry Laflamme.
First period—No. score. Penalties—Arbour, Lever.
Second period: Windsor—Arbour (from Phillips), 1:35; Windsor, Duguid (from Arbour), 4:10. Penalties—Jackson, Voss, Lever, Bellemer, Lederman.
Third period: Buffalo—Godin (from Voss), 6:20; Windsor, Lever (from Robinson), 15:30; Buffalo, Voss (from Gross), 18:15. Penalties—Jackson, Brown, Lederman.

Princeton Polo Team Plays Here Tonight

The Princeton University polo team will meet the Pittsburgh Hunt Club trio at the Hunt Armory tonight in the first of two holiday matches scheduled in that place.

RESERVE COACH QUITS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Resignation of Jack Davis, football coach at Western Reserve University, and its acceptance by school officials has been announced. Davis took over the coaching last fall after Gordon Locke was forced by illness to retire as mentor of the team.

Basketball Rules Quiz

PLAY NO. 18

In a game between Alabama and Georgia, Laney, of Alabama, grabs the ball, which has glanced off the face of the backboard and across the boundary line. Laney's feet are not beyond the line and he wheels and shoots a basket on the ball he caught before it touched the floor or any other obstruction out-of-bounds.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER

The referee rules that a legal field goal has been made by Alabama.

(This marks the close of the third week of this interesting series of 24 plays, such as may come up at any of the games this winter. The series will be concluded next week. Watch for Play No. 19 next Monday.)

WOOD LEADS GOLF PLAY

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Craig Wood, long driving professional from Bloomfield, N. J., yesterday hammered golf's new, larger and lighter ball for a 69, two strokes under par, to lead the first round of the Pasadena $4,000 open.

A quintet of the country's high ranking pros trailed in second place two strokes behind with 71s, with part of the 213 starters unable to finish because of darkness.

Tommy Armour, P. G. A.'s National champion from Detroit, with a chance to tie Wood as he stepped up to the eighteenth tee, took six strokes for a par 71. Finishing with him were Ben Richter, St. Louis southpaw; Frank Walsh, Chicago; Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia.

Wood was out one under par, shooting a 35. A birdie 3 on the first home and an eagle 3 on the sixth gave him a spectacular start. His 34 on the home nine was made possible by a birdie 2 on the thirteenth and a birdie 3 on the sixteenth.

CLAIRTON GRID BANQUET SET

The members of Clairton High's snappy football squad will be honored Tuesday night, January 13, at a banquet to be held in the cafeteria of the school. Plans are under way to make the event one of much enjoyment.

Prof. H. D. Teal, superintendent of schools, and T. W. Tingley, chairman of the athletic committee of the school board, are prominent in the arrangements for the festive occasion.

BYERS, FOWNES ILL

Eben M. Byers, of Allegheny, National amateur golf champion in 1906, and prominent in local and National political golf circles today, has been reported as dangerously ill in his home in Aiken, S. C. He has been sick for some time. William C. Fownes, of Oakmont, amateur champion of 1910, and another of the district's pioneers, is suffering from a heart ailment, at Pinehurst, N. C.

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 20.—Clever little Tommy Paul, Buffalo featherweight, combined speed and cleverness to earn a 10-round decision over Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, O., in the main event at the Auditorium here last night.

Frankie Bojorski, Erie junior-lightweight, punched his way to a decision over Duncan McTavish, Toronto, in the six-round semi-final. Frisco Grande, Filipino flyweight, gained an easy decision over Johnny Toran, local Negro, in another six-rounder, while in the four-round opener Bobby Vogel, a local lad just out of the amateur ranks, pounded out a decision over Don Davis, of Cleveland.

M'MILLEN MAT VICTOR

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Jim McMillen, former Illinois football star, defeated Hans Bauer, Chicago, with a flying tackle after eight minutes in a wrestling match at Boston Garden last night.

ROBINS MAY BE FAVORED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Another five-cornered fight for the National League pennant is in pleasant prospect as the various clubs make ready to sign up their players for the next campaign.

Gabby Street

The same five teams that were flag possibilities through most of last year will step to the tape as favorites again. They are the Cardinals, Cubs, Giants, Robins and Pirates, they finishing in that order in the last chase.

The surprise team of last season, Uncle Robbie's flock, may go into the next race wearing the favorites' tag. Gabby Street's Redbirds, nevertheless, may prove to be the best club in the circuit again. Both of these clubs are blessed with good pitching and fine offensives, the present champs being the smarter outfit, perhaps. The acquisition of Fresco Thompson by the Robins may change all of this.

BUCS MUST HAVE CATCHER

Give the Pirates a high-grade catcher who could be depended upon for regular duty and they would be a fascinating pennant contender. Until they get such a player, however, nobody will get excited over their flag chances.

Much uncertainty surrounds the Cubs and Giants. Rogers Hornsby and his employers are making a serious bid to bring the pennant back to the Mid-Western metropolis, but the situation in Chicago does not augur entirely for championship play. There seems to be considerable doubt as to whether Hornsby will get as much out of the Chicago athletes as did Joe McCarthy.

COAST FIGHTER LOSES CLOSE CONTEST

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Max Baer, young San Francisco heavyweight, has made an auspicious New York debut in defeat. He dropped a 10-round decision to blonde Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, in Madison Square Garden last night, but most of the public acclaim went to the loser when the hard-fought battle was over.

For four rounds Baer waded into his more experienced rival, swinging damaging rights and lefts that had the Boston lad a bit worried. But Schaaf took everything the coast slugger sent his way, wavered at times it is true, but always was ready and willing to come back for more.

Then Baer tired. His punches lost some of the sting that had given him 24 knockout victories in 27 professional engagements, and Schaaf, stabbing away with a straight, jolting left hand and hammering away with heavy rights, assumed command of the struggle over the last six rounds.

Schaaf, fighting a sound, intelligent but overly-cautious battle, had Baer reeling all over the ring in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds and might have scored a knockout had he been able to overcome his respect for the dynamite in Baer's right hand.

Schaaf, who holds two decisions over Tommy Loughran and one over Johnny Risko, although he still is a youngster, won the unanimous decision of the referee and the two judges, but the crowd, taking the heavy-punching Californian to its heart, booed the verdict. The Associated Press score card gave Schaaf five rounds and Baer four with one—the second—even.

About 10,000 saw the clash. Schaaf weighed 203 pounds, Baer 200.

ARMY TO PLAY PITT HERE

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Army's football eleven will face six new rivals in 1931, it was revealed today with publication of the schedule for next season. The Cadets will go to Pittsburgh to play Pitt, one of the newcomers.

The new opponents are Knox, Ohio Northern, Michigan State, Colorado College, Louisiana State and Pittsburgh. Harvard will play at West Point. The Army will visit Yale and meet Notre Dame in New York. The schedule:

September 26, Ohio Northern; October 3, Knox; 10, Michigan State; 17, Harvard; 24, Yale at New Haven; 31, Colorado College; November 7, Louisiana State; 14, Pitt at Pittsburgh; 21, Ursinus; 28, Notre Dame.

GREASY NEALE SPEAKS

BECKLEY, W. Va., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Earl (Greasy) Neale, recently appointed head football coach at West Virginia University, was the principal speaker here last night at the annual Beckley High School football banquet. In his talk he said he intended to give his best efforts to the work of producing good football teams at the university. H. A. Stansbury, athletic director at the university, also spoke briefly.

PITT QUINT RALLIES TO BEAT NEBRASKA

PANTHERS TOP CORNHUSKERS, 23 TO 22

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—The University of Pittsburgh invaded the Nebraska Cornfield last night and emerged with a 23-to-22 victory.

The Panthers trailed the Cornhuskers nearly the entire game, but jumped out in front in the last minute by virtue of two free throws. Nebraska led at half, 14 to 12.

Willie Kowallis, speedy Panther forward, and Steve Hokuf, efficient Nebraska guard, took scoring honors with eight points each. Nebraska's regular score-manufacturing team of Don Maclay and Morris Fisher didn't click as usual.

It was a battle from the first tip off. Pitt made the initial score, but Nebraska followed with two field goals and maintained a precarious lead during the first half. Throughout the game it was never more than four points ahead.

In the middle of the second half Pittsburgh first tied the score and then forged ahead two points. The Huskers took the front again, however, and were stalling for time when a double foul upset their calculations.

Two strapping centers — Nebraska's 6-foot 3-inch Maclay and Pittsburgh's Albright, an inch taller—fought for the tipoffs throughout the game.

With Lawry and Kowallis, forwards, in the van, Pittsburgh, in possession of the ball, played a slow waiting game at times which did not go well with the fans. They booed their disapproval too loudly once and drew down a foul penalty on the Nebraska team. The Cornhusker five, on the other hand, romped goalwards every time the ball came their way.

Nebraska was clinging to a slender one-point lead, the result of Hokuf's brilliant side court shot near the end of the contest, when Davey fouled near the Panther loop. Kowallis sank both free throws and sewed up the game. The lineup:

| Pitt—23 | | Nebraska—22 |
|---|---|---|
| Cohen | F | (C) Fisher |
| W. Kowallis | F | Davey |
| Albright | C | Maclay |
| Arbaw (C) | G | Hokuf |
| Smith | G | Keeler |

Substitutions—Pitt: Lawry, Field goals—Cohen, W. Kowallis 2, Albright, Arbaw 3, Lawry 3, Fisher, Davey 3, Maclay 2, Hokuf 4. Fouls—Pitt 5, Nebraska 11. Referee—E. C. Quigley. Umpire—Edmonds.

DUKES LOSE

The Duquesne University quint bowed before Ziggy Kahn's Irene Kaufmann Settlement five, 19-10, in a practice game on the latter's floor last night. I. K. S. led, 6-3, at half-time. The lineup:

| I. K. S.—19. | | Duquesne—10. |
|---|---|---|
| Smith | F | Abele |
| Grinstein | F | Irwin |
| Murphy | C | McGeever |
| Parks | G | Stephenson |
| Rabe | G | Parry |

Substitutions—Volkin, Powers, H. Barnes, Wilder, Yettri. Field goals—Smith 3, Grinstein 3, Flowers, H. Barnes, Irwin, Parry. Fouls—I. K. S. 5 out of 10. Dukes, 6 out of 9. Referee—Al Speer.

O'HARA SHINES FOR MIELES

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Tommy O'Hara, the youngest player in the Allegheny County League, has established himself as one of the outstanding performers in the circuit this season as a result of his consistent work for the J. J. Mieles, one of the favorites to win the first-half championship of the circuit. Picked up by the Sianos two years ago while playing around the Washington Park recreation center, O'Hara has developed rapidly in the Allegheny County League and at the present time is one of the best forwards enrolled in the loop.

Tommy O'Hara

STAR OF TEAM

O'Hara has stood out prominently in the strong comeback made by the Mieles since they were beaten in their opening game by the Duquesne Lafayettes, and as a result the club has scored four straight victories to place it at the heels of the league-leading Fintex quintet.

An excellent floor man and a team-worker in every respect, O'Hara adds to his brilliance by being a remarkable shot. He possesses the uncanny art of tossing them in from all sections of the floor and on numerous occasions has saved his club from defeat by sinking a timely field goal.

This boy last season was rated with the best in the County circuit despite the fact it was his first appearance as a regular. If he continues his present pace he stands a good chance of making the all-County League team at the close of the season.

MIELES AT CHARLEROI

Tonight the Mieles will have a chance to deadlock Fintex for first place in the County League when they oppose the rejuvenated Charleroi Merchants in Charleroi. Charleroi, after getting off to a poor start, appears to have struck its real stride and may prove a stumbling block to the Mieles.

The Merchants scored impressive victories over the Lafayettes and Glassport in their last two starts, while the Mieles boast a string of four straight triumphs, including one over the Lafayettes. The game tonight should draw a capacity house to Charleroi.

PENN FIVE COPS

The Falcons bowed before the Penn Five, 45-27, in a West Penn League encounter, and I. K. S. won from Homewood Presbyterian, 24-16, in the Wagner Institutional League, in last night's leading court battles.

The Forresters toppled the Pittsburghers, 52-19, in the Greater Pittsburgh League, St. John's tripped St. Casimir's 38-17, and St. Wendelin copped from St. Joseph, 32-23, in the Lyceum League, and L. F. Burkes beat Goodwill, 34-17, and P. & A. set down Grant Cadets, 25-20, in the Junior League, in other league affrays.

Soho Community defeated Docson, 52-17; Red Shields lost to Fort Pitt, 44-24; Holy Cross bowed before Bailey Big Five, 19-14; the Trojans upset Falcons No. 69, 20-17, and Downtown Y. barely defeated Rankin C. C., 36-32, in independent contests.

played in Pittsburgh for the first time against the Panthers, and with the score 3 to 0 in favor of Michigan, Pete Vaughn, the Notre Dame fullback, who later played for Princeton, shouted to his comrades: "You guys are all Irish, but you're not fighting." They got busy at once to prove they were fighting Irish and the nickname resulted and stuck.

Max Baer

IT'S ONE THING to have a knockout punch, but to land it on an opposing fighter who knows his business is quite another thing again. Max Baer discovered in his Eastern debut against Ernie Schaaf in New York last night that while a sleep wallop is a big fistic asset it won't get the owner anywhere unless he has a whole lot more stuff to go along with it. In winning the decision easily in the 10-round test of the coast socker, Schaaf demonstrated clearly that Baer is far from being ready to tangle with heavies of the front rank. Max might as well have left his terrible right on the Coast for all the good it was to him against a smart, smooth, experienced ring workman like Schaaf. Baer may come along in time, but right now he has no business in the ring with the topnotchers.

AN UNUSUAL DEMAND for his services as a rider in the horse-racing game for next year shows that Jockey Frank Coltiletti may well be added to the long list of Italian sport performers who have been outstanding rivals of other nationalities during 1930. Like other Italians in various sports, Coltiletti has been an outstanding star in his game.

This jockey, who terminated his contract with Willis Sharpe Kilmer, horse owner, after riding Sun Beau to victory in the Southern Maryland stake, announces that he has five jobs for 1931 and intends to keep them all. There could be no stronger evidence of Coltiletti's exceptional ability as a jockey than the fact that so many as five owners want him to ride for them.

COMISH SCOFFS AT REPLY OF SCHMELING

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Joe Jacobs is Max Schmeling's manager under a five-year contract, but he has to read the papers these days to find out what the New York State Athletic Commission wants the German heavyweight to do. And thereby hangs a tale that may cost "Der Maxie" his heavyweight crown.

On Tuesday the commission cabled Schmeling, who is in Germany, that he must agree in 15 days to defend his title against Jack Sharkey. Maxie has replied that Jacobs is his manager and fully qualified to go before the commission and talk it all over with the boxing solons.

And that's where the rub comes in. The commission and Jacobs are not on speaking terms and have not been for some months. The commission does not recognize Jacobs as a manager because of his suspension in the controversy over Arthur Boelow's managerial claims on Schmeling. Jacobs has filed no managerial contract on Schmeling with the commission, which considers the German heavyweight a free agent.

Just what the next move will be, no one was willing to predict, but it was considered probable that if Schmeling fails to accept Sharkey's challenge in the specified time, he will lose the heavyweight title so far as New York State is concerned.

ceptible degree. And his outfield also remains somewhat foggy. McGraw has announced he will try to make a centerfielder out of Fred Lindstrom, who has been pointed out as one of the best thirdbasemen in the sport. The logic of this move is not altogether clear to the fans; yet Lindstrom's speed and dash might go to make a ball hawk in the pasture. Moreover, the Giants have purchased Thirdbaseman Johnny Vergez, home-run socker of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

The Braves, Reds and Phils appear to be destined for the last three berths in the league, although Bill McKechnie may speak an eloquent piece or two in the next sweepstakes.

Wolgast Gets Win Over Willie Davies

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion, of Philadelphia, outpointed Willie Davies, clever Charleroi (Pa.) flyweight, in 10 rounds of bristling action at the Coliseum last night.

Outspeeding his opponent from the opening round, Wolgast won every round but the last, when Davies threw caution to the wind and piled in to land the heaviest blows of the fight. His rally came far too late, however, and though he tried desperately to put over a knockout wallop, the Philadelphian proved too clever to be trapped.

The victory qualified Wolgast for a crack at the world's title against Frankie Genaro, veteran New York boxer.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Eddie Brannon won by technical knockout over Jimmy Kelly, 5 rounds; Frank Novak won by technical knockout over Dan Gallagher, 3 rounds; Terry Waner defeated Sammy Paris, 6 rounds; Joe Orsini won on foul over Frankie Portland, 5 rounds.

At New York—Ernie Schaaf defeated Max Baer, 10 rounds; Bob Olin defeated Joe Banovic, 10 rounds; Vittorio Livan and Angel Cliville drew, 10 rounds; Allie Wolff knocked out Steve Ketchel, 4 rounds.

WILLOW CLUB TOPS SANDS

The Al Sands A. C., of Uniontown, lost a dual amateur boxing match with Willow Club mixers at the Keystone Athletic Club last night, the locals copping four of the seven contests.

Jack McGann, Willow Club, bested Jesse Tucker, of Uniontown, in the best bout of the evening. Jimmy Giannetti, of Uniontown, won in a four-rounder over George Julius, Willow Club entry. The summary:

LOCALS BEATEN

CLEVELAND, Dec. 20.—Mike Choymak, a bristling, two-fisted middleweight, saved Pittsburgh from a complete rout in an intercity fight tournament with Cleveland amateur boxers last night, beating Ralph Phillips, to give the Pittsburgh team its only victory in six battles.

Forcing the fight throughout and staggering his opponent with stiff rights to the jaw, Choymak easily earned the decision.

Between Rounds

Umberto Arce, Porto Rican Negro, who defeated Patsy Perrone in a 10-round bout at Canton, O., last Monday night, wants to come here to box Emmett Rocco, Al Fay, K. O. Christner or any of the other heavyweights. His manager is George Blueppard.

Vince Dundee is due in town next Wednesday morning for his battle with Davis McTiernan, which will headline the Christmas afternoon show at Motor Square Garden. Dundee knocked out Dennis Golden, of Ireland, in seven rounds at Newark, N. J., last Monday night.

Leading local amateur boxers and three from Cleveland will hook up in 12 bouts at Motor Square Garden tonight for the benefit of a Christmas fund.

A $5 top will be charged for the Benny Bass-Lew Massey title bout at the Arena in Philadelphia, January 5.

Billy Ames, who came to this country about eight years ago from England with a string of boxers, has just been named the new matchmaker of Boston's Madison Square Garden. Billy and Ted Marchant, Frank Moody and Wee Willie Woods were a few of the boxers under his wing.

DORMONT BOWS TO S. HILLS

Scholastic floor teams had another big day of it yesterday. In the more important contests, Homestead nosed out Allderdice, 21-17; South Hills beat out Dormont, 24-22; Westinghouse won from New Kensington, 12-7; Swissvale tripped Avalon, 22-16; and Shady Side Academy lost to P. A. A., 35-15.

Millvale set down Evans City, 66-20; Crafton nosed out Langley, 19-14; Sewickley bowed to Coraopolis, 35-18; Ambridge beat Monaca, 18-15; New Castle won over Youngstown South, 26-20; Charleroi copped from Bentleyville, 28-18; Har-Brack downed Greensburg, 28-11; and Tarentum socked Etna, 18-8.

MAY KEEP GLENN

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 20.—(AP.)—The University of Wisconsin athletic council, after a special secret meeting yesterday, indicated that Glenn Thistlethwaite would be retained as football coach next season, but made no formal recommendation to the president of the university or the board of regents, which have final decision in all appointments to the faculty.

YALE FAVORED TO COP

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—The intercollegiate hockey campaign will shift to New York tonight when the Dartmouth and Yale sextets clash at Madison Square Garden. Despite the loss of Frank Luce, captain and scoring ace, who is out with a leg injury, Yale is favored to win.

TABERSKI COPS PLAYOFF

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., defeated Onofrio Lauri, of New York, 125 to 101, last night in their playoff match to decide third place in the world pocket billiards championship tournament. Each won four games and lost three in the regular tournament.

ESSARE VICTOR

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—R. P. Watts' Essare accounted for the Studio Purse, headliner of a mediocre card at Jefferson Park yesterday.

THREE SOCCER GAMES TODAY

Three soccer games will be staged this afternoon in the Central League, the feature contest finding the league-leading Clan Douglas aggregation meeting the Celtics at Leslie Park. This game should produce a great battle. The Celtics play the sort of soccer that may upset the fast-moving black and white of Douglas. The Clansmen have had a little rest and will be in good shape for the game. The Celtics will field a full team, with Kirsopp back in the lineup.

The Pittsburgh Rovers go to Crafton Heights, and this is a tough assignment for any club. The other battle finds the Pierpoint Motors trying to help its league status by beating Jack Thomas' Switch outfit at Swissvale.

Staging Jimmy Moremen into the Motors backfield has weakened the front line, and hurt the scoring ability of the club. Some of the local soccer managers are going to learn that "the best defense is a good offense," and work with that in mind.

CARIDEO DINNER OFF

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 20.—The testimonial banquet for Frank Carideo, all-America quarterback at Notre Dame, arranged tonight by the Chi Club of this city, has been postponed until January 3.

BRANNON STOPS JIMMY KELLY IN THRILLER

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

The season's first capacity boxing crowd at the Moose Temple, downtown, last night witnessed the most thrilling set of bouts staged in this city in many, many moons. Two technical knockouts, one foul and one bout that went to a decision were served up and the fans were out of their seats and homeward-bound by 10 o'clock more than satisfied with the evening's fistic repast.

NOVAK STOPS GALLAGHER

Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, evened his score with Dangerous Dan McGrew Gallagher, West Ender 200-pounder, by technically stopping him with 30 seconds to go in the fourth round. Gallagher's seconds throwing in the towel while he was groveling on the floor, partly outside the ropes, in his own corner.

In the other bouts, Terry Waner, of the North Side, outfought Sammy Paris, of the Hill, to win the unanimous decision in six rounds, and Joe Orsini, of Clairton and Slippery Rock Teachers' College, won on a foul over Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, after one minute of the fifth round. Orsini was painfully hurt by a low right swing and had to be assisted from the ring. It was the second foul within a week in the same ring. Gus Britner, of Charleroi, having been struck low by Paul Balint at last week's show.

BRANNON WINS FROM STALEY

Kelly weighed 139½ pounds and Brannon 137½ for the main event, and it was Brannon's fight from the start. With his straight right cross, he found his southpaw opponent a mark for his sharpshooting and stretched him out cold with a blow to the jaw in the first round, only to have the timekeeper's pounding gavel bring Kelly to with a start at the count of four. Kelly wheeled about and was up at six and pursuing his opponent about the ring, fighting with a ferocity that brought the crowd up cheering.

In the second round, Kelly went to work on Brannon's body with short blows, but the latter backed him against the ropes and dropped him again with a right to the jaw. This time Kelly pulled himself up at three with his back against the ropes and lurched out unsteadily to midring and got back into the running with a series of lefts to the head that made Brannon break ground, but it was Eddie's round.

REFEREE STOPS BOUT

Kelly did little fighting in the third round and Brannon so much that at the finish the latter was arm-weary. Jimmy took a beating until the last minute of the fourth round, when he put on another of his spurts, and both were tired at the bell. They were mixing at close quarters in the fifth when Kelly suddenly dropped down and took a count of nine. A right to the jaw sent him down again for two, and, when he dropped his guard against the ropes and Brannon began to punch him at will, the referee intervened, just before the bell rang.

The bout was the first in which Kelly has failed to either knock down or knock out his opponent since he came here from Dayton, O., to make himself a card, and represents a good win for Brannon.

GALLAGHER DOWN OFTEN

Gallagher started out the aggressor in his return bout with Novak, who scaled 195¼ against Dan's even 200, but, midway in the opening round, Novak nailed him with a right that sent him down for a count of eight. Another right dropped him for a similar toll, but he managed to weather the round. He was down for nine in the second round, in which he also suffered a broken nose that handicapped him the remainder of the bout. He fell down at the start of the third round and got up at once and followed Novak to a neutral corner, where he was battered down under a barrage of blows, whereupon his seconds tossed in the towel.

Waner, scaling 129¾ against 125 for Paris, won the first two and the last two rounds, while Paris, also handicapped in height and reach, outpunched him in the middle sessions. Orsini, 134, outboxed Portland, 138¼, in the first three rounds, with the use of a snappy left jab, but he tired thereafter and was taking a lacing when he was accidentally fouled in the fifth.

CRAWLEY, ANDRUCCI NEXT

Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts. Frank Brown and Frank Hogan were the judges and A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt the timers, with Ray Eberle the announcer and Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician. Tommy Crawley and Andy Andrucci were announced as the headliners for next Friday night.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfaff

A lady whose letter we believe authentic writes in to ask us to solve her problem. Her problem is this: She can't hear the alarm clock in the morning. Consequently she doesn't arouse her husband, who is a miner, and he misses a day's work. This happens often.

We should have said alarm clocks. She uses three, one hanging from the bed, one on a chair close by, and the third hanging from the bedroom light. Her husband doesn't hear them either.

The lady realizes her request may sound "terribly silly" but to her it is important. The fact that she has written to us certainly indicates that. She says she is willing to try anything.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 20.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Senate has been in session almost a month and has just passed the very bills that President Hoover suggested in the first hour that it met. They could have passed 'em the second hour, but no, that wouldn't give 'em a chance to denounce. A foreigner coming here and reading the Congressional Record would say that the President of the U. S. was elected solely for the purpose of giving a senator somebody to call horse thief, and the dumb part about it is they have played right into the President's hands, for there is nothing the people believe in any more than some one the Senate is denouncing. Six months like that and Hoover would be elected by acclamation.

Yours, WILL.

Gary Cooper to Be Hero As Clara Bow Does Dramatic Role

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.

Two factors will give an added interest to Clara Bow's next picture for Paramount. She will be seen in a dramatic role and Gary Cooper will play opposite her.

This star's pictures have stressed the sex and whoopee angle, until there is danger of public surfeit of the turbulent red-head.

Clara Bow

Her new film, as yet untitled, will be an underworld story to be directed by Rouben Mamoulian, prominent Broadwayite. Report declares that Mamoulian will keep the dialogue down to a minimum, following the formula of Josef Von Sternberg's "Morocco."

Production starts right after the first of the year.

PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION

As the Park-Bench Philosopher cogitated, a policeman came up.

FIFI RETURNS

The exuberant Fifi Dorsay, one-time pal of Greta Garbo, is back in Hollywood and will play opposite El Brendel in "Mr. Lemon of Orange."

This is the story that Eddie Canter sold to Winfield Sheehan in six lunches at the Fox Studio.

To get back to Fifi, she has just returned from several months with a stage presentation, similar to the local Fanchon & Marco shows.

Fifi Dorsay

I NOTE THAT—

An actor's agent is said to be negotiating with Al Capone to appear in a motion picture. Small chance of a suit here to collect commission . . . The production manager of a current super-film was named O. O. Dull . . . Carola Kip, a social registerite of Kip Rhinelander extraction, is appearing as an extra in Nancy Carroll's new picture, "Stolen Heaven" . . . Maureen O'Sullivan will visit her native Ireland . . . Come January Al Boasberg, the columnist's friend, will go East for a month to look for new plays for Radio Pictures.

COUNTY CAUCUS NOTICE GIVEN

Secretary William H. Ziefel, of the Republican County Committee, has been notified the 26 representatives of the caucus tentatively set for Friday, January 2, by County Chairman Joseph G Armstrong. The calling of the caucus is subject to the approval of the representatives. Those whom Ziefel communicated with yesterday said the date was satisfactory to them.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and W. L. Mellon conferred late yesterday afternoon, presumably on the lining up of the six Allegheny County senators in the fight Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot is waging on Senator Augustus F. Daix, Jr., president pro-tempore of the Senate, but no statement was forthcoming after the conference.

Last of James Gang Pays Mercer Visit

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 20.—A. L. Woods, of Oklahoma, who claims to be the last member of the once famous Jesse James gang of outlaws, was a visitor here en route to Warren, Pa., to visit his daughter. He asked for a night's lodging at the police station, but was given a bed and breakfast at a hotel. Woods is about 75 years old.

Frustrated Thieves Beat 'Poor' Victim

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 20.—When three bandits held up Hyman Ziman, meat dealer of Butler, in his truck on the Pittsburgh-Butler road, they were angered when Ziman offered them 75 cents. One of the men hit Ziman over the head with an iron pipe and then threw him back into the truck, he told highway patrolmen.

Washington Adds Postoffice Help

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—An additional force of 25 assistants has been added to personnel of the Washington postoffice to aid in handling additional mail during the holiday period. Extra work is being given to aid unemployed, all regular workers not being permitted to work beyond their regular hours.

Franklin Budget Increased $3,277

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 20.—Franklin's budget for 1931 will show a $3,277 increase over the present year, City Council announced. The total is tentatively placed at $95,854.

WILL ROGERS BRINGS NEW 'LIGHTNIN'' TO STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Lightin'," talk screen version of the Frank Bacon stage success, is in the Stanley. It has the cowboy humorist, Will Rogers, in the title role.

Mr. Rogers elaborates a bit on the character. He adds some lines that Mr. Bacon never heard. And he acts in typical Rogers style, except that he outdoes himself. To us it looks like the best thing he has done in the movies.

Lightin' Bill Jones, you recall, is a slow-going, liquor-drinking, philosophizing proprietor of a hotel on the Nevada-California state line. His place is a kind of a haven for persons who want to have it Renovated, as Mr. Winchell puts it.

MEET THE BEE HERDER

And Lightin' himself has some ideas on the divorce matter. He figures it can be stopped by stopping marriage—or by stopping alimony. But when his own wife wants to divorce him, he has to do some more figuring.

Lightin' also is a harmless, but elaborate liar. Maybe he's the fellow who inspired the "Little White Lies" song. Anyway, he tells some big ones. For example, he drove a swarm of bees across the state in the middle of winter without losing a bee.

THE YOUNGSTERS ARE CUTE

There is plenty of good comedy and human interest in the film. Also there is a good supporting cast, including Louise Dresser and Jason Robards.

Ed Lowry presents a dual bill on the stage—a New York unit, "Putt, Putt," and a local children's show, "Xmas Kiddies' Follies." The youngsters are cute and help to create a merry Yuletide atmosphere.

Chevalier Brothers, from England, do some keen lifting and balancing feats. Hunter and Percival spill out some comedy and Grace Johnson sings. Mr. Lowry sings, too, and trots out an old Jack Pearl gag.

FILM OPENS TODAY; NEW PLAYS MONDAY

Mrs. Fiske will open a week's engagement in the Nixon Monday in "Ladies of the Jury."

The beauty queen with "Earl Carroll Sketch Book" coming to the Shubert Alvin next week is Irene Ahlberg. This is the first show she was ever in. Miss Ahlberg won the title of "Miss America" at the beauty pageant held in Galveston, Tex., in 1928.

Peggy Dougherty, who has won much favor with Pittsburgh audiences through her appearances with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, has been cast for an important role in "Broken Dishes," the attraction for next week.

"The Pay Off," an underworld drama, featuring Lowell Sherman, opens today in the Harris. Vaudeville acts will be on the stage.

A special midnight show will be held in the Academy Christmas Eve. "Twentieth Century Girls," with Mae Brown, Harry Evanson and Jean Bedini, will be the attraction.

JENNY LIND IS LIVING AGAIN ON SCREEN IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale, lives again—on the screen. She is impersonated by Grace Moore, opera and Broadway stage star, in the current Aldine film, "A Lady's Morals."

The picture has sequences that will appeal to the music-minded and it has much colorful atmosphere. Its story, concerning the famous singer's romance with a young composer, who becomes blind, is presented sympathetically.

Reginald Denny, generally associated with light comedy roles, turns tragedian in this one, portraying the blind composed. And he does quite well.

Barnum, the greatest-show-on-earth man, also is in the film, in the person of Wallace Beery. He pocks the house and has them sitting in rowboats on the river on the occasion of Jenny Lind's American premiere.

The bill also includes an all-dog comedy, "Dogway Melody."

END BOOTH SEAL SALE TUESDAY

The booth sales of Christmas health seals by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh will end Tuesday noon, Mrs. J. Paul Warner, chairman of the booth sale committee, announced today. Members of the committee have requested that shoppers buy their seals before it is too late.

The Squirrel Hill Community Club will give its annual Christmas party tonight in the Tuberculosis League Hospital, Bedford avenue. In addition to refreshments, the program includes readings by Karl Emerson Williams, piano numbers by J. M. Brallier, of the First United Brethern Church, and vocal selections. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. J. V. Clippinger, Mrs. L. D Burt and Mrs. T. W. Ferris.

Legislators Scan Polk State School

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 20.—Seventeen legislators of Northwestern Pennsylvania, with the trustees, were guests of Dr. Harvey M. Watkins, superintendent of the Polk State Training School, at an inspection of the school, and witnessed the Christmas play, "Hansel and Gretel," produced by inmates. Efficiency and economy of the boys' new dormitory impressed the visitors.

Graduating Class Speakers Named

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—Dr. S. S. Baker, president of Washington and Jefferson College, and the Rev. John W. Love, pastor of the First Christian Church, of Washington, have been announced as speakers for the commencement and baccalaureate service, respectively, for the January graduating class of Washington High School.

Boy Breaks Parole; Sent to Morganza

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—David Tyler, 14, was sent back to the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza shortly after he was caught by owner of the car while attempting to steal an automobile here. It is alleged that he recently made way with three automobiles from city streets. He had been on parole from the training school.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1929, by Daily Mirror, Inc.)

By Way of Miami Beach, Fla.

These Charming People

Helen Morgan is a great little feller, and the best piano-sitter of them all, but when it was first hinted here (ever so many hundreds of columns ago) that she would wed Arthur Loew as soon as he got his anchor melted, Helen made the ugliest faces, and said the darndest things.

Al E. Smith can get my vote any time, whether he says "raddio" or not, but he pinks up and squeezes his grapefruit!

Henry L. Mencken, you remember Henry, of Mencken and Nathan, those knife-throwers! Well, Henry is married and has settled down, as the saying goes, and he is a fine person, but he wears high-laced shoes.

Calvin Coolidge, the writer, is another of my favorites, because he doesn't separate his sentences with three dots, but, in spite of all his redeeming features, he gets kittenish and pinches Mrs. C.'s arms.

Sam Hellman has a readable style, and I go for his stories in the huge manner, but he sings at parties.

Rudy Vallee croons pleasantly, no matter what those meanies who write columns keep telling you, and Rudy is jake with the crowd, and so forth, etcetra and so on, but his trousers are too short.

Arthur Somers Roche often spellbinds me with his stories in the mags, but he is social-register mad.

James Montgomery Flagg's drawings are second to none, but he really believes he is the reincarnated Abraham Lincoln.

I like Tony Sarg, too—as who doesn't?—and his imitation of a German band (done with his fingers) is the most amusing stage-affair gag you ever heard, but he never reads the stories he illustrates.

Robert C. Benchley's reviews are without a doubt among the most amusing articles written, and they are sensible verdicts, too, but he sends letters that invariably come with postage due.

Mayor Hague, of Jersey City, is another nice person to know, but he wears tight collars and closes his eyes when he talks.

James Farley, chairman of the N. Y. State Democratic Commission and Boxing Commission, is a personable person, but he indorses ciggie ads and won't allow smoking in Madison Square Garden.

You'd like Gene Tunney a lot better if you knew him, but he is a Graham Cracker-and-Milk Fiend.

George Jean Nathan is another of the locals who has more pals than is suspected, but he goes to bed too early.

I am glad, really, that Heywood Broun lost that race for Congress because he would probably have neglected his incessantly fine paragraphing, but he can't make a decent four-in-hand knot.

St. John Ervine is simply ducky—but.

Marilyn Miller's dancing always thrills me, and she knows it, but she likes "interpretive" dancing, and has a dialectician on stage now who says: "Why deed we go? why deed we fight? for what was de rizzon?"

I like Ethel Barrymore and Robert Littell heaps, also.

Ina Claire is one of the better actresses and she is a delightful person off stage, too, but she keeps saying that she isn't divorcing John Gilbert, when, as a matter of fact, she started proceedings long ago and is only waiting to serve him with the papers.

Eddie Cantor, like Flo Ziegfeld, is human, thus he is sensitive about criticism, but he evens matters by sending abusive critics gifts.

No critic, incidentally, can phrase sarcasm so beautifully as Percy Hammond, but he waddles like Frederick Kerr.

Johnny Weissmuller, the swimming champ, whose record is 100 yards in 49 seconds, is all right, but he wears an old tie for belt "because it doesn't leave a line around the waist."

Will Rogers is my idea of a honey of a guy, and he is certainly a great kidder, but he can't "take" kidding.

Burton Rasco, who should be doing a column for some daily rag, is one of our betters, but he spoils parties by insisting upon standing on his head while wearing a mandarin coat.

G. K. Chesterton, the essayist, and one of England's greats, is a swell orator, but he keeps scratching himself.

Cholly Knickerbocker (Maury Paul to you!) is really the ace among society reporters, but he burns to a crisp if you snap at him.

And Al Capone is a very lovely man, and there are no "buts!"

ALL INFANT PRODIGIES, HUNDREDS OF 'EM, AT THE PENN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

For three hours the merry amusement mill ground away at the Penn Theater yesterday while our infant prodigies, yes hundreds of 'em, strutted their stuff. Ziegfeld and George White had better send us nothing but the best henceforth—we're used to it now.

George Seibel

Here were Chester Hale Girls no bigger than a postage stamp, and whirlwind acrobats a little larger than a lead pencil. Martha Bonini singing "He's My Secret Passion" to Ted Claire would make Greta Garbo look to her laurels. Rose Marie, tiniest accordeon virtuoso, will make Phil Baker hustle the bellows. And there's a jazz band conducted by Betty Dugan that would worry Paul Whiteman into a decline.

TOM THUMB WEDDING

Lola May Marshall and Vernon Jackson as bride and bridegroom gave a delightful number. Dot Wenzel imitated Nora Bayes so that you thought Nora had come back. Charles Provost and Jack Morrow did a Rooney dance specialty, Jean Neff and Marie Burke sang, while another accordeon and dance number was given by Albert de Lernia, Billy Johnson and Billy Clark. Betty Jane Calabrese and Adele Yoria also sang charmingly.

There were so many dancing ensembles that they had to be relayed in squads, and each squad exhausted the synonyms for "cute" the audience could think of.

Victor Hyde, or whoever drilled these regiments, ought to have a place near Napoleon, for the big show went through without a hitch.

FORGET THE REST

The grown-up Chester Hale Girls will surely admit that they're not in it this week. We adore the tiniest Taglionis and forget the rest. Even that marvelous juggler stirs us to languid applause. Just as David Pesetzki will admit that his "Cantique de Noel" would be nothing without the 60-boy choristers singing "Adeste Fideles."

The picture this week is Ed Wynn, the "Perfect Fool," with his comical inventions in "Follow the Leader," a screen version of "Manhattan Mary." Wynn's burglar alarm lock, which plays "The Star Spangled Banner" when a housebreaker attacks it, and his ear candles, guaranteed better than any alarm clock, amuse the crowd as much as ever. Voices were indistinct and metallic at first, but the picture as a whole made up for any drawbacks. Wynn as a kidnaper is capital, and Ted Claire should watch his infant prodigies in the mammoth miniature revue.

FULTON AND SHERIDAN HAVE JACK OAKIE FOR FUN FILM

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

That's the story of Jackie Oakie in "Sea Legs," showing at the Fulton and Sheridan Square. Jack you see, is an American lad by the name of Doyle. He's a sailor. A man by the name of O'Brien would inherit $2,000,000 if he returned to Saint Chatte, a little island in the Mediterranean, to serve his year in the navy. But the poor lad might dirty his hands.

FORCED INTO NAVY

So O'Brien's lawyer has Doyle shanghaied into the Sainte Chatte navy under the name of O'Brien. The kidnaping is indicted by a hundred Ivanes or so. The ships is the gift of an American to Sainte Chatte. So, in honor, all men aboard the "Quattre Juillet," or "Fourth of July," speak English, which is a break for 7 s'le, alias O'Brien. It's a big conscription navy, necessary to keep down the crowds on the miniature golf courses.

HAS MANY DAUGHTERS

The captain has so many daughters that Doyle thinks the League of Nations, if he hears of them, will order him to sink a couple of the girls. Lillian Roth is one of them. She's the romance.

Harry Green, as one Goldberger, is the lawyer. He thinks "chauffeur" begins with an "sh" as in "shyster"; he learned law by ear, so wouldn't be expected to spell well.

That's the way it goes. A Gilbert and Sullivan touch to slapstick. A lot of fun until your sides get sore. Jack Oakie in "Sea Legs" should be on your calendar.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Senator Hiram Johnson answers Senator Arthur Capper on "The World Court" tonight at 9:30 over WJAS. Senator Johnson is to advance many reasons why the United States should not entangle itself in foreign alliance. The ever - important question has gained attention by the recent action of President Hoover who sent to the Senate the Root formula for America's adherence to the court, requesting favorable action.

QUESTION A DAY:

If I write to announcers, will they send me their pictures?—J. M.

Answer—Some will and some won't. Half of the boys aren't as affected as it would seem. It is sometimes hard to dig up a camera shot. Mailing pictures to admirers is expensive. Another thing, lots of the fellows who don't mind a microphone, are self-conscious before a camera and take poor pictures.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

If anyone gives the incorrect time over WJAS it's his own fault. A clock two feet square has been erected in front of the announcer's mike. The figures are almost three inches high.

URGE WIDENING OF COLLINS AVE.

Signed by nearly 60 property owners of the East End district, a petition asking for widening of Collins avenue from Penn avenue to Burpee street will be presented formally to City Council Monday.

The petition was introduced yesterday while budgeting activities were being discussed, and President John S. Herron ordered the city law department to make appraisal of the estimated cost of property required to widen the thoroughfare from 45 to 60 feet, as requested by the petitioners.

The Louis Reiter

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The microphone pollers are putting their restless fingers on the picturesque past of the republic. They are reviving the humor and gusto of American life of the eighties and nineties.

But while some glamorous phases of those times are being set down, time ought also to be found for such definitely homespun aspects of America as fiddlers' contests, quilting parties, the country dances with which farmers forget for an hour their back-breaking labors, caucuses of the old parties, Saturday night village band concerts, firemen's conventions and old home week orgies.

A browse through albums or through the forgotten clippings and photographs of old desks is a diverting pastime to a sophisticated age. The radio should be utilized to satisfy curiosity about the modes and manners of the past.

Tin Pan Alley Halts Its Gaze at Carolina

The eyes of Tin Pan Alley are no longer trained as steadily on the Carolinas. There was a time when the Carolinas inspired more melody men than all the other states of the Union. Yet, it seems to me, the song writers have done their best work for Kentucky and Virginia. Strange, they have not given much attention to Texas. As soon as they think of Texas they think of the Alamo or the Rio Grande, and the state is shelved for another day which never seems to come.

Nor have the tunesmiths given more than a passing thought to Vermont. And Vermont, with its maple syrup, its folksy flavor, its old-homestead-oil-lamp association with the good Calvin, would seem to be shekel-counting opportunity right up their alley.

The microphones, getting down more to personalities, are also fairly free of mammy songs. Perhaps, it is because there is only one troubadour in the land who can do right by mammy—old Massa Jolson. And the Massa lifts his voice upon the air only at the rare urging of the more spendthrift sponsors.

Mammy becomes believable when Jolson clears his throat. He convinces you she is actually waiting by the little cabin do'. She becomes for an instant a colossal epitome of Southern hospitality and call of home. It is true art, though. I'd like to see the art extended to embrace ol' pappy, too.

New Castle Woman Finds Thief in Home

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 20.—Four homes were entered here and the attempt made to enter a fifth home, valuable jewelry being taken in two of the others. Apparently it was the work of a lone robber, who was seen by Mrs. William P. Boyd, who returned to her home and, hearing some person upstairs, called to her husband, as she supposed. The robber dashed downstairs and out without getting anything of value.

GIFT PERIOD EXTENDED

The Golden Rule Foundation of New York has announced that owing to the intense need of hundreds of thousands of children who should benefit by Golden Rule contributions, it has extended the period of Golden Rule giving to Christmas Day.

The foundation has announced that all contributions received will be forwarded in full to any specific need designated by the donor. If undesignated, the gift will be applied to meet the most acute needs through the most efficient agencies as revealed by the investigations of the survey committee.

Off-Street Parking Urged by McIntyre

City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre, addressed members of the Pittsburgh Reserve Officers' Association yesterday at a noon meeting in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. He outlined the available off-street parking areas downtown, pointing out that there are at present 59 lots and garages with a capacity of 14,294 cars where there is but an average of 10,689 cars used each business day. The unused parking space would accommodate the cars now legally or illegally using street space, he said.

MAN REFUSED DIVORCE

Judge Ambrose B. Reid, of Common Pleas Court, in an opinion handed down yesterday, refused Galen Richardson, 42, of 1502 Alabama avenue, Dormont, a divorce from Elsie M. Richardson because he gave his wife $200 after their separation in May, 1926. The court said in his opinion that he was convinced that under all the circumstances, Richardson consented to the separation and is not entitled to a decree.

Richardson testified that at the time of the separation, his wife threw his clothes on the floor, shoved him out of the house and informed him if he returned she "would knock his block off." The couple were married January 21, 1914, and at that time lived in Shenadoh. They have no children.

Police Defied, Arrest 16 in Lottery Case

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—Though warned 24 hours before by police through the columns of the Monessen newspaper, 16 persons, three of them women, were captured in Monessen and placed forfeits on charges of conducting a lottery. Five men put up forfeits of $100 each, the rest deposited $50 each for appearance at a hearing.

Man Struck by 2 Trains Only Bruised

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 20.—Struck by two fast trains almost at the same instant, Harry Trump, 30, of Bradenville, attributes to his "lucky day" his escape with bruises.

Walking home along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, Trump was sent sprawling to the side by two engines. As he was swept to the side he was brushed by the Broadway Limited, crack Penny flyer. He managed to roll between the tracks as the train passed by.

GARAGE RENTAL SAVED FOR CITY

At least $4,100 will be saved the city on garage rent in 1931 as the result of a suggestion by T. Lloyd Pillow, of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Council members said yesterday.

Pillow appeared before the budgeting committee of the councilmanic body and suggested a city-owned building at 609 Second avenue, now vacant, be used to house trucks and other equipment now stored in the city stables in Tunnel street. Lease on the Tunnel street structure expires March 1.

Following Pillow's suggestion, Council adjusted the budget accordingly.

2 PITT 'FRATS' PENALIZED

Two fraternities of the University of Pittsburgh, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Chi, were fined $10 each and placed on probation for a year by the fraternity council of the school.

The fraternities were charged with an infraction of the interfraternity rules of issuing invitations to "rushing" events prior to the formal opening of the "rushing" period.

Resinol Heals

"Some time ago eczema broke out on my leg. After weeks of special treatment during which time the itching and burning were severe I could hardly stand it, I was told nothing more could be done for me. A friend of mine urged me to try Resinol Ointment, which I did. I am happy to say it healed my leg completely and I have never had any breaking out since. My husband also used Resinol for a rash on his hands with the same excellent results. We are never without it in our home." (Signed)—Mrs. E. Fraser, Fawnbank, N. S.

PARK'S $2,000 RAISE DENIED

District Attorney Andrew T. Park's request for a $2,000 raise which he told the Commissioners at the budget sessions that he is entitled to under the law was stricken from the budget by Controller Robert G. Woodside yesterday.

Park said that his understanding of the law was that after the 1930 census according to the population increase of Allegheny County the district attorney's salary should be $12,000 and the Commissioners said that if that was the law he was entitled to the raise, and so ordered it.

County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher hunted for the law but found that the act of 1929 setting the salaries of elective county officials at $10,000 a year is the only act affecting Park's office. The law that Park was quoting applies only to Philadelphia County. So the $2,000 raise was scratched out of the budget in the controller's office yesterday.

N. Y. VICE GRAFT FUNDS TRACED

A blanket subpena naming every member of the vice squad—120 of them—and their families was ordered for upwards of 2,000 brokerage houses and banks in the metropolitan area by assistants of Isidor J. Kresel, counsel in the magistrates' courts inquiry.

Transcripts of all trading accounts in the name of police were demanded in an effort to learn whether bribes taken from women and gamblers were used to play the market rather than deposited in bank accounts or strong boxes.

Referee Samuel Seabury has heard testimony indicating that police, in conspiracy with lawyers and bondsmen, framed the arrests of women and petty criminals and extorted money from them in return for quashing their cases. Four officers are standing departmental trial on the basis of these charges.

INQUEST OVER FLIER PLANNED

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—With the return to White Horse, Yukon, of Capt. E. J. A. Burke's body from the wilds of the Lizard River district, citizens of White Horse today were looking forward to an inquest into his death.

Burke died of exposure and starvation after being lost several weeks with two companions, Emil Kading and Robert Marten, who were rescued about 10 days ago by Everett Wasson, American pilot.

Wasson, assisted by Joe Walsh, a guide, and Sergt. Leopold, of the Mounted Police, brought Burke's body to White Horse in his plane.

DRYS TAKE RUM IN 3 RAIDS

Prohibition agents reported raiding two dwellings in East Monongahela and confiscating large amounts of whisky, gin, wine and home brew.

In the home of Louis Ferella, 47, in East Monongahela, the agents said they confiscated gin, whisky, wine and a dozen cases of home brew. Ferella was held in $1,000 bond.

Another house in East Monongahela yielded the raiders 120 quarts of home brew and several gallons of moonshine. The occupant of the place was being sought.

Boys Hasten to Use Gifts; Go to Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Because they couldn't wait until Christmas to open their gifts, Norman and Earle Erickson, 11 and 12, will spend Yuletide in the hospital.

Their presents were roller skates. Half an hour after they opened the parcels yesterday, Norman fell and suffered a compound fracture of the wrist. Two hours later Earle met with the same injury.

Services to Be Held For Actress' Father

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS.)—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Walter G. Gahagan, 66, head of an engineering firm and father of Helen Gahagan, actress. He died after a three-day illness of pneumonia. Burial will be at Troy, O., his birthplace.

Delayed by Revolt, Aileen Riggin Hikes

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP.)—Aileen Riggin is a fine swimmer, diver and hitchhiker. She is back from a visit to her father, who is a resident of Barcelona, Spain. To make ship connections when political conditions were disturbing, she got to France by asking rides of motorists.

Connie Relates Experiences To Her Mother

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV.

Morning broke for Connie and she faced the beginning of a new, distressful day. So taut was her spirit that she felt little physical depression from the strain she had been under and the consequent loss of sleep. A shower bath and change of clothes completely restored her active vitality.

Not even the servants in the house were awake. Before anyone was astir, Connie went to her mother's room. The task of breaking the news that she was not going to marry Jim Tracy today appalled her, but there was a grim trait in her character that made her face the difficulty without hesitation.

She was surprised, however, at her mother's steadfast acceptance of the fact. Remarkably, there were no reproaches, no signs of excited protest.

Mother Comforts Connie

"You know your own mind best, Connie," her mother said, with a homely kind of wisdom. "If you have discovered at the last minute that you don't love Jim and that you foresee lifelong unhappiness, you're quite right in refusing to marry."

Connie was sitting on the side of the bed and her mother held both of her hands.

"It's so sweet of you, mother, to be such a good sport about it!"

"Nonsense. What do you care about what people will say? You have to live your own life, child. Not even your mother has any right to dictate to you. I'm getting old, Connie, and in a few years I won't be with you any more. I don't want to go and leave you married to the wrong man. If there is the slightest doubt in your heart, I think you are absolutely right. You can thank your lucky stars you caught yourself in time!"

"But it seems an awful thing to do to Jim," Connie said. "I know how it hurts and humiliates him, but—"

"Have you told him yet?"

"Yes, we saw each other again last night after you went to bed, mother."

For the present Connie withheld the story of her flying trip to New York. Indeed, she had given her mother scarcely any reason at all for breaking the engagement, merely, she had stated, now at the last, she had decided that she couldn't marry Jim. "He seemed awfully broken up about it, mother."

"Jim is a dear boy," her mother said, "and I hate to see him hurt—but he'll get over it. You're saving him, as well as yourself, from a great mistake."

Mrs. Calvert arose immediately and took from Connie the unpleasant responsibility of notifying the invited guests that the wedding was postponed. This, though, was a polite fiction, and Connie marveled at her mother's ease in making the conventional apologies. Jim Tracy called up eagerly. Connie talked to him briefly, told him she had not reconsidered her decision and staved off his desire to come over and resume his pleadings.

"Drop over some time in the next two or three days, Jim," she told him. "You're always welcome, but I want to be alone today."

Puzzled About Kitty

It seemed impossible to her, now, that she had ever considered linking her life with Jim Tracy. What sort of trance-like state did girls get into when they yielded to a man's desire for marriage? Was it possible, Connie wondered, if thousands of others had felt the great social and personal pressure forcing them to the altar? Without doubt it was a tragedy, yet it must be that thousands, millions, had lacked the courage to turn back.

But none of this settled the question in her mind, immediately, as to what she would do about Kitty. Of one thing she was sure—today she would not see any of her friends; no disappointed bridesmaids or gossip-thrilled young matrons. All of that, she would dodge; she would not even answer the telephone.

In her own bedroom, square and spacious, with its double windows overlooking the fine rolling country, was found the seclusion that enabled her to revolve over and over in her mind the problem of Kitty. This morning she had been surprised by her mother's unruffled acceptance of the broken engagement. Aged and gray, the sweetly sensitive little woman had displayed to Connie an unsuspected common sense of decisiveness. Had she misread her own mother's character? In an emergency, a crisis, Mrs. Calvert had borne herself with understanding poise, instead of succumbing to what must have been a real shock. Connie thought over the past and of telling her, frankly, the whole truth about Kitty Calvert.

It was a dangerous speculation. After all, her mother might not be able, with equanimity, to sustain a second stunning revelation. The story of Kitty would stir her mother far more readily than the postponed wedding. All mothers are skeptical of their daughter's wedding—perhaps its stoppage had been the subconscious relief.

Connie Relates Story

The history of Kitty, however, was fraught with questionable results. It would not be so easy for Mrs. Calvert to realize that her beloved husband had deceived her about a previous marriage and had abandoned the child of that union. To tell her would be to undermine all of her faith and veneration for the dead man's memory. More, Connie's compelling altruism that made her so desirous of taking up Kitty as a real sister, might not have an equal appeal for her mother.

Something had to be done about Kitty, and at once!

There was a possibility that she might deceive her mother; that she could lie about her friendship with Kitty and invent some fantastic tale. When she tried to devise such a protective story, her power of invention failed her, and she realized that there was no explanation for Kitty—except the truth. Her placidity prayed on Connie's mind until she felt as though she were battering a stone wall and getting nowhere. The simplest thing, of course, would be to tell her mother the whole story and take the risk of its consequence. Yet, with all her heart Connie shrank from inflicting such pain; she was in a position of a tender-hearted surgeon, confronted with the necessity of operating without an anesthetic.

At last she made up her mind. Her mother listened to the whole dark story with a strange set look on her motherly face. What was transpiring in her heart, Connie could only guess. But she was proud of the soldierly courage that hid all wounds.

"There's only one thing to do, of course," Mrs. Calvert said. "We'll have to protect your father's memory from the public, but the girl must be taken care of. I'm afraid there is only one honorable thing to do. We must bring her into our home and give her every chance we can."

DAILY TRUE STORY — Repaid

"No, sir, I wouldn't give my own grandmother a left-over cruller unless she paid cash for it," Rod Jessups declared.

He deftly flipped the fried egg on the bread, crossed it with a couple of strips of crisp, hot bacon and handed it over to Newt Marston.

"Hard as nails, what?" Marston said as he sat on the counter stool in Rod's lunch wagon and flipped down a ten spot.

"It ain't that I'm hard, or such a mean cuss, but a guy's got to stop bein' a sap and take care of hisself," Rod defended.

"Say Mr. Marston, ain't you got something smaller?"

"Sorry," Marston answered as he bit into the sandwich.

"All right."

Rod Jessups reached inside of his vest and produced a large flat packet of bills, from which he made the change.

"No, sir, I ain't hard, only wise. I been stood up here for eats and for carfare and for gas and what-not until what I got on the slate would buy me another lunch wagon."

Marston was driving to the city to see a very particular young lady—the jolly Flo Purling, whom he hoped to make Mrs. Newton Marston before so very long. He looked at his watch and grinned. He was ahead of schedule, he had been so anxious to get started, and he hadn't waited for luncheon.

"Build another of those fried egg things, Rod," he commanded when Jessups got back from supplying the gas.

When Newt was half through with his second egg and bacon sandwich the most worried appearing young man he ever saw came into the lunch wagon.

"How far is it to the city?" he asked Rod.

"Forty-eight, flat," Rod told him, briskly.

"Do you know Dan Donovan, a policeman there?" The worried young man seemed most anxious about this.

"Sorry, friend, but he's one of the 12,000 cops in the Big Town that I never got introduced to."

Aided by Marston

"Tough," he said. "I've had some rotten breaks. Dan is my cousin. I'm on my way to his home with my wife and baby. Some rat stole my wallet out of my overcoat when I was under my car trying to keep it alive until I got to Dan's home. We're all hungry and the baby needs milk and my wife is half frozen. Look here—"

The desperate young man fished in his pocket while Rod winked at Marston, as if to tip him that here was another touch.

"—this isn't much of a watch, but it's worth something. How about holding it until I can send you the money, and staking me to gas, eats and especially some milk for baby?"

"I've got to have gas—and milk for baby. Me and the wife can hold out until we get to Dan's—be a good sport, Buddy—"

"I was just tellin' this gentleman here that I wouldn't give a stale cruller to me own grandmother—"

"Never mind that, Rod," Marston said. He turned to the young man.

"I'll stake you," he said quietly.

Rod and the young man went out.

Outside Rod said: "That was a hot one—you offering to do as much for him — know that party?"

"No."

"He's Marston, millionaire in his own right and his old man's got about the rest of the millions, I guess."

"That's all right — it isn't whether he's got a million or a five spot, it's the heart to help a guy out when he's up against it."

The young man came in with the baby's bottle.

"I'd like to wash it but that bird is so full of sympathy he might break out crying," the young man said.

Orders Lunch

Marston went back of the counter, washed the bottle in hot water, warmed some milk and was just putting it in the bottle when Rod came back.

"Take the milk out and come back a minute," Marston told the young man.

When he had gone Marston turned to Rod.

"Fix up four of the best hot chicken sandwiches you have, thick slabs of meat, hot gravy, and a couple of those containers of good hot coffee — don't spare the butter or the meat or the gravy—"

The young man stared at him and his eyes became suddenly misty.

"Gees, you're one regular guy—look here, I've got to have your name and address or I won't take a thing except the milk and gas. I'm gonna send this blanket back and I want to know you so I can repay you."

Marston did as requested merely to save the chap any more embarrassment.

"My name is Tom Donovan. My cousin Dan is on the force, and through some friends I'm in line to get on. I have been away a couple years, but I still vote in the city. You'll hear from me."

Rod brought out the four very special hot chicken sandwiches and containers of coffee and, feeling rather ashamed, said: "Here's some pie; don't you want to come in where it's warm?"

So they sat there and ate.

Newton Marston arrived on time and called on the vivacious jolly and irresponsible Flo Purling, only he did not suspect that Flo was so utterly heartless, irresponsible and money-grabbing.

He called on her many times during the year and finally married her, an event that took up space in the society columns and the rotogravure sections of the papers.

When Tom was on the force only three years he heard a disturbance in a small night club. He went in and found four bandits holding up the place and relieving patrons of money and jewelry. They saw his uniform. One started shooting. Tom had just time to escape that shot. Then he stepped out and let drive. Tom could shoot out the flame of a candle at 50 yards, nine times out of ten. All four men were on the floor after eight shots had been fired. Tom shooting half of those and hitting, while the bandits shot the other four and missed. One was dead, the others were through with banditry for a long stretch, as it later proved.

This won Tom promotion to detective, third class. In another year he was a second-grade detective and going strong.

A call came from someone to go to a certain address. Tom was on hand and rushed over. It was the city home of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Marston. A frightened butler admitted him.

A knock on a door upstairs admitted him to a little den or library. Mrs. Newton Marston was in hysterics. Mr. Newton Marston was telling her to shut her damn fool head.

There was something on the floor — the something had once been Hal Gordon, noted society chap-about-town. Now it was a corpse. There was a triangular dent on the top of his head.

Keeps Promise

"Fat chance," Marston said.

Tom turned and stared hard at him.

"Marston, aren't you?"

"I think that by now my name is Mud," Marston said, savagely. "Why waste words, I blew in and found——"

He shrugged.

"It's been going on for a year. I got sick of—"

"Just a minute," Tom snapped. "I reached up and took down that ornamental war club from the wall when he pulled a gun on me—"

"Just a minute, Marston," Tom snapped at him. "Remember the guy you staked to gas and milk and eats out at the High Point lunch wagon some years ago?"

"Sure, are you trying to be funny or—"

"I'm the guy. Now listen, you heard the wife scream, you ran up, he was attacking her, he fell against the wall here and jolted down that club—it beaned him—got it straight?"

"Do you mean it?" Marston asked, in an awed whisper.

"I mean it—I told you I'd do as much for you."

Merited Censure

Inspector Faulkner's Failure to Co-operate with Detectives is Regrettable—Brief Comment On Other Local News Items.

Charles Faulkner, North Side police inspector, appears on the face of the evidence to have deserved the censure to which he was subjected by his superiors in the Public Safety Department for failing to co-operate with the city detectives in their search for the Perry and Manchester bank robbers. Faulkner's zeal is commendable, but is more likely to be productive of results if he shows willingness to share the glory of arresting the robbers with Inspector Frank Boyd's branch of the police bureau.

After positive assurance had been given by Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong that the County Commissioners would act this week on the Town Hall project the week is ending without action. The effect is, of course, to shake the citizens' faith in Mr. Armstrong's promises. In trifling with the citizens' patience he is injuring his own prestige.

The State Highway Department has just issued a booklet, "Pennsylvania Highways Beautiful," which contains pictures of roads made beautiful with trees, shrubbery and flowers. The department states that it will help communities to beautify their roads so far as its funds will permit, first, by drafting plans; second, by planting trees, shrubs and vines furnished at the roadside, and third, by maintaining the plantings. While other counties have availed themselves of this offer, Allegheny County has as yet not applied for such assistance. We need it, too.

That was an alluring prospect which Frank S. Lyon, head of a monorail company, laid before Pittsburghers in his statement yesterday—a new rapid transit system, to be completed within a year and to cost only one-tenth as much as a subway, and which would give everyone a seat at five cents and operate at a profit. Safety, speed and comfort are all promised. The thing calls for thorough investigation. If Mr. Lyon is not exaggerating, this is just what Pittsburgh needs.

The four leading railroad systems in the Eastern territory have at last got together on a merger plan. Their proposals do not jibe with those of the Interstate Commerce Commission in every respect. It is to be hoped the Commission will not approve any which would block construction of the $177,000,000 Loree line across Pennsylvania or the formation of the new Taplin trunk line.

The Sun-Telegraph printed yesterday a picture of Mrs. M. J. Burdette, of Stowe Township, holding two young pigs under her arms, as if they were pets. This brings to mind the opinion once expressed by W. H. Hudson, author of "Green Mansions," a brilliant naturalist, that if primitive man had adopted the wild pig, instead of the savage ancestor of the dog, as a pet and companion, we would now have, in place of the dog, a pet of superior intelligence. But there are probably few who will share Mr. Hudson's belief. Not even thousands of years of breeding and training, most persons will say, would make the pig a smarter and more companionable animal than our canine friends.

Mrs. Minna Kaufmann Ruud, of Pittsburgh, has been decorated by the King of Norway for establishing a fund through which latent talent is to be sought in the young singers of that country. Mrs. Ruud hopes to discover another Jenny Lind. Is such a search being conducted, on a sufficiently extensive scale, in the United States? In our vast population there must be a number of potential Jenny Linds—and Enrico Carusos, too.

Pittsburgh churches which have discontinued Sunday evening services because of lack of attendance will be gratified to know that a "standing room only" sign had to be hung at the weekly prayer meeting of the Waynesburg Christian Church Wednesday night. It would be interesting, by the way, to hear what the stern Scotch-Irish Presbyterians and pious Germans who founded Pittsburgh would have to say, if they were alive, about the omission of evening services and the suspension of activities by some of the churches during the summer.

Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehi- cles, told members of the Pittsburgh Motor Club yesterday that a million Pennsylvania motorists have not yet applied for their 1931 license plates. That means a last-minute rush. It also means that attaches of the motor vehicles bureau will have to give up Christmas holidays enjoyed by other state employes. The motorists' delay in getting their licenses is regrettable from every standpoint.

Seeing a woman grappling with a footpad in the Hill district yesterday, a passing motorist drew a revolver and fired a shot at the robber, forcing him to flee. The incident is just another illustration of the fact that many citizens are carrying pistols nowadays. It is a bad and unlawful practice. Yet they may well point, in answer to reproof, to the numerous holdups committed by armed desperadoes.

The pledge of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade to oppose the "fixing" of traffic offense cases is an encouraging sign. Perhaps the time is near when offenders—at least, when they chance to be self-respecting persons—will scorn to ask politicians to "fix" their tags, but on the contrary will consider it a matter of honor that they face the charges and pay the fine. Speed the day!

The Allegheny County Bar Association paid Robert S. Frazer, the new chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, a great tribute of respect and esteem at a banquet Friday night. It was a tribute in which laymen who have came in contact with Justice Frazer during his 34 years on the bench will gladly join. In respect to those qualities in which laymen are as well qualified to pass judgment as the lawyers—dignity, kindly consideration, and poise—Justice Frazer might well be taken as a model by jurists.

Assistant District Attorney Earl Jackson said in court yesterday that he had been approached by politicians and asked to recommend a light sentence for a highwayman convicted of committing three holdups at the point of a gun. It is a sinister thing that politicians should have interested themselves in such a case. Mr. Jackson is to be commended for making the matter public. It should tend to restrain judges from being unduly lenient to highwaymen.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Making Husbands Christmas-Conscious

Every man is eager to give the woman he loves something which will "surprise her" on Christmas morning. It never occurs to him that the one thing, which would surprise her more than anything else, would be to receive something that she has been hoping, hinting and ASKING for—for the last six months.

Christmas is the golden chance of a man's life to shine in his favorite role of Santa Claus. Yet it is the one time in all the year when he is sure to fall down on the job and get paralysis of the imagination.

More love affairs have been wrecked, more potential romances nipped in the bud and more marriages turned sour by the shocks and disappointments of Christmas morning than by anything else.

To the average girl, Christmas is the magic moment when all the suppressed romance in a man's soul will blossom forth into graceful expression in the form of the perfect gift—the gift of her heart's desire.

But to a man, Christmas is either "just another holiday," or worse still, the painful moment when a woman is EXPECTING something of him.

In his short story, "Handy Man," Elmer Davis tells of a wife who divorced her devoted husband, because he bought her a radio instead of a lot of pink lingerie for Christmas. And many a wife who has waked up to find "a switch in her stocking" sympathises with her.

But it is not fair to judge a man by his Christmas gift. Because, for 364 days in the year, a man may understand a woman perfectly. But, on Christmas Day, she suddenly becomes a mystery.

* * *

Next to the problem of what to give woman the most perturbing and irritating thing about Christmas is the terrifying thought of what she may give HIM. For, no woman ever yet gave a man a Yuletide offering that did not embarrass him, annoy him or depress him!

* * *

Between this Scylla and Charybdis, it is no wonder that so many perfectly good husbands, lovers and bachelors begin drowning their sorrows on Christmas Eve.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—All I've ever been able to do at an afternoon tea is squat in an obscure corner and look grinnier than usual. While others are cooing and twittering I watch for a neat opening to take it on the lam. I despise teas, but now and then one has to go.

Yesterday provided one of the unhappy afternoons. Long ago I realized to be a card at such carryings-on one must simper. So all morning I practiced simpering before a mirror, revamped a few Oscar Wilde mots and brushed up holding a tea-cup archly with the little finger skyward.

One particular smirk I worked up into something that seemed to me perfectly dandy. It was, if you know what I mean, distingue. Few would grasp its significance at a glance. Only a twitch to the right eyebrow—only a twitch but it would get you, girls!

Irvin Cobb, who is turning out a novel two floors above, dropped in during rehearsals. He has attempted some single-handed tea smirking in his time so I sought his critical opinion. He was politely attentive and when I smirked my favorite I inquired: "Isn't it a beaut?"

Right off I spotted a shade of jealousy. Nothing on the surface, you understand, but deep underneath a hesitancy. "You don't care for it?" I sneered. After a pause he replied, falsely casual: "As a grimace it might pass but there is nothing about it of the first class drawing room smirk."

"Probably it would go in Gallipolis," he added, an unnecessary crack. And up rose my dander. "You know so much," I cried, "let's see you smirk. I never heard of you winning smirking trophies." In fact I offered then and there to give him two smirks advantage and smirk him three sets, winner take all.

A grimace, indeed! Grimacers will always throw cold water on the efforts of a finished smirker. Failing to out-smirk, they resort to jeering. Also if I cared to be nasty there was a 50-cent gift cigar on my desk that disappeared when Mr. Cobb left.

Anyway, as is my wont, I arrived at the tea early. When I zinged the front bell two hired butlers in monkey coaster were turning in the servant entrance. And why does a hostess meet a first tea guest as though he might be an interloper? I go early because I don't care for cakes and truffles after they are mussed over. I like to start at scratch and nibbled the icing and goo-goos off a dozen small cakes, dropping the insides behind a divan, before a half dozen people came.

It is fascinating to watch a swarm of tea hounds suddenly pair off into little football huddles. A slight murmurous buzz swells into an incoherent roar. I horned into the most notable group, muffling my face before my hand to rehearse my smirk at intervals.

Tea drinkers are namby-pamby talkers. A bereted flapper talking from her boots a la Garbo revealed a choice bit of salacious scandal in the movies and a wrist tapping cigaretist, speaking familiarly of J. P. Morgan as "Jack," told how stocks would presently skyrocket as never before. And so on.

It went like this for some time with no opportunity to present my smirk. Further delay was caused by a squiffy fellow suddenly overcome by a notion I was angry with him. I'll admit I was never passionately enamored but I held no particular grievance. I did not even object to him leaning all his weight on a shoulder and blatting "Whuz I ever do t'you?"

* * *

At length through some happy inspiration my group turned to the subject of newspaper columns which is right up my alley and I could feel my pet smirk struggling for expression. Someone turned to me for an opinion. I waited for full attention, glibly spouted a view and let go my smirk with a bang. Once you release a smirk you can pull it back, so I know how Casey felt after his memorable strike out. The smirk was a complete dud. And then it came over me all of a sudden the trouble. Everybody was cockeyed. Just another one of these teas and not a cup of tea in the place! For sale: One smirk—slightly tarnished.

BELL, GENIUS OF TELEPHONE

By Archibald Henderson

Perhaps no invention by an American has been recognized as so typical of the genius of this country as the telephone. "What startles and frightens the backward European in the United States," says Arnold Bennett, "is the efficiency and fearful universality of the telephone. To me it was the proudest achievement and the most poetical achievement of the American people." And yet the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell, although ranked as an American inventor, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on March 3, 1847.

After being in Edinburgh and at London University, Bell followed to Canada his father, who was deeply interested in a system of instruction for the deaf and dumb. In 1871, he settled in Boston, where he accepted a position in Boston University to introduce his system of teaching deaf mutes. While teaching "vocal physiology," he worked on an invention which he called the "harmonic telegraph." He succeeded, by a very simple device, in making two similar springs vibrate in unison at the end of a telegraph line. He work on this device, in the hope of being able to send several messages at the same time; but he was never able to make his invention work satisfactorily.

In 1861 Philip Reis in Germany, had constructed an instrument which he named a "telephone," through which he succeeded in transmitting musical sounds with some success. Speech transmission, for lack of a minor alteration afterwards discovered, never proved a success.

Bell was well acquainted with the experiments and invention of Reis; and became deeply interested in the idea of transmitting speech electrically. His invention was due, it seems, to a fortunate accident, which has been graphically told in The Book of Popular Science.

According to Bell's mechanician, Thomas A. Watson, he was engaged, on June 2, 1875, in vibrating one of the springs at the sending end of a short line in an attic on Court street in Boston while Professor Bell was tuning a spring in another room at the other end of the line.

The vibrating contact at the sending end accidentally became welded together by the heat of the spark, and Watson, in trying to break the fused contact, plucked the spring several times. Professor Bell rushed in from the next room and cried, "What did you do then?"

Bell had heard the exact sound of the sending spring at the receiving end of the line. It took him but a moment to realize that the vibrations of a spring placed near an electro-magnet connected in a closed circuit will cause the current in the circuit to vary in strength at the same frequency as the vibrations of the spring.

Since Prof. Bell, like his father before him, was an expert in the science of sound and had devoted many years to the problem of teaching the deaf and dumb to speak, he quickly saw the possibility of replacing the spring by a diaphragm large enough to vibrate in accordance with the varying air pressure produced by the voice. After much experiment with various shapes of diaphragm, a transmitter and a receiver were made which transmitted speech.

The patent for this invention was issued on March 7, 1876. When the instrument was demonstrated at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia this same year, Dom Pedro, of Brazil, picked up the receiver, put it to his ear and exclaimed: "My God! It talks!"

The Blind Boy Draws

Blind and Foolish People Gamble.

A BLIND BOY DRAWS THE WINNING TICKET IN THE GREAT RACE LOTTERY.

You have read about the great horse race lottery in Dublin, organized to help Dublin hospitals, thousands buying tickets for a "Sweepstakes on the Manchester November Handicap."

The person drawing the horse that won got more than a million dollars.

There is no question that the drawing was conducted honestly. Nurses from hospitals put the tickets into a big drum from which they were drawn.

telling what number in the lottery would be entitled to the winnings, if any, of that particular horse.

Boys selected for this work are blind, for that appeals to the imagination of the crowd, perfectly certain that a blind boy couldn't cheat even if he wanted to.

Foolish persons that read about this drawing will gamble away their money the next time forgetting that for every dollar paid to those that gamble, the gamblers lose ten dollars or more.

The wise man will say, "I shall not be as blind as the unfortunate boy. He cannot see. I can.

"I see around me those that gamble, and I see that they never have any money. I see their families in want, or close to it."

Those that are wise will let the blind boys draw the tickets and the names of the horses, and let the blind fools do the gambling.

They, the wise, will keep the money for which they work, and not gamble it away blindly.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

This "depression" they're all talking about—maybe it's hit you.

Out of a job? Busted? Don't know where you're going to turn next? And you wonder if I know how it feels. Lady—Lady—are you asking me that!!!

I know. Take it from me, I know.

Hating to open your eyes, everything's so smeared with discouragement? Just as if there were a thick slime over the whole world—over yourself, too. Sick of yourself as you are of everything else. Sick of trying to keep going — dragging yourself around — what's the use?

That morning slump. No use to dress. No use even to wash, or to brush your hair. Watcha got to dress for? Who cares how your hair looks? Dirty kimono over a torn nightgown—ragged old slippers doing the same old flappety flop. Flappety—slap—that's how you feel. Down at the heel. Ravelled to rags—with life scuffing you along—flappety flap.

Dirty kitchen. Yesterday's dishes — day before yesterday's dishes—piled in the sink. Well, what of it? Why wash dishes? Why do anything, except sit there, huddled over your coffee, chewing on a stale roll—looking at the paper with empty eyes? Another day. And what use is another day to you? You wish you were dead!

Know how it feels? I'll say I do. I'm tasting that stale roll yet. I'm hearing that flappety flop.

But take a tip from me, partner—don't do it. Don't quit on yourself like that!

Depression? Sure we have it. And you can't prevent it. Times like this are bound to hit us every now and then. Conditions like this are beyond our control. But your own condition isn't beyond your control.

Suppose the market did go blooey—suppose they did sell short—you needn't sell yourself short.

You're just one big asset—always. Whether times are good or bad, you have just one asset you can bank on—one commodity you can trade with—that asset is yourself.

Wheat and cotton and coal and steel—they go up or down—it won't matter much, as long as you keep yourself at par. For sooner or later, you'll get your stride again. There's something in you that will actually create prosperity for you, if you'll keep it functioning.

Think good luck—get yourself ready for good luck—expect and demand good luck, and you'll get it.

But once let your value flop in your own eyes, and you're done for.

Go around wearing dirty kimonos, flappety shoes—let the dirty dishes pile in the sink and the bed lie unmade in a sour room—and life will treat you as you're treating yourself. A down-at-the-heel body means a down-at-the-heel soul. And a down-at-the-heel soul has the market value of garbage.

Don't do it, partner. Buck up and clean up.

Suppose life has two-timed you? All the more reason for not two-timing yourself!
